L. PORTER,

Secretary to the Government of India.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

DEPARTMENT OF REVENUE AND AGRICULTURE.

Rainfall summary for the seven days ending at 8 hrs. on Thursday, the 4th April 1912, based on the Indian Daily Weather Reports of the period.

1. The depression affecting northern India at the close of the previous week gave a few further falls of rain in the United Provinces, and resulted in continuous wet weather in northeast India until the 30th March. Rainfall was renewed in the latter area on the 2nd April after a break of two days. A fresh depression entered India from the west on the 30th—31st and gave precipitation in the extreme north and along the western Himalayas. It reached south Bengal on the 3rd and disappeared, but was followed by another disturbance which caused fairly general precipitation in the northeast of Baluchistan, the North-West Frontier Province and the Punjab, and a few falls in Kashmir and Rajputana.

Numerous thundershowers occurred in the south of the Peninsula on the 31st, and scattered falls of rain were reported on other days.

2. At the beginning of the week temperature was largely below normal in northern and central India, and cool conditions persisted over the greater part of this area throughout the week.

3. Burma.—A few light falls of rain were reported.

Northeast India, including Orissa.—Until the 30th rainfall was fairly general, except in the western parts where merely local falls occurred. Further rainfall was recorded on the 2nd and 3rd, chiefly in Bengal and Assam.

The United Provinces, Central India and the Central Provinces.—A few falls of rain occurred in the United Provinces on the 28th and 29th.

Northwest India.—Precipitation was recorded each day from the 30th. The first depression affected chiefly the North-West Frontier Province, Kashmir, the north of the Punjab and the Punjab Himalayas; but the second extended further southwards and gave fairly general rainfall in northeast Baluchistan, the North-West Frontier Province and the Punjab, as well as some precipitation in Kashmir and Rajputana.

The Peninsula.—Thundershowers began to occur on the 30th and were numerous on the 31st. They were recorded locally on the remaining days of the week with the exception of the 2nd.

4. The most important amounts of precipitation recorded were as follows:—

March 28th. Silchar 1'21", Shillong 1'48", Cherrapunji 2'29", Saugor Island 1'08", Calcutta 1'17", Jessore 1'63" and Balasore 2'65".

" 30th. Cox's Bazar 1'45", Jalpaiguri 1'25", Cochin 0'95", Ootacamund 0'82" and Waltair 1'44".

" 31st. Parachinar 0'86", Sonamarg 1'31" and Mercara 1'76".

April 1st. Sonamarg 1'12", Murree 1'45", Rawalpindi 1'25" and Khushab 1'14".

" 2nd. Tezpur 1'00" and Balasore 0'91".

" 3rd. Victoria Point 0'75", Parachinar 0'98", Murree 0'97" and Multan 0'47".

5. Precipitation during the week was markedly above normal in Bengal, Bihar and Orissa, the Punjab, the North-West Frontier Province, Mysore and the Madras Coast North; normal in Baluchistan and Hyderabad South, and nearly normal in Assam; while in the United Provinces, and Rajputana East, where normally no rain is received at this time, local falls were reported. Over the remainder of the country except in Kashmir and Malabar weather was dry.

During the period 1st December to 4th April, precipitation was in marked excess in the Bay Islands, Orissa, the Central Provinces East, Hyderabad South, Mysore, and Madras Southeast; normal or nearly normal in Assam, Bihar, the Punjab Southwest, Kashmir, Baluchistan, the Central Provinces West and Malabar; and in marked defect in Chota Nagpur, Sind, Gujarat, Central India, Berar, the Konkan and the Madras Deccan.

DEPARTMENT OF REVENUE AND AGRICULTURE.

Season and Crop Prospects for the week ending Saturday,
30th March 1912.

Burma.—Light rain fell in the north of the Province. Cultivation of spring and summer rice and harvesting of tobacco, pulses and island crops are progressing normally. Standing crops on the whole are in good condition. There have been no important variations in price of unhusked rice which remains much above normal.

Eastern Bengal and Assam.—Abundant rain fell during the week in all districts from which reports have been received and facilitated ploughing for and sowing of rice and jute. Burning of Jhums in hill districts is nearing completion though it is retarded in one district by rain. Harvesting of sugarcane is nearly finished. Cattle disease is prevalent in five districts.

Bengal.—All parts of the Province have experienced heavy downpours of rain which have now been succeeded by fine weather giving an opportunity for extensive sowings of rice and jute. The tobacco and mango crops have been somewhat damaged by hail. The average retail price of common rice is slightly higher than last week. Cattle disease is prevalent in all divisions except Rajshahi.

Bihar and Orissa.—Rain fell in all districts of the Province except Angul. The fall was rather heavy in Balasore, moderate in Purnea and parts of Monghyr and light in the remaining districts. Harvesting of spring crops and planting of sugarcane continue. Standing crops are doing well. Some damage has been done to spring crops by the recent rainfall in Bhagalpur and by hail in Purnea and Shahabad. The price of common rice has risen in Balasore and Ranchi, has fallen in Patna, Saran and Monghyr and has been stationary in the remaining districts. Cattle disease is reported from Angul, Puri, Sambalpur, Hazaribagh and Palamau. The supply of fodder and water is sufficient throughout the Province.

United Provinces.—(Report not received.)

Punjab.—Heavy rain was received in parts of Siolkot and light to moderate rain elsewhere. The rain has improved the unirrigated area and the condition of standing crops is now good to average. Harvesting of spring crops and sowing of extra spring crops, sugarcane and cotton continue. Damage by hail is reported from several districts. The damage appears to be serious only in two districts. Prices are generally high. Cattle are generally healthy. Fodder is scarce in most districts.

North-West Frontier Province.—Good showers fell in Hazara, Peshawar and Kohat proving beneficial to standing crops. More rain is needed all over the Province. The condition of standing crops is generally average but unirrigated crops in Dera Ismail Khan are below average. Sowings of cotton, sugarcane and extra spring crops are in progress. Sugarcane is still being pressed in Bannu. The water supply is generally sufficient except in the Shigga and Pakha centres in the Marwat tahsil in the Bannu district and in certain daman villages in the Dera Ismail Khan district. Fodder is scarce in Dera Ismail Khan and sufficient elsewhere. The condition of cattle is generally good but poor in Dera Ismail Khan owing to scarcity of fodder. The public health is generally good throughout the Province. Prices of food grains are stationary.

Jammu.—Rain good. Prices are stationary. Wheat sells from 10 to 16 and maize from 14 to 16 seers per rupee. The condition of standing crops is fair. Fodder is sufficient.

Kashmir.—Good rain fell several times during the week and was beneficial for spring crops. Zamindars are busy ploughing. Prices are unchanged. There is no disease among cattle. Fodder is average.

Rajputana.—(Report not received.)

Central India.—Light showers fell in Rampura—Bhanpura of Indore and in Bhopal. The weather is clear but the days and nights are hot. Harvesting of spring crops is in progress. Prospects are fair to good. Water is scarce in the Malwa and Bhopawar Agencies. Cattle disease is prevalent in parts of the Gwalior, Indore, Bhopal and Bhopawar Agencies. Fodder is scarce in the Gwalior, Indore and Bhopawar Agencies. Prices are normal in Bhopal and Baghelkhand, fluctuating in Indore and Bhopawar and steady elsewhere. Opium is in good condition.

The weekly report on the famine and scarcity is as follows:—Distress is increasing in parts of Dharapuri and Kukshi. Bhils and Bhilalas are getting to the end of their resources. Distress is slight in Ali Rajpur and general in Jobat. There is no wandering or emaciation nor any disinclination to resort to relief works. People on relief works are in good condition and relief measures are adequate. Suspensions and remissions are being granted. The supply of fodder is being pushed through affected areas in Dhar. Fodder is sufficient in Ali Rajpur and scarce in Jobat. Prices of food grains vary from 11 to 13

Notes.—The report for the Province of Bihar and Orissa is for the week ending 1st April 1912.

Central Provinces.—The weather has been clear and occasionally cloudy. The days are hot but the nights and mornings are still cool. Harvesting and threshing of spring crops are in rapid progress everywhere and a normal outturn for the Provinces as a whole is anticipated. Ploughing of land for next sowings is also in progress. Cattle are generally healthy. Prices are almost steady but exhibit a tendency to fall.

Feudatory States.—Prospects are generally good. Variations in prices are unimportant.

Bombay.—Harvesting is progressing generally. Cotton picking continues in parts of the Karnatak. Preparation of lands for cultivation of autumn crops is progressing generally. The fodder supply is generally inadequate. Agricultural stock is deteriorating in parts of Sind and Gujarat and is deficient in parts of the Deccan. The water supply both for irrigation and drinking purposes is deficient in parts of the Presidency Proper. Prices are high and generally stationary.

People on relief works are in good condition and relief measures are adequate. The public health is good. People find employment in digging temporary wells. Suspension of land revenue is being granted and takavi is being freely advanced. Grain stocks are sufficient. Bajri sells at 9 to 10 and maize at $10\frac{1}{2}$ to 11 seers per rupee. Late rice is being weeded and irrigated in places and the crop is fair to good but somewhat damaged by insects in parts of the Warangal and Karimnagar districts. Cattle disease prevails in 15, fodder scarcity in 19 and water scarcity in 20 talukas. Prices:—Wheat $6\frac{1}{2}$, coarse rice $6\frac{1}{2}$ and juar $13\frac{1}{2}$ seers per rupee, showing a rise of $\frac{1}{2}$ seer in the price of wheat. White juar is selling at 12 seers in Hyderabad City. The highest price in districts is $9\frac{1}{2}$ seers in Raichur and the lowest 22 seers in Parbhani.

The examination will be ipso facto vitiated, if it be not held (begun and completed) on the dates fixed; but the officer who will conduct the examination may make his own arrangements with the candidates in regard to the place and hour of examination.

Candidates will not be examined in any of the Calcutta offices.

A candidate already in permanent Government employ* may be allowed to compete in the examination, even if he is more than 25 years of age, and may be appointed to an accountantship, if he passes it; but if he is not already in pensionable service, he will be eligible only for appointment to the non-pensionable

The application must bear the address of the candidate, must be accompanied by a fee of Rs 10 and the following certificates and registration form duly filled in, and must be forwarded by him not direct to the Principal, but through the Accountant-General.

Certificates may be submitted in original, or true copies attested by an officer of the Engineer or Accounts Branch, but none will be returned :—

(1) Certificate of good character signed by applicant's immediate official superior, or by the instructor under whom he has been educated, or by some other superior under whom he may have been brought up or employed, or to whom he may be well known. NOTE.—A candidate already in Government service should, in like manner, submit his application, through his immediate official superior to an Accountant-General (including Government Examiner of Railway Accounts and Examiner of Accounts, Lower Ganges Bridge Project), qualified to hold the particular examination, and should state whether he desires to be examined at the office of the Accountant-General concerned or at the College.

It will rest with the Accountant-General (including Government Examiner of Railway Accounts and Examiner of Accounts, Lower Ganges Bridge Project) to whom the candidate submits his application, to decide, on a consideration of the certificates submitted, whether the candidate should be allowed to appear for the examination, or whether his application should be rejected. The Accountant-General or the other officers referred to will then forward to the Principal, for registration, the names of the accepted candidates, together with their registration statements, which should be signed by the Accountant-General. The registration statements should be carefully preserved by the Principal. The names of these candidates should be entered in a statement showing their ages and their addresses, and also showing where each candidate is to be examined, whether at the College or at the office of the Accountant-General. This statement, together with the fees, should be transmitted to the Principal not later than 15 days after the dates fixed in paragraph 2 for the submission of applications of candidates.

3. Examination papers that are issued for examination need not be returned.

4. Each examination is complete in itself. A candidate who has failed in an examination, and presents himself for examination on a subsequent occasion, must undergo the full examination and furnish fresh fee and certificates.

5. If from any cause a candidate fails to appear for the examination, the fee paid will not be refunded.

6. It must be distinctly understood that the passing of this examination does not give any claim to an appointment and that, in making appointments, preference will be given to qualified persons who are already employed in the Department.

7. Passed candidates should apply, not to the Principal of the College, nor to the Comptroller-General but direct to the Accountant-General or Government Examiner of Railway Accounts in the province or railway under whom they may desire to be employed.

8. The Civil Engineering College acts solely as an examining body in reference to admission to the 4th grade of Accountants, Public Works Department.

9. Candidates for the 4th grade Accountantship examination, who are not Government servants and over 25 years of age, are allowed to appear at the examination of the Sibpur College centre only, but, even if successful, they are debarred from employment in the service of Government, and their names will be excluded from the list of passed candidates which is furnished to the Comptroller and Auditor General.

10. Candidates over 25 years of age should apply in writing to the Principal of the Civil Engineering College not later than 30 days previous to the examination; the application to be accompanied by the fee of rupees ten, and the Registration statement prescribed in rule 2 (4).

QUESTION AND ANSWERS.

The Hon'ble Sir Cecil Graham, on behalf of the Hon'ble Mr. Armstrong, asked:

"Will Government be pleased—

(1) To state the amount of the cash balances held in the Home Treasury at the close of each month since March 1911?

(2) To state—

(a) how much of the balances were invested, and

(b) in what form the investments were made?

(3) To issue a statement monthly in future giving the amount of the cash balances held in the Home Treasury at the close of the preceding month and the particulars asked for in question 2?

(4) To state which Banks in England have been approved for the purpose of lodging with them Treasury money without requiring a deposit of securities as cover for money so lodged?

(5) To state whether in view of the experiences of the year 1908, when the balance of trade turned against India and necessitated large drawings on the Gold Standard Reserve, Government have considered it necessary to take further measures for better securing the stability of the gold standard?

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

[Sir Cecil Graham ; Sir Guy Fleetwood Wilson.] [22ND MARCH 1912.]

(6) To state whether by increasing the cash balances in the Home Treasury it has been the intention to supplement the Gold Standard Reserve as a guarantee for the stability of Exchange ?

(7) If the answer to question (6) is in the affirmative, to state whether the method of supplementing the Gold Standard Reserve by means of increased cash balances in the Home Treasury has been adopted as a substitute for the method formerly intended as explained by the Hon'ble Sir James Meston in 1910 when he stated that he had every hope that the Secretary of State would supplement the Reserve if needed by gold borrowings ?

(8) To state whether Government have considered that the maintenance of very large cash balances in the Home Treasury constitutes a heavy burden on the Indian tax-payer ?

(9) If the answer to question (6) is in the affirmative, to state whether Government have considered that borrowing in gold to supplement the Gold Standard Reserve to meet adverse Exchange conditions when they arise would be less expensive for Indian tax-payers than cash balances largely created from revenue ?

(10) To state whether the sum of about two millions sterling derived from the opium-revenue which was to be remitted to the Home Treasury during the year 1910-11 for reduction of floating debt, as announced in the last Budget Statement, has been applied in reducing the floating debt ?

(11) To state how much floating debt has been issued during the current financial year, and how much repaid ?

(12) To state for what purpose floating debt was issued during the current financial year ?

(13) To state—

(a) the average rate of interest derived from the employment of the Home Treasury cash balances in the market and with Banks during the current year to the latest date for which the information is available ;

(b) the average rate of interest at which India bills were floated during the current year ?

The Hon'ble Sir Guy Fleetwood Wilson, with His Excellency the President's permission, laid the following answers on the table :

"(1) A statement* is laid on the table which gives the figures up to December 1911. It excludes sums held in cash on behalf of the Gold Standard Reserve.

(2) (a) and (b). The balances at the end of December last were invested as follows :—

(a) on loan to approved borrowers on security, £10,650,000.

(b) placed in deposit with approved banks, £3,715,000.

(3) The suggestion that statements of the kind asked for should be published monthly will require careful consideration. The Government of India will consult the Secretary of State on the subject.

(4) Deposits have been made from time to time with the following seven Banks :—

London County and Westminster, National Provincial Bank of England, Union of London and Smith's Bank, London Joint Stock Bank, London City and Midland Bank, Glyn, Mills, Currie and Company, Barclay and Company.

(5) The subject of the Gold Standard Reserve is one which receives continual attention from the Government of India and the Secretary of State in Council, but the Secretary of State is of opinion that the experience of the year 1908 afforded satisfactory evidence of the strength of the Gold Standard Reserve as it is now regulated.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

[Sir Guy Fleetwood Wilson; Mr. Gokhale; Mr. Wheeler.]

(6) (7). The answer is in the negative. In this connection the Hon'ble Member's attention is invited to the replies given in the Council in Simla on the 18th September last to his second question on the subject of the cash balances held in the Home Treasury, in which the causes operating to swell the balances in recent years were fully explained.

(8) (9) The causes which, as explained in the reply of the 18th September last and elsewhere, have recently raised the total balance of the Government of India in England and in India to an unusually high figure, do not throw a burden on the Indian taxpayer, nor is such a burden thrown on him by reason of the fact that, in course of meeting the convenience of trade, a considerable portion of the balance has been temporarily transferred to the Home Treasury.

(10) The sum is to be applied to the discharge of the temporary debt of the year 1912-13. Particulars of the temporary debt to be discharged in 1912-13 are given in the Financial Statement.

(11) No new floating debt was issued during the current year, although £4½ millions of bills were renewed. The amount repaid was £½ million.

(12) As explained above, there was no issue of floating debt during the current year.

(13) (a). The approximate average rate of interest for the year ending 31st March 1912 on loans to approved borrowers on security is calculated to be 2·60, and on deposits with approved banks, 2·43 per cent. per annum.

(b) The average rate of interest on India Bills renewed during the current year is 2·97 per cent. per annum."

The Hon'ble Mr. Gokhale asked :

2. " Will the Government be pleased to state what steps, if any, have been taken during the year to provide the country with a system of independent audit, in regard to which the Hon'ble the Finance Member asked last year ' for time to mature proposals ' " ?

The Hon'ble Sir Guy Fleetwood Wilson replied :

" The whole question has been thoroughly examined in consultation with the Comptroller-General, and proposals are now being prepared for submission to the Secretary of State."

The Hon'ble Mr. Gokhale asked :

" With reference to the statement made by the Hon'ble the Home Member on 26th February last, in reply to my question about the appointment of qualified men outside the ranks of the Indian Medical Service to senior Clinical Professorships in Medical Colleges, namely, ' it is because the best qualified Professors have hitherto only been found among the members of Indian Medical Service that these posts till now have been filled from that service,' will the Government be pleased to state what steps were taken by them to ascertain if competent outsiders were available? Are not appointments to Professorial Chairs invariably advertised, before selections are made, in the United Kingdom? Will the Government state if this practice was ever followed in the past in regard to Professorships in Indian Medical Colleges? "

The Hon'ble Mr. Wheeler replied :

" No Clinical Chairs in Government Medical Colleges have so far been thrown open to candidates outside the ranks of the Indian Medical Service, and no outside candidates have accordingly been hitherto invited to apply.

Government have no information as to the practice followed in the United Kingdom in filling Professorial Chairs, and in any case the conditions there prevailing are not identical with those in this country. Recently candidates were invited by advertisement for the Chair of Anatomy in the Medical College, Calcutta, and a similar procedure is now being followed with respect to the Chair of Physics in the same institution."

The Hon'ble Mr. Gokhale : "Will Government make inquiries about the practice in the United Kingdom?"

The Hon'ble Mr. Wheeler : "Should occasion arise, they will doubtless do so."

The Hon'ble Pandit Madan Mohan Malaviya asked :

"(a) Has the attention of Government been drawn to the recommendation of the Public Service Commission of 1886 that in the High Courts of Calcutta, Madras and Bombay the number of Judges selected from the judicial branch of the Provincial Service or from advocates and pleaders of the High Courts should be increased?"

"(b) Will the Government be pleased to state if any member of the Provincial Civil Service has been appointed a Judge of the High Court at Calcutta since the recommendation above referred to was made?"

"(c) If no one has been appointed, does the Government propose to take into consideration the claims of the members of the Bengal Provincial Civil Service when the next vacancy has to be filled up on the High Court Bench?"

The Hon'ble Mr. Wheeler replied :

"(a) The Government of India are aware of the Public Service Commission's recommendation referred to by the Hon'ble Member.

"(b) No member of the Provincial Service has yet been appointed to the Calcutta High Court Bench, but advocates and pleaders have been frequently selected.

"(c) The claims of all persons eligible for appointment are considered on the occurrence of a vacancy, and this practice will continue to be followed."

The Hon'ble Mr. Mudholkar asked :

"Is it a fact that in 1908 a Committee presided over by the Hon'ble Mr. M. W. Fox-Strangways, who is now officiating as Chief Commissioner of the Central Provinces, was appointed to inquire into and report on the steps necessary for the reorganization of the Educational Services in the Central Provinces, and that that Committee made certain recommendations?"

"If so, will Government be pleased to state what those recommendations were, what was the view of the Local Government in regard thereto, and what action the Government of India have taken in the matter?"

The Hon'ble Sir Harcourt Butler replied :

"The Hon'ble Member is probably alluding to a Committee which, under the presidency of Mr. Fox-Strangways, considered the improvement of Secondary Education, and to another Conference held at Panchmarhi in June, 1908, on the same subject. These Committees made certain recommendations regarding the Educational Services. The Government of India do not consider it expedient to make known at present the precise recommendations of the two Committees and of the Chief Commissioner. The Chief Commissioner has made recommendations which are under the consideration of the Government of India."

The Hon'ble Mr. Mudholkar asked :

"Is it a fact that the position of the Indian staff of the Government College at Jubbulpur as regards pay and status still continues to be in the same condition as it was when the Quinquennial Report on Education of 1907 brought this matter to the notice of Government, and is Government aware that professors of proved ability after long service are in receipt of monthly salaries of Rs. 400, Rs. 270 and similar sums ?”

The Hon'ble Sir Harcourt Butler replied :

“ A reference has been made to the Chief Commissioner of the Central Provinces, and the information required will be supplied in due course.”

The Hon'ble Mr. Dadabhoy asked :

“ Is the Government aware that the amended Central Provinces Civil Courts Act provides for the hearing of certain classes of appeals, both civil and criminal, by Benches composed of two Judges ; that after the Act came into force, no additional Judge has been appointed ; and that there is at present a congestion in the business of the Judicial Commissioner's Court ?

“ If so, does Government propose to appoint a fourth Judge for the Court to ensure proper despatch in business ? ”

The Hon'ble Mr. Wheeler replied :

“ Section 5 (2) of the Central Provinces Courts Act, 1904 (II of 1904), as amended by Act XI of 1910, authorises the making of rules to provide for the exercise of any of the powers of the Court of the Judicial Commissioner by a bench of two or more Judges of the Court. No additional Judge has been appointed since the date upon which the amending Act came into force.

The Government of India have received no representation from the Chief Commissioner as to the existence of any congestion of business in the Judicial Commissioner's Court, and have no proposal before them for the appointment to the Court of a fourth Judge.”

The Hon'ble Mr. Bhurgri asked :

“ With reference to the reply given by Government to my question about the Sukkur Weir on the 7th instant, do Government propose to call for the information from the Inspector-General of Irrigation, and lay it on the Council table ? ”

The Hon'ble Sir Robert Carlyle replied :

“ Government have now received the report of the Inspector-General of Irrigation, but they do not propose to lay before the Council any information with regard to the scheme until they have given it their careful consideration.”

The Hon'ble Mr. Bhurgri asked :

“(a) Will Government be pleased to state if there are any special Muhammadan Deputy Educational Inspectors of Schools in any of the provinces of India ?

“(b) If so, are there any special schools for Muhammadans alone maintained by Government ?

“(c) If so, will Government be pleased to state the number of such Deputy Inspectors in each province, the nature of the duties they perform, and also the number of such special schools under their charge ? ”

The Hon'ble Sir Harcourt Butler replied :

“ The information required has been called from Local Governments, and will be laid on the table in due course.”

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

[Raja of Dighapatia ; Sir Harcourt Butler ; Mr. Wheeler.] [22ND MARCH 1912.]

The Hon'ble the Raja of Dighapatia asked :—

"Is it intended to revise the Local Self-Government Acts of the various Provinces with a view to extend the principle of election into their constitution as recommended by the Decentralisation Commission ?"

The Hon'ble Sir Harcourt Butler replied :

"Local Governments have been consulted on the recommendations of the Royal Commission, and the matter will be considered by the Government of India when their replies have been received."

The Hon'ble the Raja of Dighapatia asked :

"Has the Government thought of the advisability of constituting a Local Government Board for a more efficient control of local bodies as suggested by Lord Morley in his despatch to the Government of India dated the 27th November, 1906. If so, what action does the Government intend to take in the matter ?"

"Is it intended to make the Indian villages the basal unit in the Local Self-government scheme as proposed by Lord Morley in the same despatch ? If so, what steps are being taken in this connection ?"

The Hon'ble Sir Harcourt Butler replied :

"The question of the advisability of creating a Department in each province to deal exclusively with matters connected with Local Government, which was the suggestion contained in the Secretary of State's despatch, has been referred to Local Governments for opinion, and their replies are under the consideration of the Government of India."

"The Royal Commission on Decentralization dealt at length with the question of village reorganization, and their recommendations have been referred to local Governments for opinion. The whole question will be considered on receipt of their replies."

The Hon'ble the Raja of Dighapatia asked :

"Will the Government lay on the table a complete list of newspapers in India, if any, still in receipt of Government subsidies with the amount of subsidy drawn by each ?"

The Hon'ble Mr. Wheeler replied :

"The following is a complete list of newspapers in India, still in receipt of subsidies from Government with the amount of subsidy drawn by each annually :—

	Rs.
Bombay—Jagad Vritta newspaper—annual subsidy . . .	15,000
Bengal—Sulav Samachar newspaper—annual subsidy . . .	62,500
Eastern Bengal and Assam—Biswa Barta newspaper—annual subsidy	82,000 "

The Hon'ble the Raja of Dighapatia asked :

"Would the Government be pleased to state in what respects the new University of Dacca will differ from the University of Calcutta, and what will be its jurisdiction and the nature of its affiliation and examinations ?"

The Hon'ble Sir Harcourt Butler replied :

"The Government of India are not prepared to make any announcement as to the constitution of the University at Dacca until they have received the views of the Government of Bengal."

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

[Raja of Dighapatia ; Sir Harcourt Butler ; Nawab Saiyid Muhammad ; Sir Guy Fleetwood Wilson ; Raja Partab Bahadur Singh ; Mr. Wheeler.]

The Hon'ble the Raja of Dighapatia asked :

"Does the Government propose to consider the advisability of founding some scholarships tenable in Europe for Indian students to equip themselves for the work of research in Archæology and Oriental studies generally ?"

The Hon'ble Sir Harcourt Butler replied :

"The training of Indian students in archæological research and in oriental studies generally is receiving the earnest attention of the Government of India. No announcement can be made at present."

The Hon'ble the Raja of Dighapatia asked :

"Do the Government propose to devote any portion of the special grant for education announced at the last Delhi Durbar for the improvement of the hostels attached to the private colleges ? If so, would there be any special conditions attached to such grants ?"

The Hon'ble Sir Harcourt Butler replied :

"Out of the grant of 50 lakhs announced at Delhi for education, 5 lakhs have been distributed for hostels. The utilization of the sums so assigned rests with the Local Governments."

The Hon'ble Nawab Saiyid Muhammad asked :

"(a) Are the Government aware that the rules for the discussion of the Financial Statement in the Provincial Councils are not uniform in the various provinces ?

"(b) Have the Government perused the comments of the Hon'ble Non-Official Members in the Madras Legislative Council made last year on the manner in which the Rules have been interpreted and worked in that Presidency ?

"(c) Are the Government aware that the Government of the United Provinces have adopted a different course and taken the members in their confidence when framing their preliminary estimates ?

"(d) Will the Government be pleased to state whether they propose to call for a report on the subject and lay down or suggest modifications in the present procedure, which will be in accordance with the Reform proposals ?"

The Hon'ble Sir Guy Fleetwood Wilson replied :

"The Rules for the discussion of the Financial Statement are not absolutely uniform in the different provinces. I am not however aware of any precise difficulty in the mind of the Hon'ble Member, and I would suggest that he should refer it in the first instance to his Local Government. There is no intention of calling for a report on the present procedure."

The Hon'ble Raja Partab Bahadur Singh asked :

"Will the Government be pleased to state if a despatch regarding the re-organisation of the Provincial Judicial Service in the United Provinces has been sent to the Secretary of State for India ? If so, will the Government be pleased to state when the said despatch was sent and the approximate time within which the reply of the Secretary of State is expected ?"

The Hon'ble Mr. Wheeler replied :

"The Secretary of State has not yet been addressed."

BUDGET FOR 1912-13 ; SUSPENSION OF RULES OF BUSINESS.

[Sir Guy Fleetwood Wilson ; the President.] [22ND MARCH 1912.]

BUDGET FOR 1912-13.

The Hon'ble Sir Guy Fleetwood Wilson : " My Lord, the Financial Statement which I laid before this Council on the 1st of March has now passed through the various stages prescribed by our regulations, and on the whole it has met with a reception which cannot be otherwise than gratifying to the Government of India. What I now lay upon the table is the Statement in its final form as the Budget of next year. It has been again examined in close detail, and revised wherever necessary in the light of later information and in accordance with such alterations as Local Governments have made in their Provincial figures after the discussions in their Legislative Councils. The explanatory memorandum has also been thoroughly checked and brought up to date. There will be no debate upon the Budget to-day ; but on Monday there will be the usual closing discussion which marks the end of the Calcutta session.

Revised, 1911-12.

" In our Revised estimate for the current year, the corrections which have been made on receipt of the February figures have had the effect of raising the Imperial surplus to just over £3 millions. The Land-revenue is coming in better than we expected in the Punjab, United Provinces, Burma and Bombay ; and the Imperial share of the improvement is £142,000. The striking expansion of Railway traffic has compelled us to enhance our estimate under that head by £133,000 since the beginning of the month. Salt continues progressive ; Customs, Stamps and Excise receipts have all been on the upgrade ; and the March sales of opium in Calcutta again exceeded our forecast. The total net betterness is £343,000. The only appreciable item on the other side of the account appears in the Home charges, where there is an excess of £98,000, part of which I foreshadowed in the Financial Statement.

Budget, 1912-13.

" For next year there have been several unimportant corrections with which I need not weary the Council. We have had to raise our forecast of Salt-revenue in sympathy with the improvement which is now at work ; and we have made slight additions, for the same reason, to our Stamps and Excise estimates. On the other hand, the Land-revenue has had to come down in consequence of some unexpected advance collections in the current month ; and the more exact figures which we have now obtained indicate that the imposition of the Proprietary Estates Village Service Cess in Madras has progressed so far that its remission will cost us more in 1912-13 than our preliminary estimate had suggested. The net result of these and a few other corrections leaves our Imperial surplus for next year at £1,478,300, being within five lakhs of the figure which I took in the Financial Statement.

*Ways and Means.

" Turning to Capital expenditure and Ways and Means generally, I have to record a further improvement of £853,000 in this year's closing balance. Part of this is due to the improvement in the Imperial Surplus (£343,000) ; part to additional savings in the Provincial grants (£249,000) ; and most of the remainder to further lapses in State Railway Capital outlay (£245,000). The closing balance of 1912-13 will not, so far as I can judge, obtain the whole benefit of this improvement, as we have had to raise some of the Provincial grants and provide for larger outgoings of Imperial loans and advances. But the balances will be £584,000 better than my estimate of the 1st March. In view of the continued high sales of Council Bills in the current month, we have raised our figure of remittances by £600,000. In no other respect has there been any important alteration in the figures already placed before the Council."

SUSPENSION OF RULES OF BUSINESS.

The Hon'ble Sir Guy Fleetwood Wilson : " My Lord, I ask Your Lordship to suspend rule 10 of the Rules for the discussion of matters of general public interest in order to admit of the discussion of the Hon'ble Sir Vithaldas Thackersey's Resolutions before the legislative business. "

His Excellency the President : " I suspend the rule. "

GOLD CURRENCY.

[22ND MARCH 1912.]

[Sir Vitthaldas D. Thackersey.]

GOLD CURRENCY.

The Hon'ble Sir Vitthaldas D. Thackersey moved the following Resolution :

"That this Council recommends to the Governor General in Council that the Indian Mints be now thrown open to the free coinage of gold in coins of suitable denominations."

He said :—"My Lord, last year in my Budget speech I recommended the throwing open of the Indian mints to the free coinage of gold, and I proposed the minting of gold coins of the value of Rs. 10 each. My friend the Hon'ble Sir Guy Fleetwood Wilson was good enough to say that Government would give due consideration to that proposal. The country has not heard anything further as yet from Government as to their intention in the matter, though we have had a great deal of animated discussion in England and in India upon my proposal. Those who have attacked my proposal most vehemently, like the Statist for example, have totally misapprehended it to be something new and unheard of before. As a matter of fact, however, there has never been the least doubt that the goal of our currency policy is a gold standard with a gold currency. The only reason which weighed with the successive Committees and Commissions which had been appointed to report on our currency in not recommending the immediate introduction of a gold currency, was the want of gold and the difficulty of securing it except by raising a very big gold loan. Let me quote the words of the Indian Currency Committee of 1898. They observed :

'We are in favour of making the British sovereign a legal tender and a current coin in India. We also consider that, at the same time, the Indian mints should be thrown open to the unrestricted coinage of gold on terms and conditions such as governed the three Australian Branches of the Royal Mint.'

"That was in 1898. At the Council meeting of the 25th August 1899, the Hon'ble Mr. Clinton Dawkins, the then Finance Member, in asking permission to postpone the motion for leave to introduce a Bill further to amend the Indian Coinage Act, 1870, and the Indian Paper Currency Act, 1882, said :

'The Bill is intended, I may say very shortly, to give effect to the recommendations contained in the report of the Indian Currency Committee which has been endorsed by the Secretary of State and are generally accepted by the Government of India. Those recommendations include making the sovereign legal tender at the rate of Rs 15 to 1 sovereign and will provide for the coinage of gold in India.'

"And again, on the 8th September 1899, while introducing the said Bill, he said :

'The measure of transcendent importance before us is to place the currency of India on a gold basis and a stable exchange. To provide for actual striking of gold coinage at an Indian mint is really a corollary, and no practical inconvenience will arise from a short delay. We could not proceed to strike coin until we receive the necessary machinery that has been ordered from England.'

"He further went to say :

'Into the arguments of a gold standard and gold currency, I think no one will expect me to enter. The arguments for and against have been exhausted and Government is proceeding on the condition that no other measure would save India from disastrous embarrassment.'

"That was in 1899. Then again, in 1900, Sir Clinton Dawkins in the Financial Statement made these remarks :—

'It has been decided to constitute a branch of the Royal Mint at the Bombay Mint for the coinage of gold. The terms of the Proclamation, to be issued, under the Imperial Coinage Act, have been settled, and we are merely awaiting now, until the Royal Mint has satisfied itself as regards the Mint premises and appliances at Bombay. A representative of the Royal Mint is starting this week for Bombay to report. The gold from the Mysore mines is indeed already reaching us in anticipation of coinage, and we count upon receiving an annual increment to our stock of gold of from 1½ to 2 millions from this source. And may I perhaps express satisfaction in passing that we have been able to assist the Indian gold-mining industry by saving it the freight and charges incidental to the transmission of its gold to London.'

"Sir Clinton Dawkins, when he made this announcement, was speaking not only on behalf of the Government of India but also on behalf of the Secretary of State. For we find that in 1900 the Secretary of State for India was so thoroughly convinced of the necessity of introducing and popularising gold coins that in a despatch dated the 24th of May of that year he remarked :

GOLD CURRENCY.[Sir Vithaldas D. Thackersey.]

‘To make the use of gold coins more popular, and especially among the class of people for whom a coin valued at Rs. 15 is an unduly large unit, it may be desirable for your Government to coin gold pieces of three or five rupees at the Calcutta Mint which should be made legal tender but would be issued altogether irrespectively of the Branch of the Royal Mint at Bombay.’

‘The Government of India circulated the despatch and asked for the opinion of the Chambers of Commerce. In reply the Chairman of the Bombay Chamber of Commerce, on the 10th July 1900, said :

‘The matter having received the careful consideration of the Committee of the Bombay Chamber of Commerce, I am to say that they approve of the proposal as they consider it would assist in popularising the gold coinage in India.’

‘He further said in conclusion :

‘While on this subject the Committee desire respectfully to suggest that, with the view to making the present gold currency more popular in India, Government should consider the advisability of issuing new gold coins stamped as follows :

£1 or Rs. 15.

Sh. 10 or Rs. 7½.’

‘The Bombay Chamber of Commerce, in their letter to the Government of India dated the 1st February 1907, wrote :

‘They fully appreciate the difficulties which Government have experienced in providing and financing the large reserves of silver which it has been found necessary to hold in anticipation of fresh coinage ; and they instruct me to suggest the desirability of adopting measures to secure a larger use of gold in the currency circulation. An increased use of gold coins as currency would, in their opinion, tend to reduce the quantity of silver bullion or ingot reserves which need be held and would also minimise the difficulties connected with the provision thereof.’

‘The Government of India were satisfied with this representation, and in their letter dated the 4th May 1907, in reply to the Chamber of Commerce, said :

‘The question raised by the first of these proposals (namely, the more extensive circulation of gold) is one to which your Committee rightly attach the highest importance. The Government of India have never concealed from themselves the inconvenience attending a gold standard which is not accompanied by an effective gold circulation, and they are in full accord with the view that a more general use of gold among the people would simplify the task of directing a managed currency.’

‘The Hon’ble Mr. Webb, the Chairman of the Karachi Chamber of Commerce, in his very able memorandum on the Indian currency, has clearly shown the disadvantages of the State management of the currency and has given very instructive facts and figures in support of the gold currency. From these it will be seen that the expert Committees and the Commissions, the Secretary of State, the Government of India and the commercial communities have all been unanimous in their opinion that the introduction of gold currency is the only solution of the difficulties that are inseparable from the present State-managed gold standard system.

‘My Lord, events that have happened within the last twelve months confirm me in the view which I took last year of the urgent need of throwing open the mints to the free coinage of gold. Indeed, every day that passes involves a loss to this country and adds to the difficulties in the way of the introduction of a gold currency. That is why I have ventured to bring forward this Resolution. We have now a favourable opportunity, and if we take advantage of it, our success is assured. We are getting in the Government Treasury more gold than we can conveniently hold. Practically the whole of our gold standard reserve is either in gold or invested in gold securities. We hold in gold as much even of our reserves against the paper currency as can be held in gold consistently with our liability to meet our obligations to pay silver coins in exchange for currency notes, and the reserve of silver coins has reached such a low level, only 14 crores of rupees against 47 crores mentioned by the Hon'ble Sir Guy Fleetwood Wilson the other day, that unless we make provision for gold coinage, more silver coins shall have to be minted at an early date. Since 1907 no new additions have been made to the country's rupee currency, and the demands during the last five years of the expanding trade of the country have been undoubtedly met partly by the circulation of gold coins, thus rendering it possible to do without coining more rupees. Unless Government facilitate the reception of gold coins by the public by some such measure as those suggested in my Resolution, they will have to coin rupees as the only means of meeting the demand for metallic currency. This view is supported by the remarks of my friend the Hon'ble the Finance Member in his speech on the Financial Statement for 1912-13. The Hon'ble Member said :—

'The adverse balance of trade in 1908 has forced us to draw on our Gold Standard Reserve in defence of exchange; and against the gold thus released we had received and withdrawn from circulation in India the enormous quantity of 120 million rupees. Mainly through this cause our rupee reserves at the beginning of 1909-10 were enormously strong; between our currency chests and the silver branch of the Gold Standard Reserve we had altogether 47 crores at our command, and in the strength of that accumulation we have been meeting all demands upon us ever since. The absorption of rupees in the intervening three years has been about 32 crores; and by whatever test the figures are tried, it is clear that the demand has been less active than in the earlier years of the century, when the resources of our mints were severely strained to meet the calls of trade for silver currency.'

"These are the remarks of the Hon'ble Member.

"The absorption of 32 crores of rupees in three years gives an average of about 11 crores per year. When we consider the absorption of rupees in years previous to 1907, we come to the conclusion that 11 crores is not a high figure. From 1900 to 1907 the net addition of rupees to our currency was 84½ crores of rupees, giving an annual average absorption of about 10½ crores of rupees.

"Against 47 crores of rupees at the command of Government in 1909, we have only 17 crores at the present moment—14 crores in the currency chest and 3 crores in the Gold Standard Reserve. The circulation of our currency notes amounts to over 55 crores of rupees, and I am sure my friend the Hon'ble Sir Guy Fleetwood Wilson will agree with me when I say that the amount of 17 crores of rupees is by no means larger than the minimum necessary to enable Government to meet its obligation of paying rupees on presentation of currency notes. If this is the present position, may I ask the Hon'ble Member how he proposes to meet the future demand of metallic currency except by coining new rupees, unless my Resolution is accepted, and our mints are thrown open to the free coinage of gold? If you coin more rupees, you will be thereby making it still more difficult than it is to introduce gold currency which is the goal we have in view. If, on the other hand, you throw open the mint to the free coinage of gold, I feel sure that in the present circumstances the country will avail itself of the right very freely and thus reduce, if not prevent, the necessity for coining more token rupees. There is a further argument why we should try to avoid as much as possible any unnecessary addition to our rupee currency. In dealing with the question of high prices, my friend the Hon'ble Mr. Gokhale pointed out to this Council four years ago, how the unusually high additions to our total silver coinage during the three years 1905-07 must have had a considerable share in sending up the general level of prices. I am inclined to agree with my friend that a sudden inflation of the country's currency has a tendency in that direction, and I hope that he will in connection with this Resolution develop this part of the argument. Let me make myself clear on one point. I do not suggest that Government should give up the right to coin rupees or refuse to give rupees when people demand the same. I do not propose to touch the gold standard reserve which must remain as it is as the ultimate guarantee of our currency policy. My proposal does not interfere with the existing arrangements in any way but is merely supplementary to them. I made this perfectly clear last year; nevertheless some of my critics have urged against my proposal that Government is asked to part with their reserve of gold, that the gold will disappear into the hoards of the people, and that Government will have difficulty in maintaining the gold standard without raising a gold loan; there is not the least basis for these fears. Let the Government of India accumulate gold to the maximum limit of its capacity, but let the surplus gold which it cannot absorb be coined and circulated if the public chooses to do so. With our expanding trade and the balance in our favour, gold will continue to be imported in ordinary time, and if the facilities of minting are provided in India, it will go into circulation.

"The only plausible argument advanced against the proposal is that the Indian people are too poor for a gold currency. I cannot understand this argument, because if the people are rich enough for a gold standard they cannot be too poor for its normal adjunct, a gold currency. As things are, they have all the disadvantages of a gold system without its advantages. Then, again, I do not propose to demonetise silver, and silver coins will be available, if my suggestion is carried out, as they are now, and whoever requires them will get them as at present.

"Then, again, it is asked, why should there be gold coining in India when whoever may require gold coins may import English sovereigns? Why does Australia coin her own gold? It is quite open to her to import sovereigns. Again, why do all other civilised countries of the world have their own gold coins? So far as India is concerned, it is to her advantage to a greater extent than to many of the other countries. We produce in India 3 million pounds worth of gold from our mines. It is anomalous that this gold should be exported to London to be minted there and sovereigns should be imported into this country. Why should we not coin our own gold if there is demand for it instead of bearing the charges of carriage both ways and suffering the loss of interest on capital during the time occupied in the double transit? The last but not the least of all the advantages of having our own gold coins will be that there will be less of State management in our currency. The trade will be financed automatically by the import and export of gold, as the case may be, just as the commerce of all other countries is financed. India is the only great country in the world, barring China, the management of whose currency is completely in the hands of Government. However well-managed it may be, it can never be as good as an automatic currency which adjusts itself to public demands. After the mints are opened to the free coinage of gold, all that the State will have to do is to pay rupees in exchange for gold coin when such demand arises. All countries, including England, have to pay silver subsidiary coins in exchange for gold coins when they are required for the use of the country. This step will prevent, or in any case reduce, the addition to our existing silver coins, and that will be a great gain.

"As to the denomination of that coin, I prefer a ten-rupee gold coin for various reasons mentioned in my last year's speech. I know that there is a great deal to be said in favour of minting sovereigns in India on the ground that they will be interchangeable with Great Britain, and they can be imported and exported as the balance of trade necessitates. Of course, if the Indian mints could be thrown open to the unrestricted coinage of gold on terms and conditions such as govern the three Australian branches of the Royal Mint, I have no objection to sovereigns being coined in India. A subsidiary ten-rupee gold coin of Indian design might be minted as a supplementary coin, but if the Royal Mint raises any difficulties to recognising our mints as their branches, we should have a ten-rupee coin and not a fifteen-rupee coin. After all it is a matter of detail, and I leave it to Government to fix a suitable denomination.

"I am sorry I have troubled the Council with this long speech. This Resolution after all asks for no more than what the Fowler Committee recommended and what had received the sanction of Lord Curzon's Government and the then Secretary of State.

"The adoption of the step which I have ventured to urge in this Resolution as in my speech last year will, to use the forcible words of Sir James Meston, 'obliterate all the mistakes, all the inconveniences, all the artificialities, of our present position.' My Lord, I believe that the time is come for taking this final step in the long evolution of our currency system."

GOLD CURRENCY.

[Mr. Dadabhoy.]

The Hon'ble Mr. Dadabhoy : " My Lord, I beg to support the motion. Circumstanced as we are to-day, I vote for a limited gold currency such as is contemplated in this Resolution. I confess, in spite of the effect the currency measures of Government have had in steadying sterling exchange about the point which the legislation of 1893 had in view, I still incline to the view that it has not been an unmixed good to us, that a silver standard with a silver currency, such as we had early in the nineties of the last century, was beneficial to the country, and, further, that the financial difficulties of a falling exchange could have been minimised by a more equitable adjustment of our financial relations with England. But it is an opinion, supported though it was and is by high authorities, which counts for little in the realities of the present situation. For good or for evil, the Government have adopted a gold standard, and the success from their point of view of the operations has been so great as to dissolve all hopes of a reversal of the present currency policy. It is wise therefore to accept the inevitable, and to help the development of a sound scheme of gold currency for the country. Besides, the mighty changes in the Far East might also ultimately result in a further demonetisation of silver there. In such a contingency—likely enough with an awakened and reformed China—it would be idle for India alone to think of maintaining a silver standard with a silver currency. And the ultimate adoption of a gold standard by China would deprive India of all the advantage of the former unrestricted coinage of silver in her mints. Further, the scheme of currency which has been adopted by Government finds its natural development in a gold currency for India. These considerations influence my action to-day, and I support my friend Sir Vithaldas Thackersey's Resolution.

" The scheme which he proposes and which he has ably explained to Hon'ble Members, is a natural development of the currency policy of the Government. We have so long striven to maintain by artificial supports the convertibility of the rupee into sterling currency at 1s. 4d. Sir Vithaldas now suggests a step beyond that. He desires to have some of the artificialities removed and to support the gold standard we have adopted with a limited gold currency. This is undoubtedly a much more natural, effective and harmless course, and its merit will impress all.

" My Lord, Government has not taken seriously to the idea of a gold currency apparently for two reasons—(1) the danger arising from the hoarding habits of the people, and (2) the heavy expense of a gold currency. Sir David Barbour, in his minute of 21st June 1892, made a point of the first. The Herschell Committee and the Fowler Committee could not recommend the immediate introduction of a complete gold currency for similar reasons. The idea of the impracticability of an Indian gold currency was in fact general. The Bombay Gazette, in 1898, observed :

' The difficulties in the way of establishing a gold coinage in India may, for all practical purposes, be regarded as insuperable. Notwithstanding the supplies from the Rand and the potentialities of Klondyke, the gold available for monetary purposes is not equal to the demand.'

" The currency policy of the Government has all through been shaped with a view to avoid the danger noted by Sir David Barbour and recognised by almost all financial authorities. But that danger is, in view of the changed habits of the people, exaggerated. The Finance Minister, in his introductory speech of 1st March current, on the strength of the Comptroller General Mr. Gillan's report on the Paper Currency Department, opines that the people are shaking off their fondness for metallic money and their habit of hoarding, and are taking kindly to paper currency. He points with legitimate satisfaction to the freer use of notes by the people :

' In March 1909 the volume of the note circulation was 45½ crores. In August 1911 it overtopped 60 crores, and it is now rarely under 55 crores.'

" And then, referring to the heavy imports of gold, he observes :

' I am convinced that these masses of imported sovereigns will not disappear into boards or the melting pot ; and that, as the people become more familiar with them, their use as genuine currency will very largely extend. The habit will probably come with a rush, as other changes have come in India.

“ Again :

‘ If the free circulation of gold is not so much nearer as some of us would wish, it is certainly no further off.’

“ The statements of the Hon’ble Sir Guy Fleetwood Wilson are necessarily cautious, but they testify unmistakably to a wholesome change in popular habits which makes the danger of the introduction of a gold currency less acute.

“ The expense of a complete system of gold currency will undoubtedly be enormous. The public have no basis of calculation on such a technical subject, and we have no official estimate of the cost before us to justify an expression of our opinion. The total rupee circulation, according to the estimate of Mr. F. C. Harrison, is 120 crores. But that was several years ago, and there have been additions and withdrawals in the interval. In any view, to replace the silver currency with gold is obviously an ambitious project, and however desirable the consummation might be, I would not support such a proposal, especially in the absence of more definite data and a detailed estimate of the cost. But Sir Vitthaldas suggests for adoption a much more modest and feasible course. Hon’ble Members will be pleased to note that he does not recommend the substitution of the silver currency with a gold currency. He distinctly says he does not want to demonetise silver. In his scheme silver coins will be available as at present. He does not seek to disturb the existing currency arrangements of Government, and the rupee will remain convertible into the sovereign at an exchange of 1s. 4d. as heretofore. The Gold Standard Reserve will not be touched. The fear expressed by Mr. Robert Hardie and other experts before the Currency Committee that with a gold currency India would be exceptionally liable to a heavy drain of gold abroad, because her foreign indebtedness was excessively heavy, would be groundless in the suggested arrangement. The only important change my friend proposes is that people should be free to have private gold coined at their convenience at the Mints, and that the gold which Government does not require for the Gold Standard Reserve may be minted and put into circulation. This course is the least inconvenient conceivable. The gold of the public which is thus coined will flow into circulation, and not be locked up in hoards. The gold currency which will thus be created will be supplementary to the silver currency, and will to some extent ease the stringency of the market. Moreover, there is no reason why the three million pounds worth of gold produced annually in India should leave her shores for being converted into sovereigns. The Indian mints could surely do the work with advantage.

“ About this time last year the Hon’ble Finance Minister very properly condemned silver speculation ; in his Financial Statement this year he has referred to the discomfiture of the speculators with evident satisfaction. Naturally he is nervous about the effect of the operations of the bulls upon the transactions of Government. I do not blame him for that. On the contrary, we are all glad he is so watchful. This is a commendable attitude in the Finance Minister. But, instead of depending upon uncertain circumstances for an avoidance of the difficulties created by silver speculations, I humbly submit it will be far more satisfactory for Government to discourage such speculation by the introduction of a gold currency on the lines suggested by the Hon’ble Sir Vitthaldas. That is an additional and cogent reason why the Resolution should be adopted.

“ The only difficulty I apprehend is about the unpopularity of a gold coin of small size. Sovereigns would be decidedly preferable. But Sir Vitthaldas rightly leaves the question of the denomination of the coin in the hands of Government.

“ I support the Resolution. ”

The Hon’ble Mr. Mudholkar : “ My Lord, I also rise to accord my support to the Resolution moved by Sir Vitthaldas D. Thackersay. To those who are acquainted with the currency controversies of the nineties it would appear curious that the demand for a gold coinage for India should come from Indian members. But there is nothing extraordinary in the position now taken up by them. This Resolution and the other which is to follow it are the necessary and logical outcome of the policy inaugurated in 1893 and developed and carried out in 1899. We are not concerned with discussing the propriety of the great change effected then in our currency system. We are concerned only with the outstanding fact that in view of the decline of the price of silver which began in the early part of the seventies, and under which the price of the rupee went down to nearly 13 pence the Government, anxious to secure stability of exchange, first closed our mints to the free coinage of silver and six years later established the Indian currency on a gold standard basis by fixing a statutory value of 16 pence for the rupee. The token value of the rupee is thus about 83 per cent. more than its intrinsic value. Whatever its effect on the value of the silver savings of the people in the burden of debts and taxes and on Indian industries and exports, a revolution has been effected in our currency. Our chief circulating medium, the rupee, is a token coin and nothing more. The question arises, is this a desirable state of things? If our currency system is based on a gold standard, the only logical and safe course to adopt is to have gold coins and to provide for the coinage of gold. Under the new system the English sovereign is legal tender, but there is no provision for the coinage of gold in Indian mints. This state of things is certainly not in accordance with the views and objects under which the policy of 1899 was adopted. Sir Clinton Dawkins, Finance Member of the Government of India, in explaining the position of the Government in the Financial Statement for 1900-01, stated :

‘It has been decided to constitute a branch of the Royal Mint at the Bombay Mint for the coinage of gold. The terms of the proclamation to be issued under the Imperial Coinage Act have been settled, and we are merely waiting now until the Royal Mint has satisfied itself as regards the Mint premises and appliances in Bombay. A representative of the Royal Mint is starting this week for Bombay to report. The gold from the Mysore mines is indeed already reaching us in anticipation of coinage, and we count upon receiving an annual increment to our stock of gold of from 1½ to 2 millions from this source.’

‘It is thus clear what the real scope of the policy adopted in 1899 was. Why the action which had been decided upon was abandoned we do not know. The immediate establishment of a complete system of gold currency sufficient to meet the demands of the country was not thought practicable then or can be considered so now. But, as our currency is based on a gold standard, the obvious course would seem to be to provide for the coinage of gold. I should not be understood as advocating a diversion of the gold standard reserve to this purpose. Why a portion of it may not be so applied is a matter worthy of consideration ; but that is not necessary to be discussed just now. What is to be borne in mind is that a beginning in the coining of gold is necessary and the Government might well accept the very cautious suggestion made by the Hon’ble Sir Vithaldas. Sir James Meston, in his speech delivered on the 27th of March last year, advanced some arguments in support of the Government’s policy of keeping the gold standard reserve in London :—

‘What we do is to maintain the value of the rupee by keeping the gold where gold is most wanted and is likely to be most useful to us. Now’ (I would ask the Council to mark these words) ‘if gold were effectively wanted in India, that is, if India could keep gold in circulation and export gold privately in large quantity when exchange threatens to fall, then in those circumstances our duty would be accomplished and our task would be lightened. But we know that these circumstances do not obtain. We have not yet a substantial gold circulation in India.’

“Now, my Lord, is it the fault of the country that there is not any substantial circulation of gold coins in India? It cannot be disputed that when there is any considerable amount required for payment or transport, gold is often preferred to silver. My Lord, there is one very important consideration which demands the action now suggested. If the stability of exchange justified the adoption of the new system, the necessity for a stability of the value of the rupee in relation to other commodities demands that the gold basis and gold standard should be more than a name. When the mints were opened to the free coinage of silver there was a self-adjusting process automatically as it were regulating the number of rupees in circulation. But what has been the policy since 1893? In the decade ending with 1884, the value of new rupees coined was annually about six crores. In the nine years following it was 8·3 crores. Between 1900—1908 over a hundred crores were coined, the average for the first five years being 8·3 and for the last three years 20·7. Such fluctuations in the currency must necessarily produce fluctuations in prices. The situation is complicated by the fact that the token value of the rupee has no relation to the value of the metal. The existence of a gold currency would certainly obviate fluctuations or uncertainties.

“The merit of the proposal is that it does not lay any claim to originality. It only asks the Government to take the action which was resolved upon in 1900.”

The Hon'ble Mr. Gokhale: “My Lord, I beg to support this Resolution. My Hon'ble friend Sir Vithaldas Thackersey has referred to certain remarks which I had made on this subject in this Council a few years ago, and he has invited me to-day to develop my view still further. I do not know that there is much to develop, but I will briefly state what I think of one aspect—an important aspect—of the matter. In dealing with the question of high prices in 1908-1909 I had to give some thought to this question of the coinage of rupees, and this was how I expressed my views on the occasion:

‘It seems to me that the only way now out of our difficulties is to follow the example of France and the United States, and while admitting the rupee to unlimited tender, stop the coinage of new rupees and coin gold pieces instead. Of course I express this opinion with great diffidence, for there are serious considerations on the other side and the whole subject is enveloped in great obscurity. But I fear that the present half-way house will not do, and unless we place our currency on an automatic and self-adjusting basis, the clouds that are already overhead will thicken and not roll away.’

“The clouds that I specially referred to were clouds of high prices and also of certain apprehensions in connexion with the adequacy or otherwise of our gold standard reserve to maintain the level of exchange. My Lord, so far as the question of prices is concerned, that is a matter which is under some sort of inquiry at present, and I do not therefore want to go into it at any length. The fact that there were no additions made during the last three years to our total silver currency has undoubtedly tended to ease the situation as regards prices. But if we are again on the eve of large additions to our silver currency, I fear the question will be further complicated and the complications might possibly grow most serious. The view that I take of this matter is briefly this. The quantitative theory of money, as every student of political economy knows, holds good in the case of backward countries like India much more than in the case of advanced countries which have a highly developed system of credit instruments. Now, in that view of things, prices are a function, to use a mathematical phrase, of three variables; they depend upon three factors—the volume of currency, the supply of commodities, and the demand for commodities. Any two factors being the same, they vary with the third factor, either directly or inversely, as the relation may be. For instance, they vary directly with the volume of currency; they also vary directly with the demand for commodities; and they vary inversely with the supply of commodities. Now, assuming for the moment that the demand and supply continue normal, prices will vary according to the volume of currency. Of course it takes a fairly long period for these adjustments to take place, but I am stating only the tendency of things. Whether the total volume of currency that exists in circulation at any particular moment is adequate or otherwise depends upon a number of considerations, and the demands of new industrial developments in the country increases in production, increased facilities for exchange and various other factors of that kind. But I am not going into that just now; I am simply considering the single phenomenon of prices in relation to the volume of currency, leaving everything else out as normal. Now, what is the difference if you have an automatic self-adjusting currency such as we may have with gold or we had with silver before the year 1893, and the kind of artificial currency that we have at present? Situated as India is, you will always require, to meet the demands of trade, the coinage of a certain number of gold or silver pieces, as the case may be, during the export season, that is for six months in the year. When the export season is brisk money has to be sent into the interior to purchase commodities. That is a factor common to both situations whether you have an artificial automatic gold currency as now or a silver currency. But the difference is this. During the remaining six months of the slack season there is undoubtedly experienced a redundancy of currency, and under a self-adjusting automatic system there are three outlets for this redundancy to work itself off. The coins that are superfluous may either come back to the banks and to the coffers of Government; or they may be exported, or they may be melted by people for purposes of consumption for other wants. But where you have no self-adjusting and automatic currency where the coin is an artificial token of currency such as our rupee is at the present moment, two out of three of these outlets are stopped. You cannot export the rupee, without heavy loss, you cannot melt the rupee without heavy loss, and consequently the extra coins must return to the banks and the coffers of Government, or they must be absorbed by the people. In the latter case, the situation is like that of a soil which is water-logged, which has no efficient drainage, and the moisture from which cannot be removed. In this country the facilities for banking are very inadequate, and therefore our money does not swiftly flow back to the banks or Government treasuries. Consequently the extra money that is sent in to the interior often gathers here and there like pools of water, turning the whole soil into a marsh. I believe the fact cannot be gainsaid that the stopping of two outlets out of three tends to raise prices by making the volume of currency redundant. If we had a gold currency in place of the present artificial silver currency, when there is a redundancy, the people could re-melt gold coins into bullion or export gold coins, without loss; but the rupee being what it is the people cannot melt or export it, because of the difference between its token and intrinsic values, and every rupee coined remains as a net addition to the currency. It has been estimated that an average of about three crores of rupees used to be melted annually by the people under the old system for purposes of ornaments, etc. Where the cost of carrying bullion from the ports into the interior exceeded the slight loss that was incurred by melting rupees people, melted rupees. And the present disability will remain as long as our currency remains artificial. As a matter of fact, those who suggested that our currency should be placed on its present basis had foreseen this, and they had recommended that the present should only be a temporary arrangement. The Fowler Committee and other authorities have advocated a gold standard and a gold currency, not a silver currency, as the permanent arrangement for this country. The time has come when we should consider whether we should not enter on the next stage of our currency policy and go in for the coinage of gold pieces, admitting silver, however, for the present to unlimited legal tender. But a time must come when silver will have to be restricted in amount as legal tender, and gold will then have to be the principal coin of the country. My Lord, I support this Resolution.

• GOLD CURRENCY.

[Mr. Gokhale ; Sir Guy Fleetwood Wilson.]

The Hon'ble Sir Guy Fleetwood Wilson : Sir Vithaldas has dealt with consummate ability with a question of first class importance. I am quite sure that his speech has been listened to by every one in the Council, as it certainly has been listened to by me, with the very greatest interest.

"Both in regard to this Resolution and the second Resolution which stands in his name, Sir Vithaldas, it will be realised, has a great advantage over me. He does not speak in the name of a Government; he does not speak even in the name of any large financial corporation. He may be voicing the opinion of many others, but he speaks for himself and for himself alone. This of course enables him to speak with absolute freedom and without any reserve.

"My own position is the exact opposite. On all financial questions, but more especially on the two questions which the Hon'ble Member has raised, I can only speak as a member of the Government of India, and I have naturally, and quite properly, to speak with considerable reserve, as I have to consider, not only the opinion and responsibility of the Government of India as a whole, but also the responsibility of the Secretary of State in Council.

GOLD CURRENCY.[Sir Guy Fleetwood Wilson.]

" I mention this because I think the point is sometimes lost sight of and it is not always remembered that if a Finance Minister speaks with considerable caution and is not so ready to pledge himself as some people would wish, his attitude is influenced not by any desire to escape responsibility and certainly not from any disinclination to be absolutely frank with this Council, but by a proper consciousness that he is neither empowered nor entitled to speak with absolute freedom.

" My Hon'ble friend Sir Vithaldas Thackersey has given the Council a most interesting speech on a subject which he has made particularly his own. The Resolution which he has moved is intended, I take it, partly to focus the discussions on this important subject, and partly to jog the memory of Government. I wish to assure him at the outset that the matter has been constantly in our thoughts since I gave him my promise a year ago to renew the consideration of the scheme which Sir Vithaldas pressed with his usual ability and moderation upon the Government of India.

" The interval which has elapsed since the question of coining gold was last before this Council has not been time lost. The ball which Sir Vithaldas set rolling has been in vigorous play throughout the year. No subject of a purely financial character has, in my time, attracted so much attention or so much skilled criticism. It has been thoroughly ventilated in the public Press, both in England and in India; the views of all classes interested in the subject have been received by Government; and every phase of it has been examined in full and free informal discussion. What I propose to do to-day, in answering my Hon'ble friend, is to review as briefly as possible the opinions that we have collected; to examine the main arguments for and against the coinage of gold; and to remove some of the misconceptions which have grown up round the subject. As at present situated I cannot do more, for we have still to obtain the opinions and the orders of our final authority, the Secretary of State; but I am sure that, in their responsible task of deciding the issues which we are placing before them, the Secretary of State for India and his advisers will be greatly helped by the proceedings of to-day. The proposal which my Hon'ble friend wishes us to revive is that which the Indian Currency Commission of 1898 recommended as part of the machinery for the maintenance of our gold standard. I need not quote the precise words of the Committee. They will be found in paragraph 51 of the report and are familiar to all students of the subject. The proposal in brief was that the Indian mints should be thrown open to the unrestricted coinage of gold on terms and conditions such as govern the three Australian branches of the Royal Mint. This proposal was cordially accepted by the Government of India and, as Sir Vithaldas reminded us a year ago, steps were taken to give effect to it. Our preparations, however, came to an end somewhat suddenly in 1902. There had been much discussion on technical details; and while time was passing, the agents for the Kolar Gold Mines had concluded arrangements for the disposal of their gold in England. The Government of the day were doubtful whether it was prudent to pursue the scheme in the absence of any steady supply of local gold; and the treasury at Home were disposed to advise against it in the belief that India would obtain all the gold it required through the ordinary channels of import. The question was thus laid aside in 1902. No definite reasons were given at the time so far as I can ascertain; but the reasons were those which I have now briefly described, and no other.

" During the last ten years, spasmodic suggestions had been made for reviving the proposal; but it was not until my friend's Resolution of last year that the Government of India were formally moved to review the situation and consider the propriety of reverting to the policy recommended by Sir Henry Fowler's Committee. When we went thoroughly into the subject, as I promised Sir Vithaldas that we should do, it seemed to us that there had been such a change of conditions as would fully justify us in reviving the question, and not in treating it as a subject which had been laid aside for good in 1902.

[Sir Guy Fleetwood Wilson.]

"Hon'ble gentlemen will pardon me for not following them into the difficult and very large question of the redundant rupee and the influence of currency on prices. It is true that we get no gold of Indian production, simply because we can do nothing with it if it is offered to us. It is also true that sovereigns still come in freely by trade channels when the balance of international exchange is in our favour. But in other respects the position has altered greatly in the last decade. Our currency system has been through the fiery trial of 1907-1908, and the need for strengthening our gold holdings has been brought home to us. Also, to the mind of many observers, what I may call the currency habits of the people seem to be changing. Gold is being more freely taken in payment for agricultural produce. There may be no striking increase in the active circulation of gold, but it is certainly becoming more familiar and is being more readily accepted. Rupees, as many believe, are being replaced by gold in hoards. Our note circulation is also making great strides. Its rapid increase, specially since the notes of the lower denominations were made universal, goes far to indicate that the people of this country are ready for a handier form of currency than silver and for a higher unit than the rupee. All these changes in India justify us in considering once again whether we should not embark on the coinage of gold. What particular coin we should manufacture is perhaps a matter of detail rather than of principle; some authorities would like to see a distinctive Indian coin, like the gold mohur or pagoda; others regard this suggestion as an antiquarian rather than of practical value, and would like to see the Indian sovereign or a ten-rupee gold piece; others again would be content if our mints were empowered to manufacture the ordinary sovereigns with which we are all familiar. I think myself that the balance of advantage lies in the third course; it gives us the coin which my esteemed friend, Sir Shapurji Broacha, has so happily described as the cement of the empire; and it simplifies immensely the issue of our gold in international trade. For the purpose of discussion then, I assume that we shall, at the outset at least, coin sovereigns if we are allowed to coin gold at all. The proposal before us is thus in its simplest form, that one of our Indian mints should be opened to the free coinage of the sovereign on terms and conditions similar to those which control the mints in Australia and Canada.

"Now, since the debate of last year, this proposal, simple though it is, has been subjected to considerable misrepresentations. It has been suggested, for example, that the scheme contemplates a large loan by us for the purchase of gold; that we should force gold upon an unwilling people on an enormous scale; and that we should thereby produce, as I think we should certainly do, a serious fall in the value of silver and considerable hardship to the poorer classes in India. It is also suggested that, between buying gold and paying interest on our coinage loans, we should be throwing away large sums of money which are required for education, and for the extension of railways and irrigation. Taxation would be multiplied; the gold would disappear as soon as we coined it; and our exchange position would be as bad as ever. The Hon'ble Sir Vithaldas has repudiated this description of his proposal with some warmth, and I entirely sympathise with him. No such proposal was ever dreamt of by any sane and responsible man in this country. There has never been any intention of borrowing or of buying gold, or of forcing it upon the people or of coining a single sovereign except from bullion which is brought to us voluntarily for the purpose. The proposal, which I have already described as simple and unambiguous, is merely to open a gold mint on a small scale with a gold refinery attached to it, so that we may be able to handle either raw gold from the mines, or ornaments and other alloys that may be offered to us.

"This being the proposal which Sir Vithaldas had, I think, in mind, and which was also in my mind when I promised to consider it, let us examine the arguments of honest critics for and against it. I take first the arguments against it. They are numerous; but I think they may be suitably classified into three sets of objections, namely, that a gold coinage is unnecessary; that it would be ineffective in support of exchange; and that it would be wasteful or even harmful. The first of these objections is the argument that gold already comes in freely from Australia, Egypt and elsewhere, and that there is no necessity for adding to it in this country. Support is given to this objection by the very large accumulation of sovereigns which have grown up in our currency reserve during the last year and a half of busy trade. It is also argued that with a sufficiently strong gold reserve in London and a sufficiently strong silver reserve in India, we could get along without a visible gold currency at all. This view is taken by many who believe that the scheme known as the Lindsay scheme, after the late Mr. A. M. Lindsay, the distinguished economist and banker of Calcutta, is the solution for all currency difficulties in a silver-using country. I think that these objections merit the most careful consideration. I do not say that they are insuperable. But they are reasonable and have the weight of high authority behind them.

GOLD CURRENCY.

[Sir Guy Fleetwood Wilson.]

"The second set of objections is based upon the view that a gold coinage would have no influence in supporting exchange for the simple reason that, at a time of crisis, the sovereign would disappear. It would stand at a high premium, and there will be no persuading the people to release their hoardings of it for the purposes of export. Until the sovereign becomes much more familiar and enters much more largely into active circulation, I think this objection is, largely true. The question is whether it is advisable to take means to increase the circulation in order to prevent the wholesale disappearance of the sovereign when exchange shows signs of weakness.

"The third and most uncompromising group of objections to our gold currency comes from those who consider that the minting of gold in India would be wasteful, expensive and harmful. Many competent observers consider that it would be wasteful because our new sovereigns would be melted or would disappear into hoards as soon as they are issued. I do not think my Hon'ble friend shares that view, and I believe that experience alone will prove its truth or its falsehood. I would only remark that the hoarding and the melting of rupees was a constant trouble in the days when our mints were open to silver. And I personally believe that, if sovereigns can be made to replace silver or ornaments in the hoards of the people, we shall have advanced a decided step in the direction not only of greater prosperity but of greater stability in our exchange affairs. Some of our other critics, however, urge that the sovereign is an expensive coin, because we get no profits from it, such as we do from the rupee, and because we should have to bear the loss of wear and tear. To this objection I cannot attach very much importance, knowing, as I do know, the comparatively small cost at which the gold currency of the United Kingdom was rehabilitated by the late Lord Goschen. The last argument in this group to which I need refer is the suggestion that our gold coinage would draw off a larger quantity of gold from the European markets than India obtains at present, and that consequently business and trade would suffer in the gold-using countries. This argument I must admit to be one of the most serious in the whole controversy; because, if it is true, it sets the whole of the interests of the gold-using countries against our proposal. It is a matter on which various opinions may honestly be held whether the opening of the mint to gold would in practice have the effect of enlarging our gold imports. It would certainly have the effect of bringing in a larger quantity of bullion and a smaller quantity of sovereigns if there were a marginal profit on the former; but would it have the effect of increasing the aggregate quantity of gold of all sorts which comes in to adjust the balance of trade?

"I have now stated with perfect frankness the arguments against the gold coinage for India. The arguments for such a coinage are in my Hon'ble friend's mind, and some of them have been skilfully displayed in his opening speech. As I understand the position, he believes that the coinage of gold would enable large quantities of bullion which are now in the country to be converted into legal tender. He believes that, with greater familiarity, the sovereigns would pass more freely into active circulation. He hopes and I also

GOLD CURRENCY; GOLD STANDARD RESERVE.

[Sir Guy Fleetwood Wilson; Sir Vithaldas Thackersey; the President.]

sincerely hope, that, if this consummation is reached, it would diminish the pressure upon us for the coinage of fresh rupees and simplify our exchange difficulties. These in their turn are weighty considerations and they are considerations which affect the practical outlook of the business man, who does not delude himself into the idea that the mere opening of the mints to gold would immediately provide a door for the export of superfluous currency in the form of sovereigns when exchange goes against us. I do not myself see any near prospects of that measure of assistance; but I readily admit that the coinage of gold, if it leads to a substantial and growing increase of the active circulation, will carry us some way in that direction, and consequently in the direction of greater security and of greater stability.

"I have now, as I undertook to do, laid before the Council the pros and cons of this important and attractive subject. As I explained, I can at the moment do no more; because the whole question, with the views of the Government of India upon it, awaits the final decision of the Secretary of State.

"If his decision should meet the wishes of my Hon'ble friend, no one will be more gratified than the present Finance Minister."

The Hon'ble Sir Vithaldas Thackersey : "My Lord, I must recognize that the reply of the Hon'ble Finance Member is very satisfactory; and I may say that he has said more in support, he has brought forward more cogent arguments in support, of opening the mints to the free coining of gold, than I was able to do in my opening speech. I am perfectly satisfied with his assurance that he is doing his best to get the sanction of the Secretary of State, and therefore, with Your Lordship's permission, I beg to withdraw my motion for the present."

GOLD STANDARD RESERVE.

The Hon'ble Sir Vithaldas Thackersey then moved the further Resolution :

"That this Council recommends to the Governor General in Council that a substantial portion of the Gold Standard Reserve be held in gold in India."

He said :

"My Lord, this question has been threshed out so often in the past that I will not attempt to weary the Council with any lengthy remarks on this subject. All the Chambers of Commerce have times out of number demanded that our Gold Standard Reserve should be held in gold in India. They have more than once pointed out the danger of either diverting any amount of this to any other purpose or to investing it permanently in gold securities. They have further pointed out that, in case of panic or war, the gold may not be available to us when we badly want it, and in that case it might be difficult, if not absolutely impossible, for India to maintain a Gold Standard. In these days, when the sensitiveness of the money market has become proverbial, it is easily conceivable how great will be the loss that the people of this country would suffer, and to what great extent the prestige of Government would be lessened, if there was the slightest reason to doubt that the gold in the Gold Standard Reserve may not be readily available to maintain the exchange. All the labour of years in creating confidence in the outside world will be lost in a second. And for what purpose is all this risk incurred? My friend the Hon'ble Sir James Meston, who has always proved himself a capable and sound financier, and whose elevation to the Lieutenant-Governorship of the United Provinces is a matter of deep gratification to all of us, presented last year to this Council what he called the other side of the shield. He said that gold was located in London to simplify the duty of the Government of India in maintaining the gold value of the rupee, as when required to support our exchanges it would be immediately available. It had been mentioned, moreover, in the reply from the Government of India to the Bombay Chamber of Commerce in May 1907 that holding liquid gold in India would entail loss of interest which we at present earn by investment in gold securities. I will, therefore, with Your Lordship's permission, deal also with this argument. The reply to the first argument is that the location of gold in India will not at all make the duty of the Government of India any more difficult in maintaining the gold value of the rupee. The call on this reserve is made only when it is required for export, and it will be as easy for the Government of India to deliver gold in India to those who want it in exchange for rupees as it is easy for the Secretary of State to deliver gold in London. If gold is required by the Secretary of State when he cannot sell Council Bills, it can be exported almost immediately. As to the second argument about earning interest, I need only repeat what has been so often and so unanimously said by all the Chambers of Commerce in India and by others who can speak with authority on this subject, that Government are taking a very great risk by this procedure. So long as things move smoothly and no storm breaks, this kind of investment may bring us some income; but it must not be forgotten, as the Bombay Chamber of Commerce wrote to Government in 1907, that the Gold Standard Reserve is being maintained for the sake of serious emergencies, and that, should such emergencies arise, it might very easily happen that it will be extremely difficult to realise rapidly the securities in England. Indeed, the state of the money market brought about by the very emergency would probably be considerably aggravated if it entailed the realising of a large quantity of British securities, whereas if the reserve was a metallic one the position could be at once relieved. My Lord, India is not the only country which has to maintain a metallic reserve of gold. The United States Treasury has the largest stock of gold held by any country in the world. On 31st December 1910, it amounted to over 235 millions sterling—over eleven times our Gold Standard Reserve. Does the United States Government invest it in gilt-edged securities? In the same way France and Russia have large Gold Reserves—certainly many times more than our reserve. Why do they not invest them? They rightly realise that their credit and honour and existence stand upon the Gold Reserve, and they know that it may be required at any time in an emergency. I wish to speak with great respect of the Secretary of State's advisers. They are eminent and honourable men, but it is only necessary to mention the positions they occupy in the world of London finance to show that, human nature being what it is, they cannot be expected to be wholly free from a certain bias. Lord Inchcape is a Director of the National Provincial Bank of England—a very powerful Bank. Sir Felix Schuster, Baronet, is a Director of the German Bank of London, Limited, and also a Governor of the Union of London and Smith's Bank, Limited. Mr. Lawrence Currie is a managing partner in Glyn, Mills and Currie, Limited—a large and powerful private banking house. All these institutions are on the list of approved bankers and private individuals with whom according to the Hon'ble Finance Member all our cash balance is invested in London. Are the financiers of this Government less alert than the Secretary of State's advisers? But, my Lord, against the advice of these three eminent London financiers, the Secretary of State has before him the unanimous recommendation of independent experts well qualified to give sound advice on this subject who constituted the Indian Currency Committee over which Sir Henry Fowler presided. This recommendation was to the effect that any profit made on the coinage of rupees should be kept in gold as a Special Reserve. The Secretary of State is therefore incurring a very grave responsibility in disregarding independent advice.

"But, my Lord, this does not exhaust our cause for complaint. In addition to our Gold Standard Reserve, the Secretary of State has withdrawn 8½ million pounds of our Paper Currency Reserve and many million pounds more out of our Treasury balances over and above his budget requirements. The cash balances in the hands of the Secretary of State in London in January

* GOLD STANDARD RESERVE.

[Sir Vithaldas D. Thackersey.]

1912 amounted to 17½ million pounds sterling, and this year till the 20th instant the Secretary of State has drawn 3½ million pounds in excess of this year's requirements for Home charges, and still we have 10 days to run in this financial year. What is the object in withdrawing such large amounts from India? In reply to the Hon'ble Mr. Armstrong's question in Simla in September last inquiring whether much larger cash balances were now held in the Home Treasury than formerly, and if so, the reasons for this, the Hon'ble Finance Member gave, amongst other explanations, 'the heavy sales of Council Bills and telegraphic transfers in excess of the requirements of the Home Treasury.' My Lord, this explanation explains nothing. It is only a paraphrase of the question. In busy seasons, while India clamours for money, and while the Bank rate of interest on the security of Government paper goes up to 8 per cent per annum, while the industry and commerce of the country suffer by the high rate of interest and sometimes find difficulty in getting money at all, the Secretary of State keeps millions and millions of our cash invested by him at a nominal rate of interest with the London bankers and financiers. A more unsatisfactory policy it is difficult to conceive. If even a portion of the amount lying in London had been available with our bankers here, the present stringency of the money market would not have arisen and the commerce and industry of the country would greatly have benefited. Apart from the interests of commerce and industry, which must be dear to us, is it to the interest of Government itself and to the credit of India that such a monetary stringency should be allowed to happen when we have the means of relieving it? Is it to India's credit that on the security of its own promissory notes the holders should have to pay in the busy season a high rate of 8 to 9 per cent. per annum, which is more than double the rate paid by Government? How can we expect under such circumstances that Government paper should be more popular? In England, every one, from the Chancellor of the Exchequer down to the humble banker and financier, is seriously concerned about the steps to be taken to make the British Consols more popular. At present that is the principal topic in England. We in India export our available capital to London and starve our banking institutions to the detriment of the popularity of our own paper. If means can be adopted by which we can prevent the enormous rise of the rate of interest in the busy season, I am sure, and that is the opinion of many bankers, that the price of Government paper would stand at a much higher figure than now. Apart from this consideration, we have to bear in mind that this periodical tightness of the money market is a great hindrance to our industrial progress. Violent fluctuations are always to be deprecated. In Great Britain, while the Bank rate varies from 3 per cent. to 5 per cent. in the busy season, a difference of 2 per cent., in India it varies from 3 per cent. to 8 per cent., a difference of 5 per cent. I find from the reply to-day that about 2½ per cent. is the average rate of interest with the London financiers.

"My Lord, this craving for India's money in London is so great and the Secretary of State is so much influenced by the London money market that his Council to-day may be said to be one of the biggest financial houses in London. It is impossible to describe the financial operations of the Secretary of State's Council in better words than those used by Lord Morley himself who, on May 10th last, was the principal guest at the annual dinner of the English Association of Bankers. It is a reported speech. He said (after dinner). (This is not an after dinner topic, but I may as well speak of it, if you will allow me.) He said :—

'I think that even many of you, experienced men as you are, will be rather astonished at the magnitude of the India Office figures. The cash balance at the present term is £18,750,000—not rupees, but pounds—and of that £8,350,000 is placed on deposit at 2 to 3 months' credit, and nearly £10,000,000 is lent to first class firms on unimpeachable security from three to five weeks' notice. The maturing and re-lending of these sums cause a cash business which amounts to £60,000,000 a year. There are other details with which I will not burden you, but the India Office is responsible in the year 1910-11 for £160,000,000 (240 crores of rupees). There are other details of further management of accumulated funds of Gold Standard Reserve in this country, which amounts to upwards of £17,000,000, and of Paper Currency Reserve, which amounts to £7,500,000.'

GOLD STANDARD RESERVE.

[Mr. Gokhale ; Mr. Dadabhoy.] [22ND MARCH 1912.]

The Hon'ble Mr. Gokhale : " My Lord, I wish to express my entire concurrence with my Hon'ble friend in all he has said. He has stated the case with that clearness and practical ability which always distinguish his utterances, and I do not think anything more need be added to what he has said. I heartily support his Resolution."

The Hon'ble Mr. Dadabhoy : " My Lord, I cordially support this Resolution. The Hon'ble Sir Vithaldas has very forcibly and lucidly pointed out the injustice that follows to India from the investment of, at a nominal rate of interest, the bulk of the gold of the Gold Standard Reserve, while money is scarce here and the Bank rate of interest upon demand loans reaches at times the high figure of 9 per cent. It is admitted that liquid capital is what is most needed in this country, and one of the principal reasons for the Government anxiety at the falling exchange 20 years ago was that it retarded the flow of sterling capital here. Now that sterling exchange has steadied and Government holds a large amount of cash in the Gold Standard Reserve, much larger than is necessary to ensure success to the currency measures, the request does not appear extravagant that a substantial part of the Reserve should be held in India. The greater portion of the Reserve now helps to ease the stringency of the London market, and obviously such operations are not required for the support of exchange. Why should not then effect be given to the proposal? The industrial and commercial interests of India are a matter of supreme concern to the Government. When therefore it lies in their power to promote them by relieving the stringency of the Indian money market by timely and temporary advances to the banks out of the superfluity of the Gold Standard Reserve, it is only reasonable to expect that Government will listen to our prayer. The Hon'ble mover has drawn our attention to some of the disagreeable features of the present situation, as also to the heavy odds against which we have to fight in inducing a change of policy in respect of the management of the Reserve. We all sincerely hope and trust Government will resist the adverse and interested influences, and do to India that justice which is her due.

" My Lord, the proposal does not involve any serious departure from that cautious policy which has secured to us a steady exchange. The scheme of which the Reserve is an integral part does not require the maintenance of a bigger reserve in London than £5,000,000. The highest figure suggested by experts was £10,000,000. In 1893, when the closure of the Indian mints to the free coinage of silver initiated a new policy of currency reform, the idea of a Gold Standard Reserve was not entertained by Government. In fact, as has been pointed out by many, we had a gold standard years after. The proposals which were ultimately adopted by Government after the failure of the currency legislation of June 1893 to make the rupee convertible at 1s. 4d., had been first made public in 1876 by Mr. A. M. Lindsay, as pointed out by the Hon'ble Finance Minister this morning. After the slump in the sterling value of the rupee laid on the shoulders of this Government extraordinarily heavy financial liabilities, Mr. Ottomar Haupt of Paris, following the recent precedent of Austria-Hungary, suggested in the Financial Times certain relief measures, the principal feature of which was the closure of the mints. Then came the expert Committees, but apparently all to no good purpose. In January 1893, however, the Madras Chamber of Commerce submitted to this Government for consideration Mr. Lindsay's scheme, whereby a gold standard could be adopted without a gold currency by the maintenance in London of a small reserve on the strength of which bills could be drawn upon India. This scheme was finally adopted by Government. It will be noted that in the original scheme a large reserve like the one we now have was not contemplated. The author, Mr. Lindsay, followed Ricardo both as regards the general plan and the amount of reserve. In Scotland and Ireland, where similar exchange difficulties had been experienced in the latter half of the eighteenth century and removed by arrangements with the Bank of England for the maintenance of gold funds, the reserve was never large. The Parliamentary Committee of 1804, consisting of Pitt, Fox, Foster and others, inquired into the whole question of the Irish currency, and recommended the creation of a small gold fund in London for the purpose of assuring fixity to exchange. Two members of the Indian Currency Committee, Lords Farrer and Welby, suggested in an Appendix to the Committee's Report the creation of a Gold Standard Reserve. But a large fund was not contemplated. So far as the legitimate functions of the Reserve were concerned, the consensus of expert opinion, no doubt, was that it should be held in London. But this does not militate against Sir Vithaldas's proposal. The Hon'ble mover does not propose that the whole of the Reserve should be transferred to India. His recommendation of transfer relates only to a substantial portion. And to this there could not be any reasonable objection. The present strength of the Reserve is already superfluous. We do not require such a large gold holding in London for the stability of the sterling exchange. The contingency is extremely unlikely that an adverse exchange would force the hands of the Secretary of State to exhaust the whole of a Reserve of five millions pounds sterling, and would compel this Government to send back the gold belonging to the Reserve transferred here from London according to the suggestion of Sir Vithaldas. Moreover, as a matter of fact, a substantial portion of the Reserve is now employed, as the Hon'ble Member has shown, in financing the London Banks. This is a purpose so obviously extraneous to the central object that the removal of that portion to India would not have the slightest influence, either present or prospective, upon sterling exchange. We do not object to Government putting as much spare cash as it can command to the Reserve. Our only grievance is, although built up at our cost, the country is deprived of the use of the Reserve in times of acute tightness."

GOLD STANDARD RESERVE.

The Hon'ble Sir Guy Fleetwood Wilson : "I congratulate my Hon'ble friend Sir Vithaldas on this second excursion into the regions of pure finance and on the vigour and lucidity with which he has handled a subject of no small intricacy and difficulty. He has, as I have already said, the advantage of me in the freedom with which he can speak on subjects upon which my position, and the position of the Government of India, in relation to the Secretary of State in Council, compels me to caution and even to silence. He must not therefore misjudge me if I cannot follow him over all the field which he has opened for us in the speech to which we have just listened. It would, for example, be wholly out of place for me to discuss his views regarding the financial advisers of the Secretary of State, and the influence which they exercise on the disposition of our Indian resources. The responsibility of the Secretary of State in Council is one and undivided, and I at any rate cannot discuss his policy as if it were the policy of individuals. I can only undertake to place before the Secretary of State the expert financial opinion which the Hon'ble gentleman represents in India, and to ask that it receives due consideration along with the expert opinion which His Lordship obtains in England.

"Nor, even if I had the same freedom as my Hon'ble friend, would it be possible for me in the time at my disposal to examine with sufficient care the wide variety of topics over which he has ranged. Let me take, for example, the question of our high balances. I am quite at one with Sir Vithaldas in holding that high treasury balances, whether held in England or in India, are in ordinary circumstances wrong and wasteful.

"High balances in ordinary circumstances are an indication that we have borrowed more than is actually necessary. But it would require a somewhat detailed analysis to place the Council in a position to judge whether the recent history of our treasury balances justifies this rather severe condemnation. I should have to point out to what extent money has been accumulated in London to meet large payments for the redemption of railway debentures which shortly fall due ; I should have to connect our opium windfall with the India Bills which I hope we are now on the eve of withdrawing ; and I should no doubt have to add a number of other qualifications before I could answer with confidence the point which my Hon'ble friend has taken. Similarly with his arguments in favour of lending out our balances to banks in India ; his is also a question to which there are two sides, and an examination of it would involve a lengthy and probably a somewhat dull dissertation on the metallic basis of credit in our Indian money market. To take only one other instance of the wide range of my friend's speech, I should have to go in some detail into the theory of the convertibility of our currency notes, if I were going to attempt an adequate reply to his suggestion for a wider dispersal of our gold resources as a reserve against our paper currency.

"I must, however, avoid these and other fascinating bye-paths into which the Hon'ble Member invites me to stray. And I must return to the literal phrasing of his motion, namely, that a substantial portion of the Gold Standard Reserve should be held in India. Now, I take it that, if Sir Vithaldas had his own way, he would transfer 10 or 15 millions sterling from London to Calcutta. It would come out in sovereigns, and we should then have to decide whether to keep it in sovereigns or to lend it out, as in London, to the banks and on approved short term securities. My Hon'ble friend has not said definitely which of these two courses he would follow; but from the general tenor of his arguments, I gather that he would not be averse to assisting the industry of India on reasonable terms. He has drawn attention, in the most reasonable and proper manner, to the great fluctuations in the rates of interest in this country, and to the prejudicial effect which these fluctuations must have on trade and business. He believes that a more liberal handling of the Government balances would steady the position; and I may, therefore, for the sake of argument, assume that he would not be unwilling to see our Gold Standard Reserve, or some part of it, lent out on approved security. Now, if this happened, it is quite possible that the market would be materially assisted for the moment; a fillip would be given to business; and for a time the severity of the bank rate might be mitigated. But let us see precisely what this would mean, and what would be the consequence when conditions changed. Our gold would be dissipated; it would have passed not only out of our own hands, but out of the hands of the larger banks, and would have flowed down the infinite number of small channels through which our currency trickles to the millions of producers in the country. So far all has gone well; but a bad year comes—and in India there is a tragic periodicity about bad years—and the whole situation changes; or there is a crisis in international finance, and the markets for our exports are temporarily closed. The occasion would thus present itself for the use of our gold. We should be asked to export it promptly and in large quantities to prevent a wholesale collapse of exchange. But where should we turn for it in response to this demand? We should have to realise our securities; we should have to call it in from the banks. The sovereign would already be, as it always is when the balance of trade is against us, at a premium; it would have practically disappeared from circulation; and large quantities would be obtainable only with the greatest difficulty. By calling in our stock, we should at once raise the premium on gold; we should increase alarm and we should precipitate a panic. The very people on whom we were foreclosing would be those who could worst afford to meet our claims. Exchange would go down with a rush, and commercial disaster might follow. I can imagine no more calamitous position than to have our Gold Standard Reserve, or any substantial part of it, out of our own hands in this country at a time of real difficulty.

"But let us take the other alternative. Let us assume that we are able to resist the desire of the market for our gold, and to maintain it in fluid form. We should then have large quantities of sovereigns shut up in the vaults of Fort William, dormant and inaccessible. In this condition they would remain until required for export in support of exchange. Now, what would happen when they are so required? Presumably, the demands for bills on London would be greater than the supply, and our import merchants would come to us and buy our sovereigns, in order to send them to London in the absence of bills at a reasonable price. They would obtain sovereigns from us; they would then have to arrange for freight; they would have to insure the consignments; and they would have to bear the burden of interest in the interval between the purchase of the gold and its delivery to their creditors in Europe. They would thus pay all expenses of freight, insurance and interest, besides the risk of loss or delay in transit. Would your import merchant prefer this process to the alternative process of coming to our Comptroller General and buying a telegraphic transfer on London, which could be cashed with absolute security by his creditor next day?

GOLD STANDARD RESERVE.

[Sir Guy Fleetwood Wilson; Sir Vithaldas D. Thackersey.]

"I think there is little doubt which of these two alternatives the ordinary business man would prefer. It would almost certainly be the latter; and the latter is precisely what the Government of India offer to the mercantile public under existing arrangements, while the former is what my friend Sir Vithaldas would substitute for it. It seems to me that there is no real comparison between the inconvenience on the one hand of having gold locked up here, six thousand miles from the point where it is wanted and where it can be effectively employed, and the convenience on the other hand of holding a large quantity of gold or securities which presumably closely approach gold in their stability, which we are in a position to sell by cable the moment that it is wanted and at the place where it is going to be used.

"Sir Vithaldas has supported his arguments by a number of subsidiary considerations in favour of moving our gold from London to India. He points out, for example, that other great countries keep large reserves of liquid gold in their strongholds. I am not quite clear of the extent to which he is thinking of gold which is stored by Government to provide for the encashment of convertible notes, and I think it will be found that, in the countries which he mentions, a considerable proportion of their holdings is necessitated by the size of their paper currency. He also urges that our gold would be useless to us in London in the event of war or panic. If by panic he means an acute financial crisis, I can only repeat what I have said before in another connection, that the Secretary of State has deliberately accepted full responsibility for making the reserve available when required for the purpose for which it was created. In the event of war, I do not see how our gold would be in any degree more useful in India than in London. If the trouble were in this country, we should have all the anxiety and expense of protecting it. If the war were in Europe, it might be perfectly impossible to ship gold from India to the European markets, and it would remain useless in our hands. Finally, Sir Vithaldas has alluded to the feeling that the gold reserve is our own money and that, as a matter of national pride, it should be in our own country as a visible possession. I know that such a sentiment exists, and I am far from despising sentiment even in financial matters; but I cannot seriously think that it should be weighed for a moment against the practical convenience and value of holding our gold in the place where it can best serve the interests of India. It is for this reason that I much regret that I am unable to accept the Hon'ble Member's motion."

The Hon'ble Sir Vithaldas D. Thackersey: "My Lord, I very much regret that Government are not willing to accept my Resolution. I shall not long detain the Council in reply to the several arguments advanced by the Hon'ble Finance Member, because the impression left on my mind at the end of his speech was, that the arguments he advanced against the proposition were so weak that I need not go into the details of them. I only therefore touch two or three points in his speech. He said that the policy that was followed in London was the policy of the Secretary of State in Council and not of individual members. I did not at all say in my speech that it was not so. The policy, of course, is the Secretary of State's policy; but what I pointed out was that the Secretary of State was advised by people who had also other than India's interests to guard. The statement* which the Hon'ble Member has placed before us in reply to my Hon'ble friend Mr. Armstrong's question clearly confirms my contention. It shows that over 10½ million pounds sterling have been lent to approvers, not necessarily joint stock banks, and that about 3½ millions have been deposited with approved banks. On 3 out of the 6 approved banks as mentioned in the statement the

GOLD STANDARD RESERVE.

[Sir Vithaldas D. Thackersey.] [22ND MARCH 1912.]

Secretary of State's advisers sit as Directors or as Governors. I leave it to the Council to judge whether a man can act in two positions very justifiably. If we put the managers of the Bank of Bombay and the Bank of Bengal and the Bank of Madras on Your Lordship's Council, I am quite sure they will give strong reasons why our money should be brought here, and they will point out to the Hon'ble the Finance Member excellent securities on which those funds can be lent. I have not the slightest doubt that our money in England is being lent on good securities; but I say that we can lend money also on good securities in India with great advantage to ourselves. I will just read a few lines, from a report published in the Times of India, of an incident during an instructive discussion of Indian commerce following a well supported dinner of the London Chamber of Commerce at the Trocadero in February last, which shows how things move :

' Soon after we had a somewhat amusing reminder that, in monetary matters at least, the sense of reciprocal obligation to India is not so strong as it might be on the part of those who represent city banking interests on the India Council. Giving as a reason for the inadequacy of the flow of British capital into India, the existence even now of the old prejudices having their origin in the instability of the rupee, Sir Felix Schuster, member of the Secretary of State's Council, said that the duty of Government was to support the policy their predecessors laid down by building up their currency reserves in times of prosperity, so that exchange might stand severe tests such as that through which it passed two or three years ago. Someone (I think it was Mr. G. W. R. Forrest) called out, "yes, build up the gold reserve in India." The shaft went home, and Sir Felix, thrown off his habitual guard, made a remark he would much rather have left unsaid, as was clear from the incompleteness of his sentence : ' Not only in India,' he retorted, ' but on our side as well ; we can do with it here, and I sometimes wonder ' (he left the sentence incomplete).

" My Lord, we say we can do with it here to the greater advantage of India.

" Then the second point in the Hon'ble Member's speech was that if we brought all our gold to India, when the balance of trade went against us, we should have to export gold, and that would be a great inconvenience to merchants. I admit the cogency of the argument so far, but, during the last 11 or 12 years, how many times have we had to send gold to England? It was only in one year, in 1908, and every other year we have been accumulating our gold standard reserve. Only once in 11 or 12 years if there is any occasion for merchants to export gold, that cannot be called any great inconvenience compared with the great benefit which India would derive with a gold reserve here. Then he said that merchants would prefer telegraphic transfers instead of exporting gold. I did not propose that we should export gold always. In the usual way the Secretary of State would draw on India his Council Bills, and the money necessary to be sent out to England for home charges would be drawn in the usual way, and for that purpose you have not to export gold. It is only when the balance of trade goes against us that the occasion will arise, and that is very rarely, say once in 15 or 20 years. Again, we are told that the Secretary of State has taken full responsibility for the present policy. Well, that does not satisfy us. Whoever may take the full responsibility, the everyday loss is ours, and we are not quite satisfied by simply an assertion that those who manage our currency and our reserve, assure us that in time of war or emergency our gold will be made available. We say we want it here, it is our gold, and it ought to remain here. I have already pointed out in my speech that all civilized countries in the world have gold reserves, and I will give you a few figures : United States treasury 233 million pounds, Russia 130 million pounds, France 131 million pounds, Australia 55 million pounds, Bank of England 31 million pounds, and so on. The real reason is that the gold reserve in the London Bank is so low that they cannot afford to send our gold here. We must recognise this ; it is no use arguing against facts. The London gold reserve is only 31 million pounds, and the London financiers fear that they might be inconvenienced. My personal opinion is that they won't feel the pinch, if we withdraw our gold gradually. At the same time they will feel the pinch more if we have to withdraw our gold in times of emergency, and it is for England's sake also that our gold should be here. At least twice or thrice, the Bank of England had to go to France for gold. Well, I think it would increase the prestige of Great Britain to come to India for gold rather than to go to France or any other foreign country for gold in times of emergency. My Lord, although Government may not be able to accept this proposition as a whole, I hope the Government of India will take seriously into consideration the position in which the industries are placed in India in the busy season owing to the rise in the rate of interest. I have already said that the Bank rate goes up to 8 or 9 per cent. I will read to you a paragraph from the speech of the Hon'ble Sir James Begbie, who is the senior banker in India, and whose excellent work has been recognised by Government only the other day by honouring him. He said :

' You also know that as regularly as one season succeeds another, Bank rate rises from the minimum in the monsoon months to its maximum in the winter and spring months, and that the maximum may be anything from seven to nine per cent., nine per cent. being the highest point for a good many years past. It is inevitable under conditions in India that this regular waxing and waning of Bank rate should occur, but is it inevitable that the movement should be so extreme and especially that the rate should be so constantly forced to such high levels? I think not. The greatest factor in forcing up the rate is the great volume of money that is taken off the market by Government and locked away in the Treasury vaults. That money is released in bulk only through payments for Council bills, that is, after the public have either voluntarily sold their produce for export or been obliged to part with it under the pressure of a high Bank rate as frequently happens.'

"I hope the Government of India will seriously consider this position, and devise some policy by which the Bank rate may not go so high. Even our high cash balance in India might be utilized for the purpose, but I think the rate of interest in India ought not to rise above $5\frac{1}{2}$ or 6 per cent.

"My Lord, I think the question is of such great importance that I hope the Council will accept my Resolution."

INDIAN COMPANIES BILL.

The Hon'ble Mr. Clark : "Sir, I move for leave to introduce a Bill to consolidate and amend the law relating to trading companies and other associations.

"Government, Sir, hold that the time is now ripe for a further revision and consolidation of company legislation in this country. The existing law on the subject in India is contained in the Indian Companies Act of 1882, which was modelled on the English law in force in 1877. Since 1882, the Indian law has been added to by four amending Acts dealing with matters of relatively minor importance, while the substantial additions which have been made to the English law by a long series of Acts passed between 1879 and 1908 have not, with the exception of the matters contained in the four amending measures to which I have just referred, found a place in the Indian law. In England, since 1882, there have been no less than thirteen amending Acts, culminating in 1907 with a comprehensive amending Act based on the recommendations of a strong Committee among the members of which were some of the most eminent company lawyers of the day. This Act was followed by the Companies Consolidation Act of 1908, which consolidated the English law into a convenient code. The differences which now consequently exist between the Indian and the English law, in themselves form strong ground for legislation. Ever since we have had any company legislation in India, the advantages of having our company law as similar as possible to the English law has been recognised by the Indian Legislature. The Indian Act of 1857 was a reproduction of the English Joint Stock Companies Act of 19 and 20 Victoria. The Indian Act of 1866 copied the English Act of 1862; and the Indian Act of 1882 (the present Act) followed, as I have already said, the additions made in the English law up to 1877. The advantages of such assimilation are evident. The English law has been studied and commented on comprehensively, and in adopting it, we also inherit the wisdom of the many learned persons who have devoted their time to its exposition; and when it is necessary to carry a case up to the Privy Council, it is manifestly convenient that the law which is to be argued in England should be substantially the same as the English law. Assimilation of the law also tends to produce a feeling of greater security in the breast of the British investor whose capital we wish to attract to this country. As the Board of Trade pointed out in a Memorandum on the Company Laws of the Empire laid before the Imperial Conference of 1907, assimilation 'would tend to increase the confidence of the home investor in companies registered in India and in the Colonies, and the result might well be a greater willingness on the part of capital from home to flow into Indian and Colonial undertakings and enterprises.'

"Since 1882, there has been a great increase in the number of joint stock companies in India. In 1885-86, there were only 757 companies at work with a paid up capital of 21 crores. In 1910-11, there were 2,251 companies with a paid up capital of 64 crores; in other words, the number of companies and their paid up capital has trebled since the legislation of 1882 came into force. I think it will be generally recognised that with this great increase in business, with the evidence before us of the frequent amendments in company legislation which it has been found necessary to make in England, Government cannot be held to have been premature in having taken up the amendment of the company law of India.

"From what I have said, Hon'ble Members will have anticipated that the Bill follows very closely the provisions of the English Act of 1908. We have not only adopted its principles but have aimed at reproducing as far as possible its language and arrangement. We have, however, preserved the provisions of the Indian Act in certain instances where the law of this country can claim to be more advanced than its elder sister, and we have added two entirely new provisions of some importance to which I shall presently refer.

COMPANIES.

"The Government of India took up the matter in 1909 and a circular letter was addressed to all Local Governments and Administrations asking for their opinions as to the suitability of the provisions of the English Act for adoption in India. The proposal to legislate has met with practically unanimous support from the authorities consulted. Such criticisms as have been made have been mostly in the direction of suggesting that the English law does not go far enough and that Government should take greater powers of control. A somewhat different point of view has been put forward by the Bengal Chamber of Commerce, and it is one which deserves careful consideration. The Committee of the Bengal Chamber suggest that it is questionable whether such an elaborate procedure as is prescribed by the Act of 1908 is necessary or desirable in India, and they thought that in the Indian Bill it should be possible to omit some of the details prescribed in the English Act. The Committee, however, preferred not to make any definite proposals as to matters which might be omitted until they had seen the actual Bill. The Government of India recognise the importance of the point, but it has seemed better to leave the question over until they have received the detailed suggestions of the Chamber after they have had the opportunity of fully examining the Bill.

"I now turn to the other class of criticism, namely, that the English law does not go far enough in the direction of State control. Suggestions of very varying scope have been made to us, some of which go so far as almost to require Government to undertake that a company should pay satisfactory dividends to its shareholders. As I said in connection with the Assurance measures which have just passed through this Council, I fully recognise that in India the State must be prepared to accept heavier responsibilities than in western countries, but I hope I shall carry with me the approval of Council when I say that, in such legislation as this, the ideal to be aimed at is the minimum of State interference compatible with the due protection of the investor. We have included two, and only two, provisions working in this direction which do not appear in the British Act. Two may seem a small number, but they are both provisions of some considerable importance.

"Clause 109 of the English Act provides that the Board of Trade may appoint one or more competent inspectors to investigate the affairs of any company on the application of a certain proportion of the shareholders. In the Indian Bill we propose to go further, and to provide also that where the Registrar, on perusal of any document which the company is required to submit to him, considers that any further information or explanation is necessary, and where, after calling on the company to submit such information, he either does not receive it or is of opinion that an unsatisfactory state of affairs is disclosed, he shall report the circumstances of the case in writing to the Local Government, and it shall be open to the Local Government to appoint an inspector. By making this provision for an inspector to be appointed without any action being taken on the part of the shareholders, we hope to some extent to guard against abuses creeping in through apathy and lack of initiative on the part of the shareholders, who in India cannot be expected to be so alive to their own interests as in an European country.

"The other matter is in connection with auditors. In sections 112 and 113 of the English Act, the appointment, remuneration, powers and duties of auditors are fully provided for, but nothing is said as to the qualifications of the men who are to act as auditors. In India the question of their qualifications is one of supreme importance. The Bombay Chamber of Commerce referred to it in their letter on the subject of this legislation, and I had the further advantage of discussing it with their Committee, as the Hon'ble Sir Vithaldas Thackersey will remember, when I was last in Bombay. What we propose is, in adopting the English provisions, also to provide in the Bill that no person, other than a person holding a certificate from a Local Government entitling him in that behalf, shall be appointed auditor of a company. In this country it would clearly be going too far to lay down that no one should act as an auditor who is not a Chartered or Incorporated Accountant. Such a provision would mean an undue restriction on business. But we hope by requiring such certification by a Local Government to establish a standard which will at least facilitate the elimination of the incompetent by the refusal or the cancellation of the certificate. I may also say that Government have under consideration a scheme for starting schools of accountancy for the training of auditors at suitable centres under the control of Local Governments and for the establishment of examinations in connection with the proposed Government certificate. My Hon'ble Friend the Member for Education is interesting himself in this matter, and we hope that a scheme on these lines will not only produce in time a sufficiency of thoroughly qualified accountants to meet the increasing demands for such work in India, but will also result in opening up a lucrative field of employment for Indians who should be well adapted for the work but at present enjoy few facilities to become qualified.

[Mr. Clark.]

"These are the only two matters in which Government as at present advised propose to go further under this head than the English law, but I ought to point out that, by the mere adoption of that law as it stands, we are greatly improving the present safeguards, especially in the direction of affording shareholders closer control over companies in the earlier stages of their formation. I will briefly mention the more important of these provisions. The first is the 'statutory meeting' which every company limited by shares and registered after the commencement of the Act is required to hold within a period of six months from the date on which it is entitled to commence business. At least ten days before this meeting is held, the Directors have to forward to every member of the company a report called the 'statutory report', which must be certified to by not less than two Directors of the company and must contain certain specified items of information regarding the position and constitution of the company. These provisions thus compel the Directors to let the shareholders know the exact financial position in the early stages of the company's history. The provisions in regard to the appointment and qualifications of Directors have been made much more stringent, and causes dealing with the prospectus of a company require much fuller information to be given than heretofore including among other items the names of Directors and their interest in the company, the estimated amount of preliminary expenses, the amount paid or intended to be paid to the promoter, and the minimum subscription on which Directors may proceed to allotment. Other clauses prescribe restrictions on proceeding to allotment and on the commencement of business. I have already referred to the subject of auditors, whose appointment, remuneration, powers, duties and liabilities are now very strictly prescribed, and I may also mention another provision by which all companies situated outside British India, but operating therein, are required to make certain information available and to have a recognised agent in India to accept service of process or any notice which may have to be served on the company.

"While, generally speaking, we have followed the English law with an almost slavish exactitude, there are one or two points on which it has been necessary to depart from it. The most important of these is in regard to the winding up of companies by order of the Court. We have decided to retain in the main the procedure of the existing Indian law in place of the provisions introduced into the British law by the Companies Winding-up Act of 1890. In the United Kingdom, important functions are exercised by the Board of Trade, by Official Receivers and by Committees of Inspection; but Government consider that it would be premature to attempt to create a corresponding machinery in this country. They therefore have left the discretion in the matter of winding-up in the hands of the Court. They have also retained the provisions of the existing Indian law in respect of the annual balance-sheet, which can fairly claim to be more complete than the provisions of the English law. The other matters on which modifications have been made in the English law are of minor importance.

"I am afraid, Sir, that I am taking up a very large amount of the time of Council, but there are two matters of considerable importance with which we have not attempted to deal in the Bill, and I think I ought to say a few words about their omission. The first of these is the question of Managing Agents, a problem peculiar to this country. The activities of these very useful persons, and their relations to the companies whose affairs they manage, have from time to time been open to attack, and it has been suggested that this Bill should more strictly regulate and define their position. Government have not seen their way to take action on this difficult matter which brings us up against the law of contract ; but when I say that, I do not wish to suggest for a moment that we are shutting the door against legislation, if practicable suggestions are made to us before this Bill becomes law. I should like, however, to place one consideration before Council. A Managing Agent either is a Director or is not a Director of the company he manages. In the former case, which I believe is the commonest, he will come under the provisions of the Bill for Directors, and the definition of 'Director' in the Bill makes it clear that, whatever the title chosen for the governing body, the rules which apply to Directors apply also to persons who stand in the position of Directors. In the first case, therefore, he will be subject to the safeguards and penalties prescribed in the case of Directors. In the latter case, where the Managing Agent is not a Director, his relationship with the company is governed by contract, and the Bill makes it necessary that every material contract should be disclosed in the prospectus. At any rate, therefore, full publicity is secured as to the nature of the relationship.

[22ND MARCH 1912.] [Mr. Clark ; Sir Vithaldas D. Thackersey.]

"The other even more thorny question with which we have not seen our way to deal is that of Banks or of businesses which with varying degree of accuracy prefer to call themselves Banks. This is not a specially Indian problem ; the recent failure of the Charing Cross Bank in England, and the appalling abuse of the depositors' confidence which it disclosed, will be fresh in the memory of Council. The evil which wants a remedy is that poor and uneducated people are attracted by the word 'Bank,' thinking that it necessarily implies security and stability, and unscrupulous persons accordingly apply the term to any speculative business in order to attract investors and depositors. But how is the use of the term to be restricted and how is banking business to be defined for the purpose? Government will be very willing to consider any suggestions, but I must confess that the more I think of it the more difficult the problem appears of how to define a banking business, how to control it when you have defined it, and how to avoid interfering with the legitimate business of firms carrying on partly banking and partly other operations. I understand that informed opinion in the United Kingdom, where the question was stirred up again by the Charing Cross Bank smash, is against attempting to legislate, and we may well hesitate to rush in where more experienced legislators fear to tread.

"This, Sir, in more senses than one is a big measure. The Bill deals with big interests, and in the mere matter of bulk runs to 323 clauses and 31 pages of Schedules. It may well be that in such a mass of material those interested will find subjects for criticism and objection. I can only say that Government have no desire to hurry this legislation through ; that every scope will be given for criticism ; and that all opinions will be duly weighed ; and I shall hope later on to have the advantage of personal discussion upon it in the different commercial centres of India. No legislation can prevent fraud or altogether indemnify the investor from the dangers of an incurable optimism : all you can hope for is to make the path of dishonesty more stony and the vagaries of ignorance less liable to disaster. I should be sorry if the impression were created that Government is undertaking this legislation owing to their being any widespread canker in Indian commercial circles ; though bad cases have occurred from time to time, here as in other countries, there is no ground for such a supposition. But we ought to have the best Act we can, and I am sure that, as in other recent commercial legislation, I can count on the assistance of the important Chambers of Commerce and of all those interested in commercial law, in helping us to get it."

The Hon'ble Sir Vithaldas Thackersey : "Mr. Vice-President, I heartily congratulate Government on introducing this Bill in this Council. I have no opportunity of going through the several sections referred to by the Hon'ble Member, and therefore I am not prepared at present to go into the details of the Bill ; but on the principle of the Bill, I think commercial communities are at one that this Bill is not brought forward a day too soon."

The Hon'ble Mr. Mudholkar : " Sir, I had an opportunity of expressing my views in regard to the proposed legislation a year or so ago. On that occasion I expressed my concurrence in the proposal that the amendment of the Indian Companies Act should be undertaken. I have studied the English law and I consider that the new provisions introduced into the English Companies Consolidated Act are very desirable, and should be brought into our code also. There are of course several matters in regard to which slight alterations may have to be made, necessitated by the difference in the circumstances of the two countries. But there is no doubt that the English Companies Act of 1908 provides more safeguards than the old law, and that such safeguards are required in India also. It is not necessary to refer to these things specifically on this occasion. We shall have to go into these matters when the time comes. But with regard to the necessity for legislation on the lines which Government propose, I agree with the Hon'ble Member. The Conference which I have the honour to represent, the Indian Industrial Conference in which Indians and Europeans join on more occasions than one, dealt with the subject and expressed its view that the time has come for assimilating the Indian law to the improved English law. With these general observations, I heartily congratulate the Government and the Hon'ble Member on the steps which they propose taking in the matter."

The Hon'ble Sir Cecil Graham : " Sir, I should like to join other Hon'ble Members in congratulating the Government and the Hon'ble Member in charge, for having brought this Bill in. The whole of the commercial community, I think, are at one in wishing for this legislation ; but as the Hon'ble Member has pointed out, the Chambers of Commerce preferred to wait and defer expressing their opinion on the details until the actual Bill was before them. However, the Hon'ble Member has promised us plenty of time to go thoroughly into the details and see how far the English Act will fall in line with the conditions governing commerce and business in India. There is only one thing I should like to ask the Hon'ble Member, and that is if he has any information he can give us as to how the English Act has worked in England so far."

The Hon'ble Mr. Clark : " Sir, I am very much obliged to Hon'ble Members for the cordial reception they have given to this Bill.

" As regards the question which the Hon'ble Sir Cecil Graham has raised, we are expecting to receive a report from the Board of Trade in London on the subject of the English Act as applied to India, and I imagine that in that report they will inform us as to whether any of the provisions of the Act of 1908 have been found not to work well. We had to introduce the Bill before receiving the report so as to avoid any risk of not getting it introduced this session."

The motion was put and agreed to.

The Hon'ble Mr. Clark introduced the Bill.

The Hon'ble Mr. Clark moved that the Bill together with the Statement of Objects and Reasons relating thereto be published in the Gazette of India in English and in the local official Gazettes in English and in such other languages as the Local Governments think fit.

The motion was put and agreed to.

The Council adjourned to Monday, the 25th March 1912.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

PROCEEDINGS OF THE COUNCIL OF THE GOVERNOR GENERAL OF INDIA, ASSEMBLED FOR THE PURPOSE OF MAKING LAWS AND REGULATIONS
UNDER THE PROVISIONS OF THE INDIAN COUNCILS ACTS, 1861 TO 1909 (24 & 25 VICT., c. 87, 55 & 56 VICT., c. 14, AND 9 EDW. VII, c. 4).

The Council met at Government House, Calcutta, on Monday, the 25th

PRESENT :

His Excellency BARON HARDINGE OF PENSHURST P.C., G.C.B., G.C.M.G., G.C.V.O.
G.M.S.I., G.M.I.E., Viceroy and Governor General of India, presiding, and 59 Members, of whom 51 were Additional Members.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

The Hon'ble Raja of Dighapatia asked :

"Is it a fact that the Pioneer till very recently charged double its ordinary rates for all official advertisements? If so, how long since has this arrangement been discontinued?"

The Hon'ble Sir Reginald Craddock replied :

"The rate charged by the Pioneer for Government advertisements is 8 annas per line, and no change has recently been made in this respect. It is understood that the rates charged by the same newspaper for private casual advertisements vary between 4 annas and 9 annas per line according to the position in the paper in which the advertisements are inserted."

The Hon'ble Raja of Dighapatia asked :

"Is it the intention of the Government to appoint qualified Indians in the work of scientific investigation of tropical diseases now being carried on by the Central Research Institutes at Kasauli and in other similar institutes in the country?"

The Hon'ble Sir Harcourt Butler replied :

"The Government of India will always employ the best man available for any inquiry of a scientific nature, no matter what his race or creed may be. Dr. Korke, who is an Indian, has recently been appointed to inquire into Kala-azar."

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS; BENGAL, BIHAR AND ASSAM LAWS.

[Raja of Dighapatia ; Sir Harcourt Butler ; Raja Pratab Bahadur Singh ; Sir Robert Carlyle ; Sir Gangadhar Rao Chitnavis ; Mr. Syed Ali Imam.] [25TH MARCH 1912.]

The Hon'ble Raja of Dighapatia asked :

"Does the Government propose to publish annually a statement showing in each Province the mortality under different heads and the measures taken to improve the several sanitary conditions of each Province?"

The Hon'ble Sir Harcourt Butler replied :

"The Hon'ble Member is referred to the statements appended to sections III and VII of the Report of the Sanitary Commissioner with the Government of India, and to the annual reports of the Provincial Sanitary Commissioners, in which he will find the information he requires."

The Hon'ble Raja Pratab Bahadur Singh asked :

"(a) Will the Government be pleased to state how much area in each reserved forest is open for pasturage of cattle?"

"(b) Are Government aware that there are pressing demands for pasture lands?"

"(c) If so, do Government propose to increase the pasturable area free or on receipt of fee per head of cattle grazing in the said area?"

"(d) Do Government propose to encourage the reservation of land in each village for pasturage of cattle and not assess revenue upon it?"

The Hon'ble Sir Robert Carlyle replied :

"(a) Figures are not available for each reserved forest, but I lay a statement* on the table giving some details by Provinces.

"(b) The Government of India are aware that there are tracts in which it would be very desirable, if possible, to increase the pasturable area.

"(c) The question of increasing the pasturable area where this is practicable and desirable is essentially one for Local Governments to deal with, and the Government of India can lay down no general rules in the matter.

"(d) Steps are already taken in several Provinces to provide grazing grounds free of assessment for village cattle, but the introduction of such arrangements and the manner in which they should be carried out are questions primarily for the consideration of Local Governments. It may be noticed that the Government of India have recently sanctioned an experiment proposed by the Government of the United Provinces by which revenue on 80,000 acres of waste-land in Oudh has been remitted on the condition that this area was maintained for the grazing of migratory herds of cattle."

The Hon'ble Sir Gangadhar Rao Chitnavis asked :

"Do the Government intend to have settlements for thirty years or for longer terms in the Central Provinces, especially in the fully developed districts?"

The Hon'ble Sir Robert Carlyle replied :

"The Government of India do not consider that any districts in the Central Provinces are at present so developed as to justify the extension of the term of settlement in them for a longer period than twenty years."

BENGAL, BIHAR AND ASSAM LAWS BILL.

The Hon'ble Mr. Syed Ali Imam : "My Lord, I beg to move for leave to introduce a Bill to make certain provisions regarding the application of the law in force in, the Presidency of Fort William in Bengal, the Province of Bihar and Orissa and the Province of Assam.

BENGAL, BIHAR AND ASSAM LAWS.

[25TH MARCH 1912.] [Mr. Syed Ali Imam; the President; Babu Bhupendra nath Basu.]

"The Proclamations which appeared in the Gazette of India Extraordinary last Saturday relate to important re-distributions of territories which at present constitute the Provinces of Bengal and Eastern Bengal and Assam. As these territorial re-distributions have to take effect from the 1st of April next, it has become a matter of extreme urgency to provide for the adaptation and application of the laws in force in those territories. Under the provisions of the Indian Councils Acts, the existing laws continue to remain in force in the newly created Provinces so long as they are not repealed or altered. With a view to make these very laws applicable to the changed conditions created by the said Proclamations, some modifications are necessary merely for the exercise of powers that exist under the different laws in force. The Bill which I am now moving for leave to introduce provides for this and is framed on the lines of the Bengal and Assam Laws Act of 1905. It continues the laws in force in the territories affected by the Proclamations and merely provides for their administration by the new authorities which will come into existence next Monday. The Bill aims at the application of the existing law without making any amendment or alteration of substance. It is obvious that a measure of this kind must receive the sanction of the Legislature before the Proclamations take effect. Under the circumstances, should the motion before the Council be adopted, I shall ask for the provisions of the Bill to be at once taken into consideration with a view to its being passed at to-day's sitting. It is of a purely formal and non-controversial character. In fact, I have excluded, even at the risk of some possible temporary inconvenience, all matters which might lead to controversy and have left them to be dealt with by future legislation. It will be seen therefore that with two small exceptions, to which I will presently call attention, the Bill is no more than a draftsman's Bill.

"Clause 4 of the Bill constitutes a Board of Revenue for the Province of Behar and Orissa. It does no more than place the territories of the new Province on the same footing on which they stand at present under the Bengal Board of Revenue for the purposes of this branch of the administration.

"Clause 7 taken with Schedule E makes certain amendments in Acts which confer immunities or vest functions in authorities now existing in the Province of Bengal. A glance at the Schedules will show that they are so obviously appropriate that I need not take up the time of the Council in explaining or justifying them further.

"The Bill otherwise makes no change in the existing law."

The motion was put and agreed to.

The Hon'ble Mr. Syed Ali Imam introduced the Bill.

The Hon'ble Mr. Syed Ali Imam moved the President to suspend the rules of business to admit of the Bill being taken into consideration.

The President declared the rules to be suspended.

The Hon'ble Mr. Syed Ali Imam moved that the Bill be taken into consideration.

The Hon'ble Babu Bhupendranath Basu : "My Lord, with reference to the Bill which has just now been placed before us, there is one question which strikes me. Under clause 4, a new Board of Revenue is going to be created for the Province of Bihar and Orissa, and clause 6 provides that all proceedings which at the commencement of this Act are pending in respect of any territory mentioned in the Schedule shall not be affected by the provisions of the Bill. I take it that the learned Law Member is aware that the entire revenue-administration of the Province of Bihar and Orissa is at the present moment under the control of the Board of Revenue, which is exercising jurisdiction over the old Province of Bengal, and that many matters affecting Bihar, Orissa and Chota Nagpur are pending for final decision before the Board here in respect of which some proceedings have been taken, and there are matters which have been partly heard. Do I understand that section 6 will protect these proceedings being taken de novo before the new Board of Revenue that is going to be created in Bihar, or will they be allowed to be heard by the Board before which they are pending?"

The Hon'ble Mr. Syed Ali Imam : "My Lord, section 6 of the Bill provides for this, that any such proceedings as have been referred to, will continue to remain unaffected by this Act, if this Bill is passed into law. And the answer to that question is that there will be no change in respect of those proceedings. Section 4 provides for the creation of a new Board of Revenue for Bihar and Orissa and stands on a separate footing altogether from section 6."

The motion was put and agreed to.

The Hon'ble Mr. Syed Ali Imam moved that the Bill be passed.

The motion was put and agreed to.

BUDGET FOR 1912-13.

The Hon'ble Mr. Gokhale : "My Lord, I propose to make a few observations to-day on the general state of our finances, but, before doing that, I would like, with Your Lordship's permission, to make one or two references of a personal nature. My Lord, this is the last time when my Hon'ble friend, Sir James Meston, will sit in this Council, at any rate as Financial Secretary, and I would like to take this opportunity to thank him publicly, and in Your Excellency's presence, for all the valuable assistance which he has uniformly given to non-official members during the last three years. Ever accessible, ever courteous, ever helpful, the Hon'ble Member has enabled many of us to perform our duty in this Council better than we could otherwise have done. He has believed whole-heartedly in the new order inaugurated by the recent reforms ; and he has also believed in the capacity of non-official members to rise equal to their new responsibilities. And if this Council has not wholly disappointed expectations, the result, at any rate on the financial side of our discussions, is in no small measure due to the sympathetic and generous attitude of the Hon'ble Member towards us. My Lord, our best wishes accompany Sir James Meston in his new and exalted sphere, and I earnestly trust that, when his five years of office are over, he will return again to this Council as Finance Minister. I think, my Lord, there is a great deal to be said in favour of the view that membership of the Government of India should be the last rung of the official ladder in this country, and that those members of the Civil Service who are marked out for Lieutenant-Governorships should complete their tenure of office as heads of Provinces before they come and join the Viceroy's Executive Council.

"My Lord, I would next like to say a word about my Hon'ble friend, Sir Guy Fleetwood Wilson. We have all heard that he proposes shortly to go on six months' leave to recruit his health, and we all fervently hope that he will come back at the end of that period with his health fully restored and that he will continue to preside over his Department for the full period of his appointment. My Lord, the personnel of this Council on its non-official side will have undergone considerable changes before the Hon'ble Member's return, because in the interval there will be a new election, and, while some of us may possibly not want to come back, the constituencies may not want to send some others back, and therefore it would not be inappropriate if we, non-official members, seek to give brief expression on the present occasion to the great admiration and the very high regard in which we hold Sir Guy Fleetwood Wilson. My Lord, with his mind saturated with the best traditions of English public life of which he was a close observer for many years, the Hon'ble Member's presence in this Council has been simply invaluable to us at a time when our own tradition is slowly evolving here. We have never found Sir Guy Wilson wrapped up in official reserve. He has often presented new points of view to us and he has himself been always anxious to enter into our feelings and our thoughts. And his delightful and high-minded courtesy has made it a pleasure to have anything to do with him. His great familiarity with the principles of Western finance has enabled him to manage our finances wisely and skilfully, and his attachment to the Gladstonian tradition of economy has left its impress on the administration of this country. In regard to our general affairs too, it is well-known that Sir Guy Fleetwood Wilson's influence has been strongly on the side of popular progress. My Lord, the country needs men of his type in the Government—men of warm sympathies, of sturdy independence, and deep devotion to its truest and best interests; and once again I earnestly express the hope that Sir Guy will come back fully restored to health and will continue his services to India to the furthest limit of time to which they can be stretched.

"My last word, my Lord, will be about this great and beautiful city. Speaking at the Calcutta Club the other day, Your Lordship expressed the great regret with which you viewed the prospect of this city soon ceasing to be your winter head-quarters in future. May we non-official members of this Council ask to be permitted to respectfully join in that regret! I say nothing on this occasion about the great, the momentous changes which were announced by His Imperial Majesty the King-Emperor at Delhi. Looking into the future with the eye of faith and of hope, I do believe that these changes, whatever temporary inconvenience or dislocation they may occasion, will do good in the end both to the Province of Bengal and to the country taken as a whole. But, whatever the future may hold in its womb, the thought that this Council, which has grown from the smallest beginnings to its present dimensions in this city, meets here to-day for the last time, is a thought that must make the heart heavy. My Lord, it is not merely the infinite kindness and hospitality which we members, coming from other Provinces, have always received from the people of Calcutta, it is not merely the friends that we have made here, that we shall miss; it is the entire influence of Calcutta and all that Calcutta stands for that will now be lost to us. Some of us, my Lord, have been coming to this city now for many years,—I for one have come here continuously now for eleven years,—and we have learnt to feel the same enthusiasm for this wonderful land which the people of Bengal feel. Its waving fields, its noble streams, its rich and wonderful vegetation of every kind, throw on us now the same spell that the people of this Province experience, and the warm-heartedness of its society, its culture, its spiritual outlook on life, and the intensity of its national aspiration have produced a deep and abiding impression upon our lives. My Lord, we bid adieu to this city with profound regret, and with every good wish for its continued prosperity that the heart of man can frame. And we fervently trust that, great as has been its past, its future will be even greater.

"My Lord, I will now say a few words on the general state of our finances. We are, as everybody who knows anything about our finances knows, on the eve of a very considerable disturbance in our accepted standards both of revenue and expenditure. There is no question whatever that the financial position of the country, taken as a whole, is both sound and strong; but the fact that we are on the eve of this disturbance makes it necessary that there should be a careful and comprehensive examination of the whole position. On the one side, my Lord, our opium-revenue will soon be extinguished; on the other side, heavy and continuously increasing additions will be necessary to our expenditure, on certain services, specially education and sanitation. Then, my Lord, I hope, I most earnestly hope, that our military expenditure, the burden of which we have so long borne patiently, and which is really far beyond our capacity to bear, will be materially lightened as a result of the labour on which Sir William Nicholson and his Committee will soon enter. I therefore suggest that this is just the juncture when a comprehensive inquiry into the whole financial position may be undertaken by a strong Royal Commission. There are three outstanding features of the position. A top-heavy administration, much too costly for our resources, a crushing weight of military burdens, and a scheme of taxation which, though not much more burdensome in its total incidence than in other countries, presses much more heavily on the poorer than on the middle and the upper classes of the community. These are the outstanding features of our financial position. India, it must always be borne in mind, is a very poor country and the largest revenue that we can possibly raise must be small, judged by the standards of the West. The question, therefore, as to how to adjust our revenue to our growing requirements in certain directions is one of prime importance. My Lord, I, for one, shall be glad when our opium-revenue disappears; not only because I feel it to be a stain on us, but also because its presence in an uncertain state is very inconvenient from the standpoint of economy. The uncertainty that invests it is a great disturbing factor in our budget, and the large surpluses which it brings to the Government, however convenient they may be for certain purposes, cannot but be demoralizing in their effect on economy, because the strongest Finance Minister, with the utmost insistence that he can lay on rigid economy, cannot resist a certain amount of wasteful expenditure in the presence of such large surpluses. When the opium-revenue disappears—and I understand that it will not take long now before it disappears—we shall be in a position to know where exactly we stand, and then it is that certain questions will require to be taken into serious and careful consideration, so that a definite financial policy may be laid down for the country which should be adhered to in all essentials, independently of the particular views or inclinations of individual Finance Members. The questions that require specially to be considered are how to readjust our old taxation so that its incidence should press less severely on certain classes—the poorest classes of the country; how to widen, if necessary, the present basis of taxation so that more money may be found for education, sanitation, and similar services; in what directions expenditure must be kept down, and in what directions expenditure must be increased. We want an enquiry into these things by a strong Commission so that the future may be shaped in accordance with a definite policy laid down, after taking a comprehensive view of the whole question. For instance, my Lord, I hold that we can raise much larger revenue than we do at present from our Customs without its proving burdensome to any section of the community. The possibility of raising revenue from certain sources, which at present yield nothing, must also be publicly examined. Then there is the question of reducing the State demand on land, especially in raiyatwari tracts, and the extension of the permanent settlement to areas where it does not at present exist, subject to the condition that agricultural incomes above a certain minimum should be liable to pay the income-tax. There is also the question as to how larger recurring grants for local bodies may be provided so that they should be better able than at present to perform their duties satisfactorily, and how provision may be made for steadily expanding allotments to education, sanitation and medical relief. I therefore urge that when the opium-revenue is about to disappear, the occasion should be utilized to appoint a strong Royal Commission to consider the whole subject of the basis of our taxation and the probable future course of our expenditure. One important reason why such an inquiry is necessary is the extreme rapidity with which the personnel of the Government changes in this country. A Finance Minister, or any other member of Government, holds office for only five years; he takes some time to make himself acquainted with the problems of his department or the state of things in the country, and by the time he is in a position to handle important questions well, the time also comes for him to think of leaving. If members of Government were to remain in this country after their retirement, the knowledge and experience which they acquired in their respective offices would still be available to us. What happens at present is that every successor has to begin not where his predecessor ended, but his predecessor also began, and thus a large amount of most useful and necessary knowledge is repeatedly lost and has to be repeatedly acquired over and over again, with the result that we seem to be living more or less from hand to mouth, and without a large settled policy adopted as a result of wide and thorough knowledge and ample discussion.

BUDGET.

[Mr. Gokhale.]

BUDGET.

[25TH MARCH 1912.] [Mr. Gokhale; Mr. Dadabhoy.]

"I, therefore urge, my Lord, that when the opium-revenue is about to be extinguished, as we understand it will soon be, the Government should take steps to appoint a Royal Commission so that the whole financial position of the country may be carefully examined."

The Hon'ble Mr. Dadabhoy: "My Lord, a 'No-change' budget, as the Finance Minister characterises the one under review, does not call for much comment. Two observations made by the Finance Minister in introducing it on the 1st March current are, however, important. The necessity of the recent addition to taxation is apparently problematical, but it is confidently stated that 'time will justify' the taxes, 'when our opium-revenue ultimately dwindles and our other resources are strained by the growing demand for more schools and healthier homes.' It is perhaps claiming too much for them that, besides recouping the complete loss of the opium-revenue, they would place adequate funds at the disposal of Government for meeting the educational and sanitary needs of the country. But one thing is clear. The prospective loss of the opium-revenue is a dark cloud on our horizon, and the necessity for an appeal to the Home Government for a substantial contribution is as acute as ever. We have moved this Government more than once on the subject, and we would have been glad to have from them a pronouncement as to the course they intend to pursue."

"The other proposition of the Finance Minister that in India the line between plenty and want is very narrow and 'the need for caution in our forecasts and for economy in our expenditure' is incessant, true as it is, is hardly compatible with the expenditure in connection with the expedition against the Abors and the friendly mission to the Mishmi country. According to the map given in the Imperial Gazetteer, both the Abors and the Mishmis live beyond India and their country is included in Tibet. The policy perhaps we are not free to discuss in this Council, but we certainly can complain of the cost. If the expedition and the mission be for the protection of Imperial interests, as they must be, in fairness the expenditure should be charged to the Home Government. Then, a full and clear explanation regarding the 2½ lakhs of rupees spent out of Indian revenues in meeting a part of 'the cost of sending a regiment to strengthen the consular guards in Southern Persia' and the expenditure of 18 lakhs during the year in 'the arms traffic operations,' is necessary. These latter operations have so far cost India a little over 51 lakhs of rupees. A part of the operations would appear to have been carried on in the Persian Gulf. If the above amount includes any part of the cost of it, the justification of the expenditure is not clear."

"Heretical though the view may be, in my humble opinion, a modification of the principle of 'lapse' in accounts would appear to be desirable in India. Schemes of improvement, large and small, are awaiting execution, and the progress, in the generality of cases, is only limited by the funds which the Government finds it convenient to allot. It also happens at times that the amount sanctioned in any particular year is not fully spent through the supervention of adventitious circumstances. The unspent balance, according to the rules, lapses at the end of the year, and goes either to swell the surplus or to reduce the deficit. The next year's sanction depends upon a host of considerations unconnected with the closing year's history, and allowance is not made for the lapsed grant. This is hardly satisfactory. No doubt, according to article 293 of the Civil Account Code, Volume I, the grant so lapsed could be revived by specific sanction; but this is rarely done. In the Military Department, the usual practice, I understand, is for the subsequent year's allotment to be proportionately increased without a specific revival of the lapsed grant. A similar relaxation of the rules would be welcome in the other departments. Progress would be accelerated in that way."

"My Lord, administration of impartial justice is one of the bulwarks of British rule in India. Government cannot be over-careful in that line. But with the growth of judicial work with time quickness in disposal has naturally come to animate the policy of the department. Complaints from the litigant public of quality being sacrificed to quantity are not unusual, and the grievance is felt the more in that second appeals are restricted. The ideal ought to be, and is, to combine despatch with patient hearing. This can be done by increasing the strength of the judicial service. During the 51 years between 1856 and 1907, civil litigation increased nearly 256 per cent., the total number of suits in the latter year being 1,867,995 against 730,000 in the former. But there has not been a proportionate increase in the strength of the service. This is a direction in which improvement is desirable.

BUDGET.[Mr. Dadabhoy.]

"The appointment of trained and practising lawyers as District and Sessions Judges is also a necessity which is becoming more clamant with greater diffusion of knowledge among the people of the systems of recruitment prevalent in the advanced countries of the West. The time has gone by when, owing to political reasons and the absence of trained lawyers, the superior ranks of the Judicial Service had to be reserved for the members of the Imperial Civil Service. Simultaneously with the success of Indian lawyers in the highest judicial posts the office of the District and Sessions Judge has lost much of its charm for the Civil Service, and it is patent to all that the best men of that service do not evince any particular desire to adopt the judicial career. Three years ago, in January 1909, in reply to a question of mine in Council, Government were pleased to announce their preparedness to appoint trained lawyers as Judicial Commissioners and Additional Judicial Commissioners as occasion arose. Such appointments were subsequently made in Oudh and elsewhere. It was further understood that the question of the appointment of trained and practising lawyers as District and Sessions Judges would be considered afterwards. I understand the subject is receiving the attention of Government. My only point now is that any correspondence which may pass on the subject between this Government and the Secretary of State should be placed on the table, with the object of enabling Hon'ble Members to submit their views on the issues raised, as also on the particular reform proposed by Government.

"My Lord, in order to relieve the congestion of judicial business on the civil side the suggestion has been now and again made that honorary village munsifs should be appointed for the disposal of suits of small value in the same way as honorary magistrates. The experiment might be tried, if retired judicial officers and lawyers can be induced to take up the work. The honorary magistracy has developed remarkably with a total strength of 3,000 incumbents in 1910 as against 'an honorary magistrate here or there' fifty years previously. Honorary village munsifs might not be unpopular with the safeguard suggested above. Provision might also be made for the submission by them to stipendiary judicial officers of questions of law for opinion.

"But, in my opinion, the establishment of Arbitration Courts, composed of honorary Judges, would be far more satisfactory. At first reference to them of pending suits might be left optional with the parties, and afterwards, when the people come to have confidence in them, such reference might be made at the discretion of the regular Courts. The personnel of the Arbitration Courts may be settled in consultation with the people. The office can with advantage be made elective.

"The development of the elective system in the country demands the creation of Election Courts for the speedy disposal of election disputes, with powers similar to those enjoyed by Courts of that class in England. It is now open to an aggrieved candidate to seek his remedy in the Civil Court under the Specific Relief Act, but the lengthy procedure of the ordinary Civil Court makes the remedy unreal. I humbly submit a special Court for the trial of election disputes will be far more effective and will inspire greater confidence among the people. There should also be a more stringent law regarding elections generally on the same lines as the English law.

"Last year, my Lord, I invited the attention of Government to the congestion of work in the Judicial Commissioner's Court at Nagpur, in consequence of the provision in the amended Central Provinces Civil Courts Act for the hearing of appeals of over Rs. 10,000 in value by benches of two Judges as in High Courts and Chief Courts, and to the necessity of the appointment of a fourth Judge. The subject has not received at the hands of Government the favourable consideration it deserves. No provision has been made for the creation of the post. Meanwhile the congestion continues. A reference to the Local Government will show this. May I express the hope that Government will be pleased to provide for the appointment of a third Additional Judicial Commissioner for the Central Provinces in the course of the next year?

BUDGET.

"My Lord, the efforts of the Government to meet the educational needs of the country are fully appreciated, and the announcement made by Your Excellency at the last Convocation of the Calcutta University that 'the Government of India have decided to make a solid advance in the direction of teaching and residential universities' has filled us with hope. We in the Central Provinces feel the want of such a university. As a humble representative of the Province, I beg to move the Government for the establishment at an early date of a teaching university at Nagpur.

"The intellectual improvement of the Indian youth is a great object which the Government has very properly set in the forefront of its reforming programme. The reclamation of misguided young offenders is an equally noble object. On a recent occasion I had to refer to the successful efforts made in the West in this behalf. I submit, my Lord, the time has come when this Government should make an equally earnest attempt at reclamation by 'specialisation and individualisation' such as underlie the Borstal system of prison discipline. The chief merit of that system is that the youth is not treated as a criminal, and it seeks to—

'combine strict discipline with moral and religious training, and generous rewards for growth in self-control and progress in handicrafts, physical exercise and education.'

"The cost is much larger than in the ordinary prison, it is true, but it is a good investment from the national point of view. It has been remarked by high authorities that 'the danger is greater in Indian prisons of moral contamination due to the lack of special accommodation.' The necessity of special treatment is thus all the greater here. Reformatories exist, no doubt; but how many young offenders pass through them? It must be admitted that reclamation is attempted in the West in a highly scientific way which provides an object-lesson for us. The Borstal system, according to expert opinion, can be very easily applied to India provided special accommodation and funds are available.

"My Lord, the dissemination of up-to-date knowledge in the industrial arts is another direction which provides ample scope for Government activity. Government must be alive to its necessity. The Indian has now to seek the special knowledge abroad, but there too, owing to the nervousness and exclusiveness of the Western manufacturers, facilities are few. The correspondence between this Government and the Secretary of State on the subject of instruction in glass-making must have impressed Government with the necessity of making suitable arrangements in India for the technical and industrial training of the people. The letter to the Secretary of State of the London Board of Education, of 27th January 1911, exposes the difficulties of the present position. The Board point out:—

'No English manufacturers would think of admitting Indian students temporarily to their works. . . . The Educational Adviser to Indian students has suggested to the Board that German firms are sometimes willing to admit Indian students on condition that the students when they return to India act as agents in that country for the goods of the firm concerned.'

"The inquiry is legitimate as to the Government decision on the Board's suggestion that the appointment of 'competent instructors under suitable conditions of service, either from this country, from the Continent, or from the United States of America . . . will prove a better way of developing the glass-making industry in India.'

"In this connection it is gratifying to learn that the Punjab Government has decided to help the Ambala Glass Works with annual subventions for a period of five years. It is not so much for the particular industry supported as for the departure the action marks in the policy of Government that the occasion is important. I earnestly hope the Government of India will be pleased to systematise advances and subsidies to well-managed Indian manufacturing concerns which may be languishing for financial support. The money will be well spent.

BUDGET.

[Mr. Dadabhoy.]

"Equally reassuring is the news that an expert has been deputed to the United Provinces for investigating into the condition of the local sugar industry. This is a right move and full of great possibilities. The Indian sugar industry requires nursing. The people should now respond cordially to the Government effort.

"My Lord, I have before now drawn the attention of this Government to the existence of heavy import-duties upon Indian manufactures in the United States of America. To take two instances. An ad valorem duty of 15 per cent. is charged upon tanned or dressed goat and sheep skins imported from India, while raw hides are imported free. Upon Indian carpets and rugs the duty is 50 per cent. ad valorem! Such heavy duties are clearly protective. And yet we have to keep our doors open. I understand the whole question of American import-duties at present forms the subject of diplomatic discussion between the United Kingdom and the United States of America. I humbly submit the occasion should be availed of to secure an adequate reduction in the duties upon Indian manufactures.

"I will now advert to a deficiency in the management of the great State industry—the Railways. The Hon'ble the Finance Minister remarks: 'The passenger traffic has grown exceedingly.' But in the Budget estimate of 1912-1913, according to his statement,

'Provision for working expenses has also been put a little higher on account of necessary renewals of permanent-way, rolling-stock and strengthening of bridges.'

"On 8th instant the Hon'ble Sir T. Wynne, ever ready to meet the wishes of the people, informed us that a sum of 175 lakhs, set aside for rolling-stock, 'will provide 182 locomotives and 6,100 goods wagons.' An adequate number of additional carriages is apparently not provided. Indian passengers, especially the lower class passengers who contribute the largest amount to the railway income, justly claim a more liberal provision in this respect. Their comfort must be looked to by the railway authorities.

"The most refreshing part of the Financial Statement is the record of the progress in Irrigation. The allotments made in next year's budget for the execution of all the three projects—the Tendula, Mahanadi and Wainganga Canals—afford genuine cause for satisfaction to the people of the Central Provinces.

"My Lord, according to the testimony of independent witnesses, the Punjab Canal Colonies have amply justified the expectations of Government. Government might well be congratulated upon the scheme. Quite a million men have been removed from congested areas to two millions acres of irrigated land, and that within the brief space of 12 years. The plan, in my humble opinion, should be extended to the other Provinces. There is need for this sort of activity in the Central Provinces.

"My Lord, we have now come to a turning-point in British Indian history; to-day we come to the end of a chapter in British Indian history, the close of a brilliant record of steady expansion, of slow evolution and of sustained effort at consolidation. After 150 years of vigorous government India emerges unified, compact and strong, yearning after new life, throbbing with the pulsations of new thought and new aspirations. She stands purified, with the touch of her lord. HOPE is written large on her horizon. Anarchy and sedition, disorder and turbulence have skulked before the Royal Presence. 'Their Imperial Majesties' Visit has stirred to its inmost depths the great heart of the nation, and has communicated a soothing and dynamic force to discontented and dull India. The Durbar boons, thanks to Your Excellency's wise counsel and statesman-like perception of the needs of the situation, have conciliated educated India. Now begins an era of peace and concord, of intellectual and moral progress, of healthy co-operation between the rulers and the ruled.

BUDGET.

[25TH MARCH 1912.] [Mr. Dadabhoy ; Sir Vithaldas D. Thackersey.]

"I wish to say, my Lord, before I resume my seat, that I associate myself with the Hon'ble Mr. Gokhale in what he said with reference to the Hon'ble the Finance Minister."

The Hon'ble Sir Vithaldas D. Thackersey : "My Lord, I cordially endorse every word that has been said by my Hon'ble friend Mr. Gokhale in appreciation of the excellent services rendered by our friend the Hon'ble Sir James Meston to this Council. We all wish him Godspeed and a great success in his new position.

"Coming to the Budget, I beg to congratulate the Hon'ble the Finance Member on the very satisfactory Financial Statement which he has presented to us. We are obliged to him for his kind reference in his speech, while presenting the Financial Statement, to our friend the Hon'ble Mr. Gokhale and for the terms in which he has officially appreciated the valuable work done by him in this Council during the long period of his membership. We, the non-official members, take this as a great compliment paid to all non-official members of Your Lordship's Council. The Hon'ble Mr. Gokhale has served in this Council for continuously over 12 years, and I am sure everyone of us here present, official and non-official, will agree with me when I say that in the success—the great admitted success—of the working of this expanded Council during the last three years, no small share has been contributed by the Hon'ble Mr. Gokhale who is respected alike by the officials and non-officials. The breadth of mind shown by the Hon'ble Sir Guy Fleetwood Wilson reminds me of the liberal-mindedness which we see so often in the House of Commons when Ministers on the Government bench appreciate in official documents the services of the members sitting on the opposite bench. I join in the hope expressed by the Hon'ble Mr. Gokhale that after his holiday the Hon'ble Sir Guy Fleetwood Wilson will return to this Council with renewed vigour and take up his portfolio which he has filled with such ability to the entire satisfaction of all concerned.

"As to the Budget, I must admit that the Hon'ble the Finance Member has shown great judgment in distributing a substantial portion of last year's surplus among several useful objects. While I appreciate what has been done for us in this direction, I once more beg to raise my voice against the policy adopted by the Hon'ble Member two years ago of taxing the people more than the circumstances would justify. In March 1910, we, the non-official members, strongly protested against the levying of new taxes and proved by facts and figures that the revenue budget for 1910-11 was under-estimated. The time that has since elapsed has established the absolute correctness of our contention. I maintain, my Lord, that the additional taxes then imposed were not necessary, and even the budget of 1912-13, in spite of the liberal extra grants to Provincial Governments, might have been framed without a deficit, in the absence of additional taxes. I hope, my Lord, that this will serve as a lesson for the future, and though we have had to pay dearly for it, it will have been usefully learnt, if it prevents a recurrence of similar action on the part of Government. After all, the views of those who are of the people and move among them and have practical experience of the daily life of the country are entitled to receive greater consideration in such matters than was shown on that occasion.

"My Lord, I do not wish to speak at any great length to-day, but there is one subject to which I wish to invite the attention of this Council, namely, the method of assessing factories for the purposes of income-tax in the different Provinces and the injustice involved in it. In reply to a question by my Hon'ble friend Sir Sassoon David last year, Government was pleased to lay before this Council a statement showing the percentage allowed in different Provinces for depreciation on machinery and buildings in ascertaining the net profits of factories for income-tax purposes, and the method by which the capital cost is estimated in each case. This statement, as I will presently proceed to show, places the factories of one Province at a disadvantage compared with those of another Province. In Bengal and East Bengal and Assam, a deduction of five per cent. is allowed both on machinery and buildings, while in Bombay a deduction of five per cent. is allowed only on machinery, and that too after deducting the allowance made in previous years, and no deduction is allowed on buildings, although the Bombay Millowners' Association often protested against this invidious treatment. But since this statement was laid on the table and a respectful protest was made to the Government of India, the Government of India, in their letter dated the 18th January last, only two months ago, intimated to the Bombay Millowners' Association that in future the Local Government would have no objection to allowing a deduction of $2\frac{1}{2}$ per cent. on the value of buildings properly defined. They further intimated in their said letter that the Government of India did not think it advisable to standardise the method of income-tax assessment in view of the varying local circumstances obtaining in each Province. My Lord, this is a most unsatisfactory reply to a very reasonable request of the Bombay Millowners' Association contained in their letter of the 9th May 1911, that whatever the system of assessment is ultimately adopted by the Government of India, it should be standardised throughout India, if not for all kinds of factories, at least all textile factories. I am afraid the Government of India have not seriously considered the consequences and the injustice that are entailed by this want of uniformity. All factories in India are governed by the same law and in these days of keen competition, when the profits of the industry are low and sometimes there is an actual loss, any favour shown to the industries of one Province places the industries of the other Provinces at a disadvantage in the consuming market. My Lord, what justification can the Government of India show for the anomalies contained in the statement I have referred to? Owing to the value of land being high, the mills in Bombay are built two, three, and four-storeys high, while the factories in Calcutta are mostly shed buildings of only the ground floor. Would it be reasonable to suppose that the four-storeyed buildings of the mills of Bombay, having heavy machinery working on the upper floors, often of wood, would last double the number of years that the ground floor buildings of Calcutta factories would last? And yet in the Government of India letter we are asked to accept as reasonable half the amount allowed to the Calcutta millowners. Again, in Bombay, for machinery depreciation, allowances for previous years are taken into account in the calculation, while in all other Provinces they are not. Here again the Government of India in reply said that they did not see any injustice in that method of calculation. Would it be reasonable to suppose that the machinery working in Bombay, the greater portion of which is worked on upper floors where the liability to wear and tear is necessarily greater owing to the impossibility of preventing vibration on these floors, would last longer than the machinery worked on the solid ground floor of Calcutta mills? And yet this is what it comes to, if you accept the existing method of fixing the basis for income-tax purposes in Bombay and Bengal. In Madras a maximum of 10 per cent. on the value of machinery is allowed to be deducted. Surely the life of machinery in Bombay cannot be said to be double that of the same kind of machinery working in Madras. The factory owners of the United Provinces, our friends, the Cawnpore millowners, are certainly very happy people, because there, the statement says, that though as a general rule five per cent. on the cost of machinery is allowed, that rule is not invariably followed, meaning perhaps that extra deductions over five per cent. are made when millowners properly approach the department concerned. There, too, the peculiar method of taking into account the depreciation allowances of previous years, which is in vogue in Bombay, is not at all followed. My Lord, I hope I have clearly proved to this Council that the present practice is most unjust to the factory owners of certain Provinces, inasmuch as it hands them over, in the absence of a definite Imperial policy, to the mercy of assessing officers. In reply to the letter of the Bombay Millowners' Association dated the 20th February 1912 (only a month ago), again requesting the Government of India to standardise throughout the country whatever system of assessment is ultimately adopted, the Government of India said, as recently as the 12th of this month, that the millowners should address the Local Government concerned. May I ask the Hon'ble Member in charge of the Department, how the Local Government can standardise the method of assessment throughout India?

"My Lord, for years past the millowners of Bombay Presidency have been suffering under this disadvantage in competition with our friends in the other Provinces ; and every opportunity has been taken advantage of to put our grievances before the proper authorities. We have written to the Income-tax Collector, have waited upon him in deputation, have respectfully represented our grievances to the Local Government, we have petitioned the Government of India in the past, and the last occasion on which we addressed them was on the 20th February of this year ; and to-day, at the special request of the Bombay Millowners' Association, I, as their representative, bring forward this grievance before this Council, the highest deliberative assembly in the land. The only step that now remains to be taken is to bring forward a Resolution on this subject in this Council, and I propose to bring forward such a Resolution on a future occasion unless our grievance is set right in the interval.

" My Lord, before I conclude, I should like to express our sense of deep gratitude to Your Lordship for the care which has been taken in consulting our convenience, in arranging the sessions of this Council this year. We have gone through a large amount of work during this cold weather with a minimum of inconvenience to the members coming here from long distances. The present arrangement, while it has met with the unanimous approval of those of us who have other avocations of life but are at the same time willing to serve their country, has also I believe met with the approval of members like my friend the Hon'ble Mr. Gokhale, whose sole laudable ambition is to serve the country at any sacrifice. The details of the arrangement have been excellently carried out by the Legislative Department, for which great credit is due to it."

The Maharajadhiraja Bahadur of Burdwan : " My Lord, it is a prosperity Budget that we have to deal with to-day, and I offer to my esteemed friend, Sir Guy Fleetwood Wilson, my heartiest congratulations for having had such a windfall in a year of abnormal expenditure like 1911, during which the long looked-for Royal Visit came off so successfully. While on the subject of the Royal Visit, permit me, as one of the inhabitants of Bengal, to offer to Your Lordship the heartfelt gratitude of myself and my fellow-inhabitants in this Province for the unique favour granted to us by the Royal Presence of the King-Emperor and Queen-Empress in Calcutta. The great and good effect of the Royal Visit to India I need not dilate upon, as it has been appreciated all over the country by every section of the community ; but I take this opportunity of congratulating Your Lordship on the success of the great Durbar at Delhi and the Royal Visit to Calcutta, and I am sure that along with the name of our beloved Sovereign King-Emperor George V, Your Excellency's name will also go down to posterity for having organized this visit which has already had far-reaching beneficial results. Considering the grand and unique occasion of the Royal Delhi Durbar of 1911, it was most satisfactory to learn from the Hon'ble the Finance Minister the other day that the expenditure had been kept well within the estimated figures.

" Now, my Lord, I shall make some observations on certain items of expenditure in the Budget, also on the objects for which they are to be spent. First and foremost in the present Budget, we find the large educational grants which to all of us interested in the advancement of India have been most welcome. The handsome grants towards the spread of primary education are most praiseworthy, but I hope, Sir, that this money will be spent with a certain amount of caution, and that there may not be a repetition of the fact that was brought to light in some parts of Bengal, namely, that large sums were spent on school buildings in rural areas, but that those buildings have either been left unfinished or unused for the want of teachers or students to fill them. As I have already said on the Hon'ble Mr. Gokhale's Primary Education Bill, which I had unfortunately to oppose and which was thrown out by this Council only a few days ago, India is not yet ready for compulsory primary education, nor is it a wise policy to force education among the illiterate masses in a manner that might seem to them not only unnecessary but arbitrary, and might be further misconstrued as being an uncalled-for solicitude on the part of the Government. They have got to be educated : but let that education come as a beacon light and not as an overpowering glare confusing the very minds we wish to enlighten. The Hon'ble Member for Education, while speaking in the second stage of the Budget, mentioned the amount of the provision he had made for the proposed university at Dacca. A good deal of bitter criticism has been offered towards the formation of the Dacca University, and I believe that the way it was necessary for the scheme to see the light of day opened the door for such comments; but I must admit that many of the arguments put forward in the Press against this scheme have struck me as being very much off the mark. I have nothing to say against the proposed Dacca University scheme, but I hope that as hitherto we have been accustomed to have degree-giving universities and not teaching universities, and as it is the intention of the Government to multiply the number of universities in India and to make them less cumbersome than they are at present, and to make the new universities really educating institutions, and as we have, as citizens of the Indian Empire, a right to be consulted by the Government before they push on a new policy which, I frankly admit, has a great deal in its favour, the Government will see the necessity of inviting public discussion on the subject of the utility and importance of teaching universities generally. The present policy of having a large number of universities was foreshadowed by Lord Curzon when he presided over the Educational Conference at Simla some years ago now, as well as on the 2nd November 1903, when the Universities Bill was introduced in the Legislative Council and the Viceroy in the course of the debate said, 'to show the way by which our universities, which are now merely examining boards, can ultimately be converted into teaching universities, in fact to convert higher education in India into a reality instead of a sham.' These weighty words of Lord Curzon are now being translated into action by Your Lordship's Government. But while welcoming this movement, I feel that the Government should convince the general public that the time has come to crystallize the ideas set forth in the Universities Reform Scheme of 1904.

"Now I turn towards the provisions made in the Budget for medical relief and sanitation. I listened to the Hon'ble Surgeon General Sir Pardy Lukis's speech in Council the other day with the greatest interest, and it is most gratifying to know that the Government intend to combat malaria in right earnest, and that experiments how best to fight our obnoxious friend, the mosquito, who is also present in the Imperial Council, will be thought and carried out at no distant date. A word of thanks, my Lord, for granting Calcutta a Tropical School of Medicine, and I hope that in the next year's budget Bengal will be given large grants for tuberculosis hospitals, as that disease is increasing every year.

"My Lord, I next turn to the large amount we are going to spend in building the new seat of the Imperial Government at Delhi. Delhi has hereto meant to most of us a phantasmagoria of past glories of a doubtful character. But now it will mean something serious to us, something substantial to us; for, on the advice of Your Lordship's Government and the Secretary of State for India, our Sovereign has declared that Delhi should henceforth be the Imperial capital. Sir Louis Dane, on the day of the laying of the foundation-stone of new Delhi by the King-Emperor, said words to this effect, that Delhi had regained what she had lost, alluding to the fact of its having been made the capital of India again. We know that Delhi has gained, but I hope not in the sense that the Lieutenant-Governor of the Punjab meant. Let us not lay too much stress on the fact of Delhi's having been the past capital of India, for it was never the capital of India in the sense that we, under British rule, have begun to realize what India means. It is true some sort of Delhi was the capital of the Kauravas and the Pandavas; it is true, round about Delhi, Hindu kings, whose jurisdictions were limited, had their capitals: it is true that the capital of the most bigoted Moghul Emperor Aurangzeb and his weak-minded successors was Delhi: but may I ask, is it not equally true that the Moghul Empire in India never extended to the limits that British India extends? For the above reasons I say, let us brush aside the allusions to these past capitals of sombre associations, and let us rather advocate the fact that since, according to the Government of India despatch, Calcutta has become 'geographically unsuited' to be any longer the capital of British India, and since the Government of India feel that it is prejudicial for a Provincial Governor and a Viceroy to live side by side in Calcutta, and since our King-Emperor has ordained that Delhi is to be the new capital of British India, it has become imperative to rear up an Imperial capital in every sense of the term, wiping away and uprooting the demoralizing atmosphere of the latter-day Moghul Delhi, of the Delhi of the Mutiny days, and establish a new city reproducing within its walls the best principles of British rule, fostering healthy public opinion in it (for, unsurrounded by such opinion, the Government of India will be in a very perilous position), and showing in every possible way that the change is good for the British rule in India, which is our mainstay. When all this is accomplished, the Government will have amply justified the expenditure it is now incurring on building new Delhi and deserved the approbation of all, even of those who have withheld their support.

"My Lord, although it is rather out of place in the Budget debate, yet I cannot help saying something on the changes announced at Delhi so far as Bengal is concerned, especially the creation of a Governor in Council for the Bengal Presidency; but before I allude to this, I feel that I must say a few words regarding the necessity of evicting the Punjab Government from Simla. In the despatch of August 25th, 1911, the Government of India say: 'It is essential that the Supreme Government should not be associated with any particular Provincial Government. It is generally recognised that the capital of a great Central Government should be separate and independent.' As this is the view of the Government of India, I am simply asking them to be consistent. I would say most emphatically that as Simla is the summer capital of the Government of India as well as of the Punjab, the Punjab Government should not, for the reasons laid down in the despatch, be at Simla for nearly seven months in the year, at a time when the Government of India is also there for the same period. Although I am the descendant of a Punjabi family myself, yet I feel that in all fairness to the other Provinces, as well as for the sake of consistency, the Government of India should remove the summer seat of the Punjab Government from Simla.

"Now, my Lord, I come to the creation of a Governor in Council for Bengal which I have welcomed, and for which I will now briefly give my reasons. My Lord, it is true that I supported Lord Curzon's Partition scheme, and it is equally true that I sincerely regret that it has had to be undone: but with awakened China on our North-Eastern Frontier and an awakening Behar on the West, and considering that we are going to have a Governor in Council, I say let us cheerfully accept the new arrangement. My Lord, if the removal of the Viceregal presence from Calcutta connotes the development of the autonomy of Bengal, it will mean a great deal. The appointment of Lord Carmichael as our first Governor is an event that we in Bengal cannot pass over silently, and we are very grateful to Your Lordship for having given us such a tried and experienced servant of the Crown to be the first Governor of new Bengal. Madras's loss is Bengal's gain, and while we sympathise with our Madras friends at losing Lord Carmichael, we welcome His Lordship here; for we feel sure that we shall have a tried statesman at the head of affairs, and one who has already endeared himself to Indians within the short period of his rule in Madras. My Lord, while on this subject, I cannot help saying that the Government of India, now that they have, from their standpoint, done what they have thought best and most beneficial to Bengal, will I hope be pleased to remember that in this Presidency we want always as rulers the best and most trustworthy servants of the Crown, and not merely party politicians; and if this is borne in mind and carried into action, as in the appointment of Lord Carmichael, I am sure that time will justify Your Lordship's repartition of Bengal, although some of us may resent it just now.

"An Executive Council for Behar strikes me as being an extravagant luxury, for the present at any rate, but all the same I congratulate my Behari friends on having scored best in the Delhi Boons, and sincerely wish them all success in the new Province and under the new régime. Doubts have been expressed as to the wisdom of the addition of Orissa and Chota Nagpur to Behar, particularly Orissa, and I admit I share those doubts myself. But I trust that the interests of the people of these parts will be properly safeguarded in the new Province, and I hope that the new Province with its four agrarian codes and heterogeneous population will administratively be the success which it is expected to be.

"In conclusion, my Lord, as you will be leaving Calcutta before long, never again to reside here permanently, as a citizen of Calcutta, as well as a representative of the landholders of Bengal, I beg, in bidding you good-bye, to assure Your Lordship, on behalf of the community I represent, our deep-felt loyalty to the Crown, and I hope that Your Excellency will not forget the zamindars in this Province, who, although few in number and in the minority, deserve encouragement and preservation, and who, if given proper facilities, will not belie the trust hitherto reposed in them by the Imperial Government.

"A few more words and I am done. My Lord, this is the last session of the Imperial Council in Calcutta, and as a Bengal member I share the keen regret that we feel at realizing that we shall henceforth be deprived of having in our midst the high officials of the Government of India and the representatives of British India. I also take this opportunity of thanking the Hon'ble Mr. Gokhale for his kind words about Calcutta. My Lord, I know the changes have been made with the best of intentions, and although we in Bengal feel we have paid a big price for our Governorship, yet, if our loss means a gain to the rest of India, it is our patriotic duty to bear the sacrifice; and from the bottom of my heart I wish Your Lordship Godspeed in the great and bold experiment, and hope its success will mean the dawn of a new era of prosperity to the motherland so very dear to us all."

The Hon'ble Mr. Subba Rao : "My Lord, I may be permitted to say that the Hon'ble Mr. Gokhale has well and truly and without the slightest exaggeration voiced our feelings when he expressed our warm appreciation of the sympathetic and friendly attitude of the Hon'ble Sir James Meston and the Hon'ble Sir Guy Fleetwood Wilson towards the non-official members of this Council.

"I take this opportunity of expressing our satisfaction that the Hon'ble the Finance Minister has been able to see his way to abolish, though gradually, the proprietary estates village service cess in Madras which my Hon'ble friend, the Raja of Kurupam, and myself urged on the Government in the very first session of the Council.

"My Lord, in introducing the Financial Statement, the Hon'ble Finance Minister referred in appropriate terms to the Royal Visit just concluded and also to the estimated expenditure and the savings effected in that connection. In our view, my Lord, the value of the Royal Visit cannot be estimated in lakhs or crores of rupees. As described by Your Lordship so truly and aptly, it is 'a priceless incident in the history of India.' The message sent through Your Lordship by the princes and the people of India to the people of England testifies to the profound impression made on the people of this country by the King-Emperor and shows how deeply they appreciate the recognition by His Majesty of their status as his equal subjects with the British. Never, before, my Lord, was the enthusiasm of the people stirred to such depths and the bonds that unite England and India drawn closer than on this occasion. They are touched by the abiding solicitude evinced by His Majesty for the welfare of all classes of people in this country. They cherish with reverence the gracious message of hope and harmony which he delivered for the future development of this land. They treasure with affection the words of His Gracious Majesty—

'It is my wish, too, that the homes of my Indian subjects may be brightened and their labour sweetened by the spread of knowledge with what follows in its train, a higher level of thought, of comfort and of health.'

[Mr. Subba Rao.]

"Next to the Great Proclamation of 1858, this historic event marks an important era in the annals of this ancient land. It is associated with important administrative changes planned with great foresight and courageous statesmanship. As a sequence of these changes, 'the greatest blunder since the battle of Plassey,' in the words of Lord Macdonnell, has been rectified, and the great wrong done to the people of Bengal righted.

"My Lord, the intelligent public had long been asking that the Government of India should lay down before them a definite goal in the government of the country, instead of pursuing a shifting policy of drift, and hoped that the advent of the King-Emperor would be associated with such an announcement. The people at large have therefore welcomed the policy intimately associated with the change of capital from Calcutta, notwithstanding the clamour of vested interests. As a first and necessary step in the onward path of self-government, they have welcomed the announcement contained in the despatch of Your Lordship's Government in which they point out that—'It is certain that in course of time the just demands of Indians for a larger share in the government of the country will have to be satisfied, and the question will be, how this devolution of power can be conceded without impairing the authority of the Governor General in Council. The only possible solution of the difficulty would appear to be gradually to give the Provinces a larger measure of self-government, until at last India would consist of a number of Administrations autonomous in all Provincial affairs, with the Government of India above them all, and possessing power to interfere in cases of misgovernment, but ordinarily restricting their functions to matters of Imperial concern. In order that this consummation may be attained, it is essential that the Supreme Government should not be associated with any particular Provincial Government. The removal of the Government of India is, therefore, a measure which will, in our opinion, materially facilitate the growth of local self-government on sound and safe lines.'

"There is absolutely no ground, my Lord, for apprehension that the result of this policy 'can only be to lead through disruption to disaster,' as prophesied by Lord Curzon. The connection of Britain is so beneficial and necessary to this country that it is the ambition of India to grow under the ægis of Britain to a self-governing member of the British Empire, like the colonies. There is absolutely no cause to attempt to wriggle out this position so clearly defined. This is but a bare minimum of the immediate requirements of the country for its healthy and progressive development in the future.

"It is because this first step in the direction of popular autonomy is courageously laid down by the Government of India that the transfer to Delhi, however disadvantageous and however costly, is welcomed by the intelligent public in all parts of the country, even by distant Madras, which is now further removed from the new capital. We hope, my Lord, that this policy will be steadily and courageously pursued by the Government of India.

"Already, my Lord, attempts are made in some Provinces not to bring some of the items in the Provincial Budget under the scrutiny of Provincial Legislative Councils and carry out the intentions of the Government of India, who point out in the Resolution of the 15th November 1909 that 'members will in future take a real and active part in shaping the financial proposals of the year.' Thus some items are not allowed to be examined by the Legislative Council, as in Madras, when the Finance Committee meets or when the Financial Statement is discussed, on the ground that they are under correspondence with the Government of India or the Secretary of State. So also items entered in the revised budget estimates escape the scrutiny of the Council. Similarly, the details of the expenditure of the large sums of money placed at the disposal of Provincial Governments under the head of Education and Sanitation do not pass under the review of the Legislative Council. I urge that these sums should not be handed over to Provincial Governments until definite proposals approved by local Legislative Councils are placed before the Education Department. I submit, my Lord, that opportunity should be taken, when revising the regulations and rules under the Councils Act, to remove all doubts, so that Legislative Councils may have full powers to deal with all the items in the Budget.

"I shall now turn to that large and important department of the State, the Army, which costs us something like thirty crores of rupees, and over which

BUDGET.[Mr. Subba Rao ; Raja of Partabgarh.] [25TH MARCH 1912.]

His Excellency Sir O'Moore Creagh presides with such distinction. I may take the liberty to mention that, in connection with the Royal Visit, we fondly hoped also that an announcement would be made, throwing open in some measure commissions in the Army to qualified Indians, especially after the Proclamation of the late King-Emperor in November 1908 recognising 'the valour and fidelity of my Indian troops' and expressing his 'high appreciation of their martial instincts, their splendid discipline and their faithful readiness for service.' My Lord, the martial talent in the country finds no scope under the present arrangements of the Government, who seem to consider so far that their duty is confined only to the intellectual and economic development of the people. They are absolutely excluded from all positions of trust and responsibility in the Army, and the highest places to which they can hope to rise are those of Subadar-Major and Risaldar-Major. Without referring to the military opinion on the subject, I may say that even Mr. Chirol, the author of Indian Unrest, favours a cautious scheme for opening careers to Indian in the Army. He says:—

'It is a strange anomaly that at a time when we have no hesitation in introducing Indians into our Executive Councils, those who serve the King-Emperor in the Indian Army can only rise to quite subordinate rank . . . Under the present conditions the Indian Army does not offer a career that can attract Indians of good position, though it is just among the landed aristocracy and gentry of India that military traditions are continued with the strongest traditions of loyalty. . . . Some of the best military opinion in India favours, I believe, an experimental scheme for the gradual promotion of Native officers, carefully selected and trained, to field rank in a certain number of regiments which would ultimately be entirely officered by Indians just in the same way as a certain number of regiments in the Egyptian Army have always been wholly officered by Egyptians.'

"My Lord, the question has been hanging fire since the time when His Royal Highness the Duke of Connaught was in command in this country. An Imperial Cadet Corps was established during the time of Lord Curzon and a training school started at Dehra Dun for the purpose. But so far, no steps have been taken to utilise the military talent in the country and give Indians commissions in the country. I trust that during the term of His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief, who has been identified with India during the past forty years, we shall have the privilege of associating his name with this much-needed and long-delayed reform."

The Hon'ble Raja of Partabgarh : "My Lord, the year that is drawing to a close has been exceptionally fortunate for India and its teeming millions. It has been rendered auspicious and important by reason of the most gracious visit of our Sovereign and the Queen-Empress and the Coronation Durbar held at Delhi. This epoch-making event has evoked demonstrations of loyalty and devotion which stand unparalleled in the annals of this land. The impression which the Royal Visit has left upon the country will largely conduce to the social and material progress of its people. The generous announcements made at the grand Durbar have touched to the quick the heart of India and had the effect of further strengthening our ties of loyalty to the British throne. My Lord, we are fully cognizant of the manifold blessings which our country enjoys under the British rule, and our sense of devotion to the person of our King is inborn.

"The transfer of the capital to Delhi will be beneficial and advantageous to the public interest, and will facilitate to a very high degree inter-communications between the Imperial and Provincial Governments.

"We had bounteous crops and good rains and can safely hope for a bright future.

"My Lord, it is a happy sign of the times that our attention is now being turned to industries other than agriculture. There is no doubt that agriculture has been our chief industry and will remain so, but depending, as we do, on the mercy of the monsoons in matters agricultural, the development of other industries will save millions of our poor countrymen from starvation in the years of bad monsoons.

"Education and sanitation are receiving our fullest attention and are chiefly the most crying needs at the present time. No country in the British Empire stands in greater need of sanitary reforms and progress than India. While other countries have adopted improved methods of sanitation, we have lagged behind. In the meantime several forces are at work which are decimating our population. There are, of course, clear indications that the Government of India have come to realize the gravity of the situation and have applied their serious thought to the solution of this problem. The creation of a Bacteriological Department, the inauguration of an Indian Research Fund and the holding of Sanitary Conferences—all point to the desire on the part of the Government to combat the evil. The allotment of 85 lakhs of rupees, of which 10 lakhs are earmarked for the Central Research Institute for works in public hygiene and for the establishment of a school of tropical medicine in Calcutta, is a practical proof of such desire. The money spent on research work is no doubt well spent. India is already so sorely smitten by plague and malaria that the appearance of a new disease such as yellow fever or kala-azar would indeed be a terrible misfortune. But above all we want a well-organised and properly trained sanitary staff. I would also venture to submit that in order to achieve more satisfactory results the people themselves should be made to realize the importance of domestic sanitation and hygiene, and a scheme should be discussed for the removal of the utter ignorance of sanitary laws which pervade the masses.

“My Lord, Your Excellency’s weighty pronouncement at the last Convocation of the Calcutta University in regard to the future policy of the Government in the matter of education, the liberal grant of 50 lakhs for truly popular education announced at the Royal Durbar, and the assurance to supplement the same in future years on a generous scale, are the surest guarantee of our national progress and are clear indications of the fact that some day, distant though it may be, ignorance and darkness in the country will give place to knowledge and light. Your Lordship’s recent visits to Calcutta hostels with those of last year have been immensely appreciated and admired as showing Your Excellency’s deep interest in the welfare of our rising generation. We can but express our profound gratitude for the enormous good to our land within the short space Your Lordship has been the controller of our destinies.

“My Lord, dealing with the Provincial interest, I beg to submit that the United Provinces want the protecting help of the Supreme Government in the matter of the development of their natural resources. They want a more liberal grant of money for irrigation works to protect areas which are liable to drought. But above all they want what is their due—a liberal grant of a fair share of their income to be spent on education and sanitation. Both these schemes which tend to the intellectual and physical development of the people have suffered for want of funds. The Government and the people both are unanimous in their demand of a just apportionment of land-revenue raised in those Provinces to bring them on a level of equality with the sister Provinces. I trust the Government of India will give their due consideration to the claims of the United Provinces.

“My Lord, on behalf of the Talukqdars of Oudh, whose suffrages I have the honour to represent, I beg to express my sincere gratification and warm gratitude for Your Lordship’s assurance to respect their rights and maintain their privileges, and I, as their spokesman, beg to assure Your Excellency that in future, as in the past, they will continue to co-operate with the Government in all measures calculated to promote the well-being of the country.

“My Lord this year marks the close of the first triennial term for which this Council was constituted under the new scheme, and it is our special pride to look back to-day upon past years during which a new era has dawned upon the country due to the policy of harmony and conciliation enunciated by the Government of India. In conclusion I beg to congratulate the Hon’ble Finance Minister on the caution and foresight displayed by him in dealing with the financial problems of this country and on the surpluses he has been able to announce. The policy of economy which he has inaugurated must result in a substantial saving which can be well utilized in the realization to a full measure of Your Lordship's cherished desire, namely, the improvement of education and sanitation.

"Last but not the least I beg to express my sincere appreciation of the super-excellent services done to the finance of India by the Hon'ble Sir James Meston, whose richly deserved elevation to the Lieutenant-Governorship of the United Provinces has been hailed with feelings of unbounded joy all over the country by the Press and the public alike.

"My Lord, since it is the last sitting of the Council in this old capital of ours, I cannot help offering my sincere wishes for the growth and development of Calcutta under the fostering care of its new Governor, and at the same time hope that our new capital which has been created by the Royal Command at Delhi will very soon expand into a city worthy of the Imperial seat in India."

The Hon'ble Pandit Madan Mohan Malaviya : "My Lord, I cordially join the Hon'ble Mr. Gokhale in expressing our high appreciation of, and gratitude to, the Hon'ble Sir James Meston for all the assistance we have received from him in doing our work in this Council. If I may add anything to what has been said by him, it is only to give expression to the great satisfaction with which the appointment of the Hon'ble Member has been hailed in the United Provinces and the deep gratitude the people there feel to Your Excellency's Government for having given us so able, sympathetic and broad-minded a Lieutenant-Governor as the Hon'ble Member. We all join, my Lord, with the Hon'ble Mr. Gokhale in the hope that, after serving the full term of Lieutenant-Governorship in the United Provinces, Sir James Meston will come back to the Government of India as Finance Member to help forward the scheme of financial improvement on which he has laboured so long and so well. I also join in expressing our gratitude to the Hon'ble Sir Guy Fleetwood Wilson for all the assistance he has given us, and I trust that he will come back to us fully restored to health to promote the interests of India for the full term of his office.

"My Lord, the proposal that has been put forward by the Hon'ble Mr. Gokhale regarding the appointment of a Royal Commission to make a comprehensive examination of our financial position and to recommend a definite financial policy is one which deserves the earnest consideration and support of the Government. My Lord, I hope it will have that support, and that a Royal Commission will in due time be appointed to deal with the fundamental questions of finance which Mr. Gokhale has suggested. But even before that is done, and in the immediate present, there is one pressing financial reform to which I would invite Your Lordship's attention. Last year both the Hon'ble Mr. Gokhale and myself urged the necessity of revising the financial arrangements which exist between the Imperial and the Provincial Governments, and of putting them on a sound basis. It is undeniable that the unitary system which has prevailed so long has proved to be unsatisfactory in so far as the development of the Provinces is concerned. Under this system the Government of India have commanded the resources of the entire country. They have made allotments in such measure as they have thought proper to the various Local Governments to meet Provincial needs. The allotments have been made on no principle. The result is that four-sevenths of the total revenues of the country are being spent on Imperial purposes and about three-sevenths only for Provincial purposes. Thus the Army Department and other objects which have been considered Imperial have received all the financial support which they have asked for, and have flourished ; the needs of the people in matters which directly affect their welfare have not received half as much support as they deserved. This has sadly stood in the way of ameliorating the condition of the people. And so long as this system lasts, it will not be possible to do full justice to the most pressing popular requirements. The time has therefore come, I submit, when the Government of India should replace this unitary system by a federal system of Provincial finance. A great deal has been done to pave the way for this reform in the principles which have been laid down by the Government of India

[Pandit Madan Mohan Malaviya.]

- India to regulate financial settlements between the Government of India and the Local Governments. The first of these principles, as it was stated before the Royal Commission by the Secretary to the Government of India, is—

‘that the Government of India shall retain certain administrative services which it is inexpedient to hand over to Provincial Governments, and that they shall reserve the revenue from those services and such a share of the other public revenues as shall be adequate to the expenditure falling upon them.’

“Now, my Lord, the expenditure falling upon the Government of India is principally confined to the army and to a few services which are directly under it. This expenditure has reached such a high limit that it cannot require large additions from year to year. To meet this expenditure the Government of India might reserve to itself the revenue which is derived from what are called the Imperial heads, and to meet the expenditure, which would not be met in this manner, require the various Provincial Governments to make a rateable contribution based on a definite and reasonable principle. Having secured this, it should leave the whole income from heads which are at present shared to the Provincial Governments. Under the existing system, the Government of India has at its disposal an unduly large share of growing revenues, and the Provinces have consequently an inadequate share of such revenues at their command. The result is that after meeting Imperial expenditure the Government of India is in the unsatisfactory position of having large surpluses on its hands and of finding it necessary to distribute them to the various Provinces. And this it does without any definite principle. The result of this has been that some of the Provinces have received a larger measure of support from the Government of India than other Provinces. My Province unfortunately has suffered most under this system, and I submit that, not only in the interest of the United Provinces, but in the interests of all the Provinces of India as a whole, it is necessary that the system should be altered. Not until this is done, my Lord, will there be sufficient funds available to Provincial Governments to devote to the systematic improvement of the condition of the people, and that condition loudly calls for more attention. We are all deeply thankful to Your Lordship's Government for the grants that have been made for education and sanitation. It has given us great satisfaction to know, my Lord, that these subjects are dear to Your Excellency's heart, and while we feel grateful to Your Lordship for what has been done in this direction, we hope and trust that more and more will be done as time goes on. But it is my conviction, my Lord, that, until the present system of financial arrangement is altered in the way suggested above, it will not be possible to secure adequate and continuous support to the cause of education and sanitation for all the various Provinces of India. The grants that have been made are large, and, being so, they have called forth much gratitude. But the needs of education and sanitation are very much larger. That the Government of India is fully alive to this fact is clear in all the utterances that have been made on its behalf, notably in the important utterance made by the Hon'ble Member for Education. He has said that the Government of India are profoundly dissatisfied with the present rate of the progress of education, and desire that that rate should be greatly accelerated; that they are determined to combat ignorance and to extend the blessing of education through the length and breadth of this ancient land; but this can only be done if adequate provision is made for funds to do so, and that provision will not be possible unless Local Governments are put in charge permanently of larger shares of growing revenues to be specially devoted to the purposes of education and sanitation. My Lord, I need not dwell upon the great need of doing more in both these directions. The progress that has been made and the progress which we hope will be made with the grants made for the purpose, is as nothing compared to what remains to be done. The people are sunk in ignorance, and they are exposed therefore to the evils of ignorance and its concomitants—poverty, misery and suffering. In the field of sanitation there is even a greater deal to be done, and we should not hope to see it done merely with the help of non-recurring grants made when a surplus in the hands of the Government of India make it possible for it to make such grants. No, my Lord, if the situation is to be materially improved, what is needed is that larger shares of growing revenues should be allotted to Provincial Governments, to spend regularly from year to year and independently of whether the Government of India may or may not have any surplus in their hands in any particular year. There is only one other suggestion which I beg to lay before Your Excellency and the Council to-day for ameliorating the condition of the people, and that is that the Government should strengthen the people a little to fight their own economic and social battles. As I have said before, it is no doubt a matter of deep thankfulness that the Government of India are finding more funds to help them to do so, and we hope that as time goes on the Government will find more and more funds for the purpose. But, my Lord, no amount of funds which may be found will bring about the desired result unless the co-operation of the people is enlisted in the cause both of education and sanitation. In order that this might be done, I beg to suggest the formation of village-panchayats throughout the country. That is a measure the importance of which cannot be exaggerated. At the present moment the people are in a very sorry plight. In numerous places they are exposed to malaria; in numerous villages they do not get even good water to drink; in all but a few places there is no system of drainage worth speaking of. It is not at all surprising that, living as they do, the people fall easy victims to plague, cholera and other devastating diseases, that they die so largely from preventible deaths. When we look at Calcutta, when we look at the head-quarters of Government in the different Provinces, and compare their sanitary condition with the condition of the villages around them in which the great bulk of the people dwell, we may well be reminded of the great duty we owe to the people to secure to them the elementary benefits of sanitation. It is high time that more should be done in that direction than is being done. I submit, my Lord, that one great effectual step which can be taken towards this end is to create village-panchayats, to give them some initiative, and to place some funds in their power and thus to help and encourage them to combat the evils of ignorance and insanitation. My Lord, the Government has been labouring in many directions to help the people; the Government has started Agricultural Banks; it has helped to organise Co-operative Credit Societies for the benefit of the agricultural classes, and much good has resulted from these societies. But the ignorance of the people proves to be a great difficulty at every step. If malaria is to be fought, if quinine is to be distributed, difficulty is experienced in doing it because of the ignorance of the people. The most elementary measures of sanitation are sometimes viewed with suspicion and distrust. All this will be avoided if there are constituted regular village-panchayats to which the elders of the village, men in whom the people of the village have confidence, should be appointed. It should be their duty to explain to the people the advantages of the measures which the Government may introduce for their benefit, and also to represent to the Government the needs of the people, and to adopt and carry out with the consent of the people such measures as may be needed to protect them from disease and to promote their welfare.

"My Lord, I beg to lay this humble suggestion for the consideration of the Government. I hope it will be considered and adopted to the great benefit of the people and the great advantage of good government."

The Hon'ble Raja of Kurupam said: "My Lord, it is my pleasant duty to congratulate the Hon'ble Finance Member and Your Excellency's Government on the very satisfactory Budget that he has placed before this Council. It records a year of phenomenal progress and prosperity. It shows that the revenue for the year was better by nearly 3½ millions, that the expenditure has decreased by about 1½ millions, leaving a surplus of over 2½ millions. This is a result which, as the Hon'ble Finance Member points out in his very interesting speech, could not have been attained, but for the dramatic change in the seasonal outlook in the closing months of the past year, as if nature herself had resolved to make the year of the Royal visit one of unalloyed happiness for the rejoicing millions of this continent.

[Raja of Kurupam.]

"It is my next duty to express for myself and on behalf of my constituency our deep thankfulness to the Government for the abolition of the proprietary village service cess. The discontinuance of this cess at this time is all the more gratifying to us in that it has been effected at a time when, according to the Hon'ble Finance Member, the position of the Government is not such as to justify any important remission of taxes. During the last five years, both in the local Council and in this Council, I have pointed out the unjustifiableness of continuing this cess; and I have no doubt that its abolition will be felt as a special boon by the zamindari raiyat and all those interested in his well-being.

"It is a matter for sincere gratification that the Government have been able to effect considerable economies in all directions, in pursuance of the assurance given by them when the Hon'ble Mr. Gokhale brought forward his resolution about retrenchment in public expenditure; and the Government is to be congratulated on their having taken the Council into their confidence by giving an account of what they have been doing in this direction till now.

"The next remark I wish to make is about the very judicious way in which the Government have utilised the year's large surpluses. Education, medical and sanitary services, agriculture, have all received proper recognition. It is the policy definitely put forward by the Government with regard to the first of these, that is, education, which, I believe, will be most appreciated, and approved by the country. It is a matter for sincere rejoicing that the Government have committed themselves to a policy of extending popular education. They have set apart the very handsome amount of 125 lakhs for next year for educational service. The public are really thankful to the Government for their liberality in this respect, though, of course, great headway has yet to be made in this direction. It is to be earnestly hoped that the Local Governments will make vigorous efforts to utilise the large sums placed at their disposal by carrying out a definite programme of educational and sanitary reform without needless delay. I cannot leave this subject without thanking the Hon'ble Finance Member for the very handsome compliment which he paid the other day to our much respected countryman, the Hon'ble Mr. Gokhale, for his invaluable services in the cause of popular education. It is to be devoutly hoped that the vigorous extension of elementary education among the masses will speedily pave the way for the attainment of the object which my friend, the Hon'ble Mr. Gokhale, has so much at heart, by showing the benefits of education to the masses and thereby creating in them a real desire for it, by bringing into existence the kind of vernacular literature which will be most suitable to them, and by the creation of an adequate supply of trained teachers fitted for the responsible work of instructing the popular mind. I venture to add that the money which the Madras Government has proposed to spend on the establishment of Government model schools in our Presidency may be far more usefully spent on elementary education, in view of the extreme disfavour with which that scheme has been received by a large mass of enlightened opinion in the Presidency. It is very widely believed that the change in the educational policy of the Government, indicated by the establishment of expensive Government model schools, would be highly detrimental to indigenous educational endeavour.

"In this connection I cannot help bringing to the notice of the Government the very wide dissatisfaction prevalent in regard to the existing grant-in-aid code. I earnestly hope that nothing will be done to discourage private effort in education, and that, in respect of grants, the Government will adopt a more liberal policy. The mention of my Presidency leads me to make just one more remark in regard to the favour which the Government have shown to that Presidency in the present Budget. I am sure that the substantial grant of 25 lakhs in aid of the Madras water and drainage works, though but a third of what the Madras Corporation applied for, will go far to allay the feeling which has grown up among us that the claims of our Presidency do not receive the same recognition from the Government of India as those of other Provinces. I venture to express the hope that this grievance of the Southern Presidency will not long remain unredressed, that the needs and claims of its people, whose level headedness and steadfast loyalty have been so conspicuously displayed in the troubled times now happily past, will be more and more recognised, and that greater encouragement and better opportunities of advancement will be given to those who are bearing the burden of the administration in the Province.

" The announcement of the methods by which the cost of the new capital at Delhi is to be met, that is, partly from loans and partly from surplus revenues, has evoked some severe criticism both in and out of the Council. It has been said that the effect would be to conceal the real cost of the construction of the capital from the public. While it is difficult to understand how this concealment can be successfully effected, I fail to see how the method proposed can be otherwise than suitable and beneficial, as it will best enable the Government to adjust means to ends without serious interference with the normal course of expenditure in other directions. And I venture to add that, in my humble opinion, the idea that the future generations should alone be saddled with the cost of the new capital is, to say the least of it, not a very commendable one.

" My Lord, probably the most important legislative measure of the present session is the Co-operative Societies Bill which became law the other day. The alterations embodied in the new Act, such as the abolition of the statutory distinction between urban and rural societies, and the relaxation of certain restrictions imposed by the old Act, will largely facilitate the rapid spread of Co-operative Credit Societies, with the result of perceptibly raising the condition of the vast numbers of agriculturists and artisans of limited means throughout the country.

" My Lord, one word more and I have done. Dealing with the Budget Estimate for 1912-1913, the Hon'ble the Finance Member has told us that our prospects to-day are excellent and that we have every hope that the brightness of our outlook will continue. I am sure that every one in the Council will join in the hope that the coming year will fulfil these expectations, and that the next year's Budget will be as good a record of progress and prosperity as this year's has been. "

The Hon'ble Mr. Mudholkar : " My Lord, this is the second year since the constitution of the enlarged Legislative Councils on the new basis that this Council has the satisfaction of congratulating the Government and the Hon'ble the Finance Member on a prosperity budget. We have not only the opium windfall a second time due to unprecedentedly high prices obtained on restricted sales, but an improvement in revenue almost all round accompanied by substantial reductions in expenditure in very many directions. During the discussion on the Financial Statement I tendered my acknowledgments to Government for the efforts which are being made by the several departments to cut down unnecessary items. The emphatic and reassuring declaration made by Your Lordship in your speech of last year is bearing fruit.

" At the same time, my Lord, it is not superfluous to point out that while we have to be thankful for what has been accomplished, we must not forget that much still remains to be done and that we can never afford to relax our vigilance.

The close watch, scrutiny and control of the Head of the Government and of the Finance Department are as needed as ever, and the serious responsibility which lies on the members of this Council has ever to be borne in mind by them. With all the vigilant guard which was kept by the Hon'ble the Finance Member and his able and gifted lieutenant, whose well, deserved elevation to the chiefship of a Province has given unalloyed pleasure to all his colleagues in this Council, the natural tendency of expenditure to increase and of waste and irregular payments to creep in could not be completely repressed. The Explanatory Memorandum and the Appropriation Report issued the other day afford some curious instances. The expenditure under the head ' General Administration in India,' which stood at 201 lakhs in 1908-09, now stands at 233 lakhs. The increase to 211 lakhs in 1910-11 is explained, on the ground that additional expenditure was necessitated by the new Council schemes and the formation of a new Department of Education. Passing over 1911-12, when a crore and 20 lakhs were required, most of it in connection with the Royal visit, the Delhi Durbar and the Coronation celebrations, we find that the Budget for the coming year estimates these charges at 233 lakhs, that is, 22 lakhs more than the actuals of 1910-11. The greater part of it is explained, but still there remains a portion which seems avoidable expenditure. There would seem to be too frequent a resort to putting officers on special duty. The necessity of the propriety of many of these special appointments are not obvious to the uninitiated. I can understand the appointments made in connection with the Prices Inquiry; but very many of the others both in the Imperial Secretariat and in the Provinces stand in need of justification. Let us bear in mind how greatly strengthened our Secretariats have been. Not to go very far back; the expenditure under this head stood at 186 lakhs in 1906-07, that is, after the 'strengthening' operations of the period of efficiency 1899 to 1905. In 1909-10 it advanced further by 13 lakhs. In 1910-11 came the formation of a new Department; and 1912-13 will see the creation of a new Province. With the great increase in the permanent staff which has taken place, appointments on special duty seem hardly to be called for. My Lord, there is a belief that some of these appointments are made simply to enable an officer to mark time till a suitable post is available for him. The matter is one which would I hope receive close examination from the Finance Department.

BUDGET.

"Another quarter to which I might be permitted to direct the attention of the Council is the heading 'Cost of Collection.' The expenditure debitable to land-revenue has risen from 548 lakhs in 1908-09 to 595 lakhs in 1912-13—an increase of 47 lakhs. The land-revenue has increased from 3,080 lakhs to 3,344 lakhs. The proportion of the increase of expenditure is higher than that of the revenue. The increase in the coming year over last year would be a little less than 24 lakhs.

"Similarly, in the Police charges there is an increase of 69 lakhs. I bear in mind the explanation given in the memorandum of the Hon'ble Sir James Meeson. But with the improvement that has taken place in the state of the country there is room for considerable reduction, especially in the strength of the Criminal Intelligence Department.

"My Lord, considerable saving in every department can be effected without impairing efficiency by a larger employment of indigenous agency. In the statement which was placed on the table of the Council on the 10th of January last we find that the number of Europeans and Eurasians in receipt of salaries of Rs. 500 a month and over was 4,466 in 1910, while there were only 924 Hindus and Muhammadans. With the great spread of education that has taken place a far larger number than 924 can certainly be found capable of holding those higher appointments.

"In connection with this matter, my Lord, I might be permitted to mention that the country hoped that on the occasion of the Royal Visit steps would be taken for throwing open the posts of commissioned officers in the army to Indians of loyalty, position and merit. I had advanced a similar request in the speech which I made at the time of the Budget discussion in 1902. This is a reform which has been long talked of. When His Royal Highness the Duke of Connaught was in this country at the head of the Bombay Army, His Royal Highness suggested the establishment of an Indian Sandhurst. Nearly a quarter of a century has passed since then, and Indians are, so far as their position in the army is concerned, practically where they were then. The admission of selected Indians to higher posts in the army is demanded as much in the interest of economy as on the grounds of justice and high policy.

"There is one more subject to which I would with Your Lordship's permission briefly refer. The question of railway finance and railway working has of late attracted considerable attention from the commercial community and publicists. Last year I submitted some considerations to the Council on the subject. Since then, and especially during the last three months, railway matters have been very much to the front. This is a healthy sign. Railways occupy a most important place in our social economy. The capital liability on account of State railways at the end of March 1911 was something like 482 crores. The interest charges alone came to about 8½ crores, and little less than 5 crores were paid yearly in the shape of annuities for the purchase values of the company-made lines taken over by the State. Their value in affording protection from famine and in the development of interprovincial and outside trade is admitted to be of the utmost degree. Their expansion and improvement are recognised as eminently necessary by all thoughtful people. At the same time it is clearly perceived that expansion can in the first place safely proceed on a scale which is not beyond the capacity of the country, and that secondly it must be based on business principles and proceed on the reasonable certitude of the outlay proving remunerative in the not distant future. My Lord, it has become necessary to state these truisms because of the attempts that are being made by some outside commercial and financial magnates to accelerate construction without sufficient reference to the financial capabilities of the country and the remunerative character of the projects. In view of the pressure which is brought to bear upon Government, it is incumbent upon the non-official members of this Council as representing the interest of the permanent residents of the country to scrutinise every project from that point of view. The main lines have already been constructed. The expansion that is required is more in the direction of branch lines and feeder lines and of increasing the capacities of the arterial railways. The present traffic congestion emphasizes the immediate necessity of the last.

BUDGET.[Mr. Mudholkar.]

"While on one hand we have to guard ourselves against being hustled by outside pressure, we have on the other to meet the claims of various inland tracts and districts for being brought within easy reach of railway communications and of having their natural resources developed. The object can best be achieved by offering more liberal terms than the present to private enterprise, and encouraging the formation of companies with rupee capital. The claims of tracts exposed to visitations of famine can be adequately met from the funds available for protective railways out of the famine insurance grant.

"Irrespective of the branch and feeder lines for which private companies have received concessions and of the extensions which are being carried on on existing lines, there were more than 170 railways and tramways projected up to the end of December 1910. The remunerative capacity of some of these is open to question and of the rest varies greatly. Indeed, there are some big projects about which serious misgivings are entertained. If these projects were to be carried out by private companies on their own responsibility, Government might well trust them to take care of themselves. But for many of the larger projects the entire responsibility will fall on the State sooner or later if not from the beginning, and in regard to the majority of the rest some liability will have to be incurred. The determination of the railway programme is in the competence of Government; but it will be good for all if an opportunity is provided for the various interests in the country to urge their views in regard to the same.

"The necessity of a thorough discussion of the existing railway policy between the men of the people and the Government has become obvious in other directions also. Though the State owns the trunk lines, and the liability for their cost and maintenance is upon the country, it does not receive many of the advantages which results from unity of ownership. The Companies to whom the privilege of working the greater number of these lines is granted are in their desire to promote their individual interests—a natural enough procedure—carrying on competition in such a way as to nullify the main objects of State ownership. In the Resolution in regard to railway freights my friend the Hon'ble Sir Vithaldas Thackersey and I pointed out the hardships and the loss to which interprovincial trade and indigenous industries were subjected by the traffic arrangements of the rival way. I would here indicate merely some of the financial disadvantages resulting from the system.

"In the movement of goods it is not the shortest and most convenient route by which a Company where traffic originates despatches a consignment. It adopts that which would give it the longest lead, though this might be a circuitous one when a more direct and shorter route over another railway was available. Thus the most direct and shortest route for the coal of Raniganj or Jheria to Lahore is by the Oudh and Rohilkhand Railway via Mogalserai and Saharanpur. But the East Indian Railway adopts the route via Allahabad and Delhi, which means an addition of 35 miles, and the Bengal-Nagpur Railway adopts the Bilaspur-Katni route though this involves transit over 380 additional miles. This means an additional haulage charge which is Rs. 2.2 per mile for a goods-train on the East Indian Railway and Rs. 2.5 on the Bengal-Nagpur Railway. In addition to this extra burden which falls on the country there is an unnecessary longer employment of goods wagons on the East Indian Railway. One day for going and one for returning are lost in the case of each truck ; on the Bengal-Nagpur Railway 18 to 19 days for the two journeys. There is a favourite complaint about the deficiency of the rolling stock, and here we have one of the causes which bring about shortage of waggons.

BUDGET.

[Mr. Mudholkar ; Maung Mye.]

"Each Company regards itself as a separate unit and budgets for its requirement without reference to the fact that the rolling stock being the property of the State ought to constitute the common property of all. Crores have been spent in recent years in making additions to the rolling stock—the allotment in 1909-10 was $6\frac{1}{2}$ crores, in 1910-11 466 lakhs. There is here a considerable scope for economy if we keep ever present before us the fact that the State is the owner of these railways.

"There are several other matters connected with railway finance and the more economic working of our railways which, though very important, cannot be satisfactorily treated without dealing with the general question of railway policy ; and into this question it would not be convenient to go in a discussion on the Budget. I have left them out for a more suitable opportunity.

"Well, I have pointed out some of the shortcomings ; but I must again give my testimony to the excellent work which has been done by the Railway Department of the Government."

The Hon'ble Maung Mye : "My Lord, this is the first session of the Imperial Legislative Council which I have had the honour of attending, and I do not want to take up much of the Council's time ; but I have a few remarks to make on financial and educational matters connected with the Province which I have the good fortune to represent. Burma is a backward Province. It cries out for development. We have often heard people say that capitalists are unwilling to invest their capital in Burma for want of better communications and transport facilities, and in consequence the natural resources of the Province remain undeveloped. Burma has a very unfavourable financial settlement, and the grant of 20 lakhs for roads, though we are grateful for it, is a trifle compared to what we have lost on the financial settlement and is wholly inadequate for our requirements.

"The Government of India has given 60 lakhs of recurring grants and 65 lakhs of non-recurring grants for education and 85 lakhs for sanitation, agriculture and research—210 lakhs in all. Out of this we only get about 11 and Bengal about 56 lakhs.

"Money does not go so far in Burma as in India. If grants are distributed merely in proportion to population, we do not get enough. My people pay heavy taxes. We pay Rs. 5-4 per head of population ; the United Provinces Rs. 2 and the two Bengals and Behar pay only Re. 1-4 per head of population. We are paying more per head and should get more per head in return.

"Now I come to educational matters. We are anxious that a university should be established in Burma. We want this done particularly now that Calcutta is becoming a mere Provincial town. The Government of India is going away and the Beharis and Oorins are going to Patna. Then the Dacca University will take away the Eastern Bengalis. So only a very small number of Bengalis will be left to manage the Calcutta University.

"It is not proper that Burma should be under Calcutta any longer. We are a separate people and we want to develop on our own lines. It is true there are not many colleges in Burma, but there were only two colleges in

BUDGET.

[Maung Mye ; Nawab Saiyid Muhammad ; Raja of Dighapatia.] [25TH MARCH 1912.]

Bombay when a university was started there. Local interest in higher education would grow very fast if we had a university of our own.

"There is a growing feeling in Burma that we do not come much under the notice of the Government of India and Burma suffers much from her geographical misfortune. Perhaps if the members of the Government visited Burma, they would understand the state of affairs better.

"We had hoped that the Royal boons would have done something for us, and while the Government of India is giving away lakhs of rupees to the other Provinces, it is only right and proper that Burma should also get a Royal boon of recurring and non-recurring grants for a university. Burma came late under the British Government. She wants more care and attention from the Government of India."

The Hon'ble Nawab Saiyid Muhammad : "My Lord, I congratulate the Hon'ble the Finance Minister for the excellent Budget he has presented to the Council, and also for the sympathetic tone which pervades his statements. The Budget is, if I may say so, in keeping with the spirit of the year, and it is a singular coincidence that the prosperity has been attained simultaneously with the august visit of Their Imperial Majesties, in India. My Lord, it is matter of immense pleasure and satisfaction that the unique and historical event which it was India's good fortune to witness at Delhi, I mean Their Imperial Majesties' Coronation Durbar, was a great success. The people of this country rejoice that they had an opportunity of manifesting their loyalty to their beloved Sovereign in person, and they feel sure that His Majesty has carried with him happy recollections and the gratitude of his Indian subjects.

"My Lord, since the Financial Statement has emerged from the committee stage, Field Marshal Sir William Nicholson's Committee has started for India to inquire into the Army expenditure of this country. I trust the Government of India will see the absolute necessity of allowing a wider scope to this Committee and afford all facilities for the thorough and exhaustive investigation into the finances of the Indian Army. Already great forces are at work against any possible reduction, but I sincerely hope that Your Excellency's Government will find the Nicholson Committee helpful in readjusting the military finances of this country.

"The next point, my Lord, is the congestion with railways. This has no doubt been very prejudicial to the trade as appears from the published proceedings both of the Bengal and Bombay Chambers of Commerce. Some have urged to bring out a traffic expert, while others want more money. The former seems a very reasonable request, and there is enough scope for a real expert on our railway systems. As for more funds, the Railway Budget showed a substantial lapse in the current year's allotments and no less than Rs. 152.24 lakhs is expected to lapse under the head 'Provision for the purchase of stores in England.' I have no doubt that the Hon'ble Member for the Commerce and Industry Department will be able to satisfy us on this point; but nevertheless it is clear that the Railway Board have not fully utilised the funds placed at their disposal.

"My Lord, I take this opportunity to acknowledge, on behalf of my Presidency, the educational and sanitary policies of Your Excellency's Government which has met with widespread approbation all over the country. It is our fervent hope that this policy will develop gradually and Your Excellency's name will be handed down to posterity as the promoter of an era of new life in India in which education and sanitation are destined to play a most important part."

The Hon'ble Raja of Dighapatia : "My Lord, before offering any remarks on the Budget, I beg respectfully to observe that the visit of Their Imperial Majesties to their Indian Empire has opened a new era for the people of this country and has practically driven away sedition and unrest from the soil. The memory of Their Imperial Majesties' visit to this city of ours will for ever be treasured up in the hearts of all men, women and children of this Province.

BUDGET.

[25TH MARCH 1912.] [Raja of Dighapatia ; Sir Gangadhar Rao Chitnavis.]

"Now turning to the Budget, I beg to offer my heartiest congratulations to the Finance Minister for the cheerful Budget he has been able to present before the Council this year. He very modestly calls it a 'no-change Budget,' but we look upon it as a Budget of benevolence, reflecting very great credit and thoughtfulness on the part of those who are responsible for it.

"No doubt we were looking forward to the remission of at least some of the taxes that were imposed the year before last in anticipation of the opium deficit—preferably that on petroleum, which affects the poorest in the land; yet we have nothing to complain of, nay, we are grateful to the Government of India for the manner in which the surplus from opium windfall has been distributed, and also for the large grants made for education out of the ordinary surplus.

"It will be noted with very great satisfaction that ever since the Hon'ble Sir Guy Fleetwood Wilson has taken charge of the portfolio of the Finance Department, military expenditure is steadily going down every year, while grants to education and sanitation are mounting up by leaps and bounds, and we have every reason to hope that they will go up still higher, as we have been assured by the Finance Minister himself that the amelioration of sanitation and the wide and comprehensive diffusion of education would form the chief feature of Your Excellency's Viceroyalty.

"I hope it will be possible for the Government of Bengal to devote a considerable portion of the money allotted for sanitation towards the improvement of the waterways and the supply of pure drinking water, wherever it may be necessary.

"Last year I mentioned about the necessity of constructing a railway line connecting Nattore, Rajshaye and Godagari. I must confess I am disappointed to find no provision for this railway has been made in the present Budget, though I have reasons to believe that this line is not altogether outside the programme. I would therefore urge the Government to include it at least in next year's Budget. I had occasion to point out in my Budget speeches of previous years that this line is an urgent necessity as far as Northorn Bengal is concerned.

"In spite of the difficulties in the way, I would beg the Government of India to reconsider the question of the construction of the line between Dacca and Archa (a place opposite to Goalundo). As Dacca is going to be the second capital of the new Presidency of Bengal and the seat of the Provincial Government for about two months in the year, it would be easily seen how very necessary this line will be in near future, specially when river navigation is getting more and more difficult at least in some parts of the year.

"It was widely expected that something would be done at the last Durbar to inaugurate the policy of granting commissions in the Indian Army to qualified scions of Indian Chiefs and Nobles, and naturally it came as a disappointment when no such announcement was made. I, therefore, venture to hope that, with a view to further retrenchment in the military expenditure without in any way materially impairing efficiency, something might be done in this direction.

"As one coming from Bengal, I cannot help feeling the deepest sorrow at the thought that this should be the last meeting of the Imperial Council in this historic chamber and in this historic city, which is intimately associated with the foundations of the British Empire in India, and without meaning any disrespect to any one I deplore the necessity for the change of capital."

The Hon'ble Sir Gangadhar Rao Chitnavis : "My Lord, the moral effect of Their Imperial Majesties' visit has far exceeded my anticipations of last year, thanks to Your Excellency's thoughtful and excellent arrangements at Delhi and elsewhere. The Royal Presence evoked an enthusiasm throughout the land which proved once for all that the heart of the nation was sound, and that the abnormal developments of the past six years were but passing phases of an artificial movement wholly foreign to the genius of the people. We owe it to our beloved Sovereign that seditious troubles are at an end, and we cheerfully and thankfully lay to our heart the message of hope which His Imperial Majesty has so considerably communicated to us. The boons announced at Delhi, and the substantial grant for the promotion of education and the annual stipends to scholars, so characteristic of the King-Emperor, give point to that message; they lay solid foundations for the intellectual and moral progress of the people.

"My Lord, from the Hon'ble Sir Harcourt Butler's reply to the Hon'ble Mr. Gokhale's question about the details of the Durbar grant of 50 lakhs for the support of education, it appears that, out of the 45 lakhs proposed to be distributed at once, technical education and industrial education have between them only 2 lakhs, or less than 4½ per cent. Even in this small grant the share of industrial education must be the lesser of the two. I am convinced more than ever that small industrial schools suited to local needs and conditions are of paramount importance to our material advancement. Through the operation of causes which we need not examine here, our village industries and the small industries of towns are prostrated; there is a general movement of the people from the villages to the towns for employment. Towns are bound to grow; concentration of population in towns is perhaps a necessary concomitant of modern civilisation. But the decadence of the villages and of village industries is an economic evil, especially in an agricultural country like India, which it is only meet Government should make an earnest effort to remedy. There is a pithy Indian saying, 'the stomach was made before the mind.' The indigenous industrial arts should be revived and developed as a solution of the difficulty of the empty stomach. I beg to acknowledge with thanks that a systematic effort is now being made in the Central Provinces to revive the cottage industries, and a sympathetic and energetic Director of Industries has been appointed. But Local Governments must necessarily depend to a large extent upon the Central Government for liberal subventions.

"My Lord, notwithstanding the strong pronouncement of policy made in Parliament by the Under Secretary of State on the occasion of the last discussion of the Indian Budget, we cannot abandon our faith in the efficacy and the absolute necessity of tariff protection for India. We must place before the Government our view of the case, and with my sense of British justice and Britain's genuine desire to consult the wishes of the Indian people in matters of policy also, I cannot believe that our prayers will always be unheeded by the Home Government, and that the future will not bring us the relief we so earnestly seek. In this connection I respectfully request Government to reconsider their decision about the maintenance of the excise-duty upon cotton-goods made in India. The duty should be suspended at least in seasons of stress.

"Speaking of agriculture, in view of the high price of agricultural cattle and their preservation, I beg to repeat my suggestion that the question demands consideration. Government sometime ago undertook a cattle survey as a preliminary to the consideration of this question; but we would like to know where the matter now stands.

"My Lord, irrigation has done much for agriculture. I am glad to note Government do not mean to slacken their pace in this direction. Light feeder railways which the Government is encouraging in certain parts have become popular in some Provinces and are likely to prove useful to the country in three ways. They help railway expansion, train the people in railway management, and attract their small savings for which they provide an excellent investment. In view of this consideration, I would request Government that better terms of guarantee will help this sort of enterprise still further.

"My Lord, I beg to thank Your Lordship for the recommendation you have made for the Legislative Council for our Province, and now I beg to associate myself with the appeal which the Hon'ble Mr. Dadabhoi has made to-day for the establishment of a teaching and residential university at Nagpur and the appointment of a fourth Judge in the Judicial Commissioner's Court. A teaching university will go a great way to ensure the intellectual progress of the Provincial people. The Indian public cordially echo the hope expressed by Your Excellency at the last Convocation of the Calcutta University 'that teaching and residential universities may be multiplied throughout India.' I have heard complaints of congestion of business in the Judicial Commissioner's Court, and it is desirable to have another Judge to work it off.

"My Lord, in the investigation which the Government proposes to make into the financial condition of the local bodies, I hope Government will be pleased to consider the advisability of sanctioning a longer term than is allowed at present for repayment of advances for sanitary improvement. Much could be done to help progress by the suggested change in the maximum period. The special grants for the Central Research Institute for work in public hygiene and a School of Tropical Medicine supply incontrovertible proof of the anxiety of this Government for the suppression of plague, malaria and other epidemics; but it must be frankly admitted that the bulk of the work in connection with sanitary improvement must be done by the local bodies. In this view the necessity of the change will be evident.

"My Lord, I cannot conclude without expressing the sorrow I feel on this occasion of our last meeting in this hall so full of historic memories. I happen to be the oldest Member of the Council, and the break in all our past associations here causes me pain. At the same time the severance of the direct connection of the Imperial Government with Calcutta is synchronous with the introduction of large reforms for which Bengal has clamoured long. The change in the status of the Provincial Government and the annulment of the Partition ought to placate public opinion in Bengal. Thanks are due to Your Excellency for pacifying public opinion in the matter. Lastly, my Lord, I beg to associate myself with what my friend the Hon'ble Mr. Gokhale has said about Calcutta, the Hon'ble Sir James Meston and the Hon'ble Sir Guy Fleetwood Wilson."

The Hon'ble Babu Bhupendranath Basu: "My Lord, in congratulating the Hon'ble the Finance Minister on his Budget, I do not pay a merely customary tribute: we have had a large surplus and our revenues are being devoted in a much larger measure than before to purposes which will be fruitful of good to the people of India. I have neither the skill nor the ability to pursue my friend through the bewildering maze of figures, but the thread he has furnished in his introductory speech gives a clue which even a layman like myself may follow. It will be a matter of deep regret to me and to the people of Bengal that we shall miss in future his genial presence in our midst and cease to listen to a voice which will persuade us even against our better understanding.

"My Lord, I acknowledge with gratitude the large and liberal grants on education and sanitation, for they are both all-important. I shall not go into the enormous and appalling figures which represent the preventible death-rate of our country: very recently I had occasion to refer to the question, but surely in a population of 300 millions and in a continent extending from the Persian Gulf to the borders of China 4,129 hospitals and dispensaries, public and private, to meet the requirements of the civil and military population are none too many. Much remains to be done in the cause of sanitation, and though I sympathize to a very large extent with my friend Surgeon General Sir Charles Lukis in his despair to fight against mosquitos whose names are more terrible than their sting, I respectfully submit it ought not to be beyond the resources of science and civilization to wage a successful war with those insects on whose wings follow malaria, yellow fever, plague, sleeping sickness and kala-azar.

"In the brief space of time allotted to us for discussion on this occasion I pass on to a subject which to-day, now that we are meeting for the last time in this Council Chamber, is pressing on my mind. My Lord, only two years ago I was prevented in this very Council chamber from discussing the question of the partition of Bengal; but though I was silenced, the voice of my countrymen outside was not silenced, and the sense of injury and wrong rankled in their minds. The outward manifestation of public feeling was naturally growing less, but, what was worse, a deep seated sense of unredressed wrong was spreading. We felt that the Government of the day had failed to understand the problem: Would India have some ruler who would have the insight to feel and the courage to act? That was the question. My Lord, in our ancient mythology there is a story of a saintly woman being petrified for the sin which she committed unconsciously, and when she pleaded against the curse, it was said to her that she must wait until deliverance came from somebody who would be born hereafter. We, my Lord, like this petrified saintly woman of old, had to wait for that deliverance of ours. Then came Your Excellency's administration. We had at the head of affairs in India a fresh mind unaffected by bias and untinged by prejudice. There were difficulties in the way, difficulties created by lapse of time, and behind them all loomed the question of prestige. Then followed the announcement that His Imperial Majesty would hold the Coronation Durbar in India. We in India have always connected the celebration of such a great and auspicious event with some generous measure of public beneficence, and we felt a sort of vague hope that our King-Emperor, who had witnessed the distress in Bengal as the Prince of Wales, might do something to restore peace to our unhappy Province. It is no longer a secret, my Lord, that for the realisation of this hope I undertook last year a journey to England, impelled, may be, by the same unreasoning longing which in our country attracts from distant parts weary pilgrims seeking deliverance from fatal illness for a dear relative to some sacred shrine reputed to possess life-giving properties, a deliverance which, alas! the silent image seldom grants. My Lord, I do not for a moment profess that my visit has had any affect on the policy of Government; but it is some satisfaction to me and our people that I was able to place before the highest authority, so far as India is concerned, a presentment of the case from our point of view. My Lord, I am not one of those who would feel any exultation in the modification of the partition of Bengal, even if it had not been accompanied by measures which will have a far-reaching consequence on the destiny of my Province; but we Hindus of Bengal truly rejoice at the opportunities which will be again afforded to us to advance arm in arm with our Moslem brethren as fellow-workers and comrades, helping each other forward and onward. My Lord, in Your Excellency's presence, I feel some natural embarrassment in giving expression to the deep sense of gratitude we feel towards Your Lordship in having had the courage to undo what was an undoubted wrong. In doing so, Your Lordship has not only conferred a lasting benefit upon the Indian people, but has demonstrated to the world at large the greatness and might of British rule in India, that in the interests of justice it can rise above all petty considerations of prestige and even of settled facts. You have shown that British rule in India is compatible with the sentiment of self-respect in the people, and that it is not founded on the shifting foundations of power but on the solid bedrock of justice, and as time goes on and your great act comes to be viewed in its true perspective, your countrymen and ours will all alike honour a ruler who had taken such a prominent part in welding together the different parts of the Empire in bonds which will grow with time and not break under the strain of diverging interests. To quote the words of the Hon'ble Mr. Montagu: 'At last, and not too soon, a Viceroy has had the courage to state the trend of British policy in India and the lines on which England proposes to advance.'

BUDGET.[Babu Bhupendranath Basu]

"My Lord, I cannot pass from this question of the readjustment of the boundaries of my Province without referring to some incidental matters connected with it. It has been said that Your Excellency's scheme about the proposed Dacca University will be likely to reproduce conditions against which the people of Bengal fought with such desperate and passionate energy. I am glad to see Your Lordship shaking your head against that proposition. It would be a pity indeed if it did so. My Lord, I hope I betray no confidence when I say that Your Excellency has been pleased to give us the assurance that no such thing shall happen, that the fear of a dialectic difference in Bengal being created need not be entertained and that the proposed university at Dacca would only embrace colleges within its municipal limits ; that it will only be a teaching university ; and that in matter of Provincial appointments to the public service, no question will arise either in East or West Bengal as between the claims of Dacca and the Calcutta Universities. These assurances of Your Excellency when widely known will dissipate the fears that were entertained at one time, and the latest pronouncement that nothing will be done until the Government of Bengal has been consulted will remove any lingering doubts that still hover round the appointment of a separate educational officer. My Lord, I do not grudge to my friends of Bihar and Orissa their good fortune getting a full fledged Provincial Government with an Executive Council. I am afraid my friends of Bihar resented the reference made to them by my Hon'ble friend the Maharajadhiraja Bahadur of Burdwan, and they were telling me just now that my friend the Maharajadhiraja Bahadur owes his seat in this Council principally to the votes of the Bihar zamindars. That may be true or may not be correct. I do not know. But, my Lord, my friends of Bihar will no longer be voters in my Province. I may remind my friends of the story of the discarded wife which we had at one time heard in the eastern part of my Province. I will remind them of a poem which I learnt in my youth ;

"No more thou comest with a lover's speed,
My once beloved bride to see,
Be she alive, or be she dead,
I think her worth all the same to me."

"And now that Bihar has gone from us and her votes do not count, I believe my friends occupy pretty much the position that the girl did in this ballad. But I believe I shall not offend my brethren of Bihar if I say that this good fortune of theirs is due to their association with Bengal. Bihar was making rapid progress during the last ten years, and my belief is that her progress would have been surer and quicker if that association had lasted a little longer.

The Hon'ble Mr. Mazharul Haque : "No."

The Hon'ble Babu Bhupendranath Basu :—"My friend says 'No', but I do not wish to raise a controversy. If he is pleased, we have no reason to complain. We Bengalis wish them all success in their new career.

"But, my Lord, if we do not grudge to Bihar her good fortune, we may certainly grieve that, in the redistribution of Bengal that has followed the Royal announcement, the deep and abiding sentiment of Bengal that all the Bengali-speaking tracts should be placed under one Government has not been given effect to. I believe in the hurry in which the scheme had necessarily to be worked out, this could not be done, and I feel sure that under Your Excellency's administration, after things have settled down, this question will be taken up and our legitimate grievances on this score removed. And now, my Lord as I am coming to a close, it will be idle to conceal that a feeling of great sadness comes over me. For I shall be the last member for Bengal to address this Council from the capital of my Province. Who knows, my Lord, what the future may have in store for us ? Associations extending over a hundred and fifty years or more are not easily broken, and though no material harm may come to us, as I hope it will not, the people of Bengal will not cease to mourn, for many a long day, the loss of the diadem which was set upon the fair forehead of their beloved city. It has grown from a hamlet into the position of being the second city in the British Empire, and from its banks have spread the blessings of peace and prosperity over the British dominion in the East. Amidst the many losses that the change of capital will entail upon us none will be greater, none sadder, none more keenly felt than that we shall cease to welcome in our midst the representatives of the wealth and culture of all India, as members of this Imperial Council; for their presence even for a short time serves to extend the boundaries of our horizon and lift us out of the narrow limits of a Provincial life. It is with no light heart that we shall regard the loss of this invaluable privilege of coming into contact with the best minds in the Indian Empire. We shall also lose, my Lord, the beneficent presence of the Government of India; we shall lose the inestimable benefit which flows from personal contact with His Majesty's first representative in India, and for the moment, my Lord, we shall lose one whom we have come to regard as the greatest benefactor of our people. You are going, my Lord, to a seat redolent of memories of ancient greatness to which Calcutta can lay no claim. But, my Lord, we the people of Bengal shall always cling with love to our city embosomed in the Ganges, whose water flows in their ceaseless task of pure ablutions round her radiant shores and nestled among foliage unrivalled even in India.

"I bid your Lordship, the members of your executive Council and my colleagues, official and non-official members of this Council, good bye and God-speed; and may British rule in India be as glorious and as brilliant in the future amidst its new surrounding as it has been in the past in this now historic city of ours.

"My Lord, I can say no more, and wish no better for the Government which has done for us so much in the past and from which, God willing, we expect much more in the future."

The Hon'ble Mr. Mazharul Haque: "My Lord, I have no desire to make a speech, but I would be failing in my duty if I did not express the grateful thanks of the people of Bihar for the great privilege which has been bestowed upon them. Your Excellency has restored to us our forgotten individuality, raised our status and given us a new life. The name of Hardinge is not only being blessed by us of the present generation, but it will be remembered and blessed by our children and our children's children. It has now become possible for us to develop and work our own salvation on our own lines.

"My Lord, the temptation to follow my Hon'ble friend the Maharajadhiraja Bahadur of Burdwan in his sarcastic references to my Province is great, but for once I shall resist it. I can quite understand his bitter disappointment, as henceforth it will not be possible for any one but a Bihari to exploit the new Province, and the determining factor in questions affecting Bihar will be the voice of her own people without any officious interference from unsympathetic people who have no scruples to take her votes but when the time comes refuse to help her. I should like to know what the landholders of Bihar will have to say to-morrow about the speech of my Hon'ble friend. Well, it does not matter; we are very well able to take care of ourselves. My Hon'ble friend has characterised the grant of an Executive Council to Bihar as an extravagant luxury. Well, everything which is a necessity for Bengal becomes a luxury when given to some other Province. Jealousy and conceit could go no further.

"My Lord, once more I thank Your Lordship for the great boon you have conferred upon the people of Bihar."

The Hon'ble Mr. Sachchidananda Sinha: "My Lord, under the rules in force for the discussion of the Financial Statement, the important points involved in it are discussed in the earlier stages, and they have already been so discussed this year. This last day's debate is now utilised for making some general observations, and for many years now the privilege has been extended to members to place before Government such views as cannot be urged by means of Resolutions. Naturally therefore a discussion of this kind is apt to be more or less rambling, but I trust that the same latitude will be conceded to me as to my colleagues to make a few general observations, especially with reference to the remarks of my friend, the Hon'ble Maharajadhiraja Bahadur of Burdwan, whose speech, if I may say so without impertinence, was the most rambling that I have ever heard in my life. It had a great deal to do with things absolutely irrelevant and not at all germane to the Budget, or to the financial policy of the Government of India. It was, on the other hand, a curious compound and an extraordinary jumble of bad history, perverse geography, ill-assorted ethnography, and confused topography—coupled with a distorted outlook on current political problems. Speaking seriously, I think his speech will cause profound disappointment to the people of Bihar, especially to the landholders of that Province, who had voted for him as their representative in this Council. My esteemed friend, the Hon'ble Mr. Haque, has already replied very pertinently to his absolutely uncalled-for remarks about the Bihar Executive Council. The Hon'ble Maharaja Bahadur has evidently forgotten that Bihar has had an Executive Council since the inauguration of that institution in the Lower Provinces about eighteen months ago, and to have taken away that privilege from the Biharis would have inflicted a very grievous wrong upon them. The Maharaja Bahadur seems also to have failed to realise the fact that it is in the Executive Councils as now constituted that scope is given to such little talent as the zamindars possess, by their being appointed as members of these bodies. I therefore think that he should have welcomed this institution for Bihar instead of condemning it.

“One more remark, my Lord, which I desire to make is this. The Maharaja-dhiraja Bahadur has declared himself to be a strong supporter of the now totally discredited scheme of partition effected by Lord Curzon six years ago. I wish I could honestly congratulate the Maharaja upon his support to Lord Curzon, but I am sorry I cannot. That partition as effected constituted two divisions of Bengal, and Bihar and Orissa into one Province. The Maharaja seems to think that the new Province as now constituted is heterogeneous, but I would like to know if it is any more heterogeneous as it stands to-day than it was with the two Bengal divisions thrown in? But that is the way how the Maharaja with his clear vision looks at this question. I shall pass on now, my Lord, to associating myself with the Hon'ble Mr. Haque in offering to Your Excellency and to Your Excellency's Government the very best and sincerest thanks of the people of Bihar for what is really a Royal boon to them in the truest sense of the term. I think I echo the views of the Biharis in saying that no people are really so happy and glad as those of Bihar are, on account of the separation of their Province from Bengal, and for which they had been crying aloud for many years; but unfortunately the Government of Lord Curzon did not see their way to accept what was the only ideal scheme for the partition of the Lower Provinces. This has now been accepted by Your Lordship's Government, and my friend the Hon'ble Mr. Haque, therefore, has rightly said that Your Lordship's name will go down to posterity as the best benefactor of not only Bihar but of the whole country, for having brought about the memorable administrative changes announced by our King-Emperor.

“My Lord, one word on the question of our finances. As the Hon'ble Mr. Gokhale has pointed out, our financial condition at present requires very careful consideration, on account of the fact that very soon the opium-revenue will have disappeared from our resources. It is therefore, especially in view of the demands now being made, the very proper demands, which the Government have to some extent conceded, for education and sanitation; absolutely necessary that our finances should be properly husbanded and that so far as possible all such economy should be effected as can be done, without in any way diminishing the efficiency of our administration. For this purpose, my Lord, my humble submission is that two things are absolutely expedient: the wider employment of Indians in the public services and a careful handling of our military expenses and charges. In regard to the wider employment of my countrymen, I gave notices of two or three Resolutions to be moved in this Council. I was given to understand, however, that the Government of India were in communication with the Secretary of State on these subjects, and I therefore withdrew them. I do hope that, in due course, the Government will be able to inaugurate a policy which will be conducive to the much larger employment of Indians.

BUDGET.[Mr. Sachchidananda Sinha ; Mr. Gates.] [25TH MARCH 1912.]

It seems to me that the time has come when the Government of India should have a Royal Commission appointed to go into the whole question. The Public Service Commission made its recommendations nearly 25 years ago; and these, unfortunately, were far from satisfactory. We have taken long strides since then, in almost all departments of human activity, and I think, my Lord, that the time is come when the Government of India may very properly ask the Government at home to institute a Royal Commission to go into the whole question of the larger employment of Indians, including that of the recruitment of the judiciary from the legal profession.

"Similarly, my Lord, in regard to the Army charges, the subject has been discussed in this Council time after time, and by none more ably than by our great leader Mr. Gokhale. It is well known that the large additions made to the cost of the Indian Army in 1885-86 were certainly due to the fear of a Russian invasion at the time. Now, thanks to the Anglo-Russian Convention, which was mainly brought about due to Your Lordship's influence, and for which we are all very grateful to Your Excellency, this fear of a Russian invasion of the country has certainly disappeared. In view, therefore, of our many necessary requirements now, and the larger demands for education and sanitation, I request the Government of India to consider favourably the question of, at any rate, reducing the cost of the Army to the extent of the additions made in 1885-86, which will I think result in a saving of some 3 crores. And in this connection I would like to say that last year I gave notice of a Resolution to be moved in this Council that the commissioned ranks in the Army should be thrown open to Indians. I was then informed that the matter was under the consideration of Government, and that it was likely His Majesty the King-Emperor would himself make an announcement at the Durbar on the subject, and it was in that view that I withdrew my Resolution. Well, my Lord, expression has been given to-day to the view of the non-official members on this subject by the Raja of Dighapatia, and I may frankly say that great disappointment has been caused in the country on account of that boon not having been announced at the Durbar. I do sincerely hope that it will not be long before Your Lordship's Government will be able to make that long-looked for announcement.

"My Lord, one word about this being the last meeting of the session in Calcutta. I fear I am not so enthusiastic an admirer of Calcutta and of Bengal as my friend Mr. Gokhale. I follow him generally so implicitly that to me it is a real pleasure to find myself in disagreement with him on at least one question. He has pronounced this morning a glowing panegyric on this so-called beautiful city and on the scenery of Bengal. He said he had been for eleven winters in Bengal, and evidently he has come under the spell of this province and its metropolis—'the city of palaces' and of huts! He thinks so very highly of Bengal scenery, possibly because the Hon'ble Member comes from a part of the country which is very arid and very treeless—I mean the Dekkhan. Mr. Gokhale this morning blessed the administrative changes announced at the Durbar, on the ground that he thought they would be ultimately beneficial to the country as a whole, so far as he could foresee with the eye of faith and hope. It struck me that he must have surveyed the scenery of Bengal with the eye of faith also, or he could not have persuaded himself to speak as he did! But although I do not quite appreciate Bengal scenery to the extent Mr. Gokhale does, I think I may join him in saying that we are all sorry to go away from Calcutta, especially we of Bihar, who have been connected with it since 1765—a long association that—and we are certainly sorry to part with our Bengali friends. I fully reciprocate the sentiments of my friend the Hon'ble Mr. Basu and I assure him that we are all sorry to part with Bengal. But I feel sure that we part as the best of friends, and shall continue to work together wholeheartedly for the welfare and the regeneration of our common motherland."

The Hon'ble Mr. Gates: "My Lord, I have only a few remarks to make with regard to the portion of the Budget which falls in my sphere. We are glad to see that the disappointing results of the Provincial Financial Settlement of Burma have been recognised, and we are grateful for the grant of 20 lakhs for communications. This grant can be spent, as could a much larger sum, to great advantage."

The Hon'ble Sir James Meston: "My Lord, the points of purely financial interest which have arisen in the course of the debate to-day are comparatively few. Even those which did emerge are either of so large and comprehensive a character that it would be impossible to do justice to them at the fag-end of the Calcutta session, or they have been dealt with in a spirit of moderation which leaves the representatives of the Finance Department very little to say in reply. The speech of the Hon'ble Mr. Dadabhoy, it is true, bristles with points both great and small, but the number and complexity of them and the pace at which he pressed them home reminded me, while he spoke, of one of his great prototypes who—

‘seemed to be

and on looking through my notes at the topics which he raised, I shrink from the encyclopædic task of answering them. Sir Vithaldas Thackersey alluded at some length to the very technical question of the assessment to income-tax of textile mills and factories in Bombay. The Hon'ble gentleman complains that Bombay is at a disadvantage as compared with the mills in other Provinces, and he is particularly dissatisfied with an answer which the Government of India gave in a recent letter to the Bombay Millowners' Association to the effect that they were not prepared to standardise the methods of the assessment of income-tax on factories throughout India. The main reason for that is that the assessment and collection of income-tax are left, in this country, to the Local Governments within certain defined rules and limitations ; and in view of the extraordinarily varying conditions of different parts of the country, I hardly see how it could be otherwise. The character of the buildings, their durability, the nature of the machinery, the local practices regarding depreciation, and half-a-dozen other factors, differ in different parts of India, and no cast-iron rules could well be laid down for regulating them. The Hon'ble Member, however, specifically complained of two points—first, that no depreciation was allowed on buildings in Bombay, whereas it is permitted elsewhere ; and, second, that the depreciation allowances generally are less liberal in Bombay than they are in other parts of India. The first of these points I hardly think is quite exact, as the practice in Bombay has been, in assessing factory buildings, to allow for the actual cost of repairs and maintenance without specifying any rigid proportion of allowance on that account. The Local Government have, however, now, at the instance of the agitation recently got up by the Millowners' Association, agreed to accept a regular 2½ per cent. reduction instead of the actual cost of repairs. The second complaint made by Sir Vithaldas Thackersey was that Bombay pays more than Calcutta and Cawnpore, and he suggests that the Bombay payments be levelled down to their level. Another alternative, however, had presented itself already to the Government of India, and that was that Bombay should be left alone and that Cawnpore and Calcutta should be levelled up. I hope that that will be equally congenial to my Hon'ble friend. The whole of the Bombay correspondence has been sent to all the other Local Governments for consideration ; and perhaps before my Hon'ble friend brings the Resolution which he threatens on the subject, he will find that his Association is not at a disadvantage as compared with the other parts of India.

"Before I sit down will Your Lordship permit me to express my sincere thanks for the kind and graceful thoughts which inspired the Hon'ble Mr. Gokhale in the things which he said about me personally and to add my thanks to the other Hon'ble Members who followed him. It has been a great pride and a great privilege to be a member of the first reformed Legislative Council in India during its whole triennial period, and that pride is enhanced in the case of all of us officials who have so served—it is enhanced a thousandfold—by the knowledge that we have secured in some measure the affection and confidence of our non-official colleagues. It is to their courtesy, to their unfailing consideration among new and often trying conditions, that we owe much that we have endeavoured in some measure to give them in return."

The Hon'ble Sir Guy Fleetwood Wilson : "My Lord, the debate on the last day of the session savours rather of a survival of the past than of real business. In the pre-reformed days of the Council, it was practically the only occasion on which members of Council could express their views on every subject, and it is quite natural that the tendency to do so should remain. The debate, however, must of necessity become every year less effective in view of the fact that this Council has realised that it possesses a far better agency to bring about improvement in the administration in the shape of well-considered, well-debated, and, if I may venture to say so, well-divided Resolutions.

"Resolutions of the importance and speeches thereon, of the capacity which have characterised this year's session, must do far more to advance the public interest than what can be but a somewhat desultory conversation on the last day that the Council meets. I do not therefore propose to deal at any length with the remarks of Hon'ble Members who have spoken on a variety of subjects.

"There are two points, however, of considerable importance which were raised by the Hon'ble Mr. Gokhale, which I think I should not pass over without any remark. The Hon'ble Mr. Gokhale reminds me of Mr. Gladstone. On one occasion, when Mr. Gladstone was suffering from the effects of over-work, he was ordered by his physician complete rest. By way of carrying out the orders of his physician, he promptly bought a Turkish Grammar and proceeded to study that language.

"Mr. Gokhale to the intense regret of every one in this room is admittedly suffering somewhat from the effects of over-work. I have little doubt that his medical adviser has enjoined him to avoid all unnecessary effort. By way of carrying out those instructions, he takes advantage of fifteen brief minutes at his disposal to embark on a discussion on such a trifle as a review of the whole basis of taxation.

"I will say frankly, at once, that I am not prepared to follow his example. I retreat and give him all the honours of war, for I am not prepared in the few minutes at my disposal on the last day of the session and with the thermometer at about 100 to take up the cudgels either for or against a radical alteration in the basis of taxation.

"There is much to be said in favour of Mr. Gokhale's suggestion to refer Indian expenditure to a Royal Commission; but there is one point which I should like to mention in this connection, and that is that there is one grave objection, which must be borne in mind, to the adoption of that course. It is inconceivable that less than five years would elapse before the recommendations of such a Commission would be given effect to, and I much fear that meanwhile every attempt to introduce improvement or to effect economies would be held up with the excuse that the Royal Commission was sitting, and that its report had not yet been considered.

"My Lord, I would ask your permission to dwell for a moment on the retirement from his present office of one who has been for over three anxious years my invaluable colleague and my devoted friend.

"Sir James Meston's distinguished services are so well known that it seems a work of supererogation to allude to them. It is not, I think, too much to say that for the last three years Sir James has been the guide, philosopher and friend of the Government of India. He has been more. He has been a helpful, sympathetic and loyal friend to every member of this Council.

"His unswerving devotion to duty, his entire subordination of all self-interest to the good of India, his ready sacrifice of ease, leave and even health in the interests of the public service, and his extraordinary capacity for carrying through the most difficult tasks without friction and with complete success, are so well known to every one of us that it is hardly necessary for me to dwell on them.

BUDGET.

[25TH MARCH 1912.] [Sir Guy Fleetwood Wilson ; the President.]

" Sir James Meston's services during the last three years of stress and anxiety have been conspicuous and successful, and it is impossible for me to exaggerate the deep obligation under which I lie towards him.

" I hope I may be permitted to say that we have placed the finances of India in a sounder and stronger position than they have perhaps before occupied ; but if any credit does attach to the conduct of public business by the Finance Department during the last three and a half years, it should be attributed to Sir James Meston rather than myself.

" I believe I shall be voicing the feelings of every one present if I say that we wish him health, prosperity and success in the high position which, on the recommendation of Lord Hardinge, he has been called upon by his Sovereign to fill.

" I have been profoundly touched by the kind expressions which have been used to-day in regard to myself, and I am deeply grateful.

" Death has robbed me of more than one friend in this Council, and its coming reconstitution may lessen the number of those who have been my colleagues and my friends for three years. But be its composition what it may, the new Council cannot show me greater kindness or more unvarying consideration than that which I have received from you all, and for which I tender you my warm and heartfelt thanks."

His Excellency the President : " Following the example of some Hon'ble Members, I should like, as Head of the Government, to associate myself with the views of those who have expressed appreciation of Sir Guy Fleetwood Wilson and Sir James Meston. I share the hope that Sir Guy will return invigorated by his stay abroad and restored to health, so that he may be able to complete his full term of service. As regards Sir James Meston, although it has been a great pleasure to me to appoint him to so high and important a post, Hon'ble Members can well understand, I am sure, what a loss he will be to me and the Government of India as Secretary in the Finance Department. I need not go into the question of his great but unassuming ability ; but I am confident that his work and services will be to the great advantage of India in whatever position he is employed.

" There is only one point in other matters to which I would like to draw attention, and that is that, although I am determined to permit no measure in connection with the Dacca University that might be interpreted as a measure of partition, and although Mr. Basu has given expression to my own personal views, we have yet to know the view of the new Governor of Bengal on questions of detail, and still more those of the Secretary of State.

" We have now come to the end of another year, a year of historic memory, but it is the financial features of the year which have the first claim upon our thoughts. In the Budget I see a gratifying picture of India's economic strength. Famine came very near our doors in the autumn of last year ; but its heavy hand has been withdrawn from all but a few afflicted tracts in Bombay. Plague still scourges a patient and much-enduring people in parts of the country ; but the measures for repelling it are steadily growing in knowledge and efficiency and—what is worth even more—in cordiality of co-operation between our officers and those whom they endeavour to help. And so we have reached another milestone, and we pass onwards into the coming year, under the hand of Providence, in confidence and hope.

" The Finance Member, in opening his Budget, reviewed the progress of the last three years. I also have been tempted by his example to indulge in retrospect ; but I have been looking a little further back than he has done. I have been looking back to the days when our Indian revenues were clouded by two great shadows—the fall in exchange and the fear of invasion from our North-West Frontier. The era of our modern finance began about twelve years ago. It was an era of prosperity, high surpluses and reforming activity ; but it was dominated by these two great evils. Our exchange troubles, it is true, passed away in 1899, and I trust that under skilful guidance they will not return. Their consequences, however, remained in the high taxation that have been imposed to meet them ; in the pinching of our administration; and in the poverty of the Provincial Governments. All this had to be put to rights. Moderation had to be restored to our taxes. Money had to be furnished for our more backward departments, particularly for the improvement of the police. The finances of Local Governments had to be placed on a sounder and more stable basis. To these objects the energies of my predecessors were bent and much of their surplus revenues were dedicated. Meanwhile, a heavy toll was being taken on our revenues by the other incubus which I have mentioned. The defence of our frontier and the preparation of our Army for war formed the second outstanding feature of the period that I am reviewing. Lord Kitchener matured his scheme for the reorganization and redistribution of our military strength, and large sums of money were devoted to it for a series of years. Looking then at the position broadly, we see how two great cycles of expenditure filled the rich years between the famine of 1899 and the crisis of 1907. The sequels of our currency troubles provided one : our military anxieties provided the other. The two overlapped, and between them they swallowed up the fruits of our prosperity.

"The situation has now entirely changed; the dark shadows that lay over us have passed away. Our taxation has been lightened. The resources of Local Governments have been strengthened. Exchange is stable; and however much opinions may differ on points of detail, I believe that the basis of our currency policy is secured in public confidence. So also with our military dispositions. The momentous change that the Russian Agreement brought into our relations with our great Asiatic neighbour removed the menace on our frontier, and the rapid growth of our Army expenditure has now been checked and curtailed. At first these improvements were obscured by the financial collapse of 1907 and our slow recovery from its effects. But with care and economy, our finances are restored to health; the sky is clear so far as human eye can judge, and we are ready for our next advance. On what lines shall we proceed? For what goal shall we strive?

"To that question my answer is clear and unhesitating. We have secured the defence of the country. We have removed our great handicap in international trade. It is now our duty to turn all our energies to the uplifting of our people. To that task we are giving freely in the Budget which you have discussed to-day. Is it too much to hope that it will be the dominant policy of the coming years? The Finance Member told the Council of the hopes that rose in my mind when first I took charge of my high office. By those hopes I still abide, and in them I am more than ever confirmed. It is only by the spread of knowledge and by the resolute struggle against avoidable disease and death that India can rise among the nations. It is with this ideal that I sincerely trust our finances will remain in touch. The path will not always be smooth; funds cannot always be available, or enthusiasm always fervid. But we have made a beginning and we cannot now turn back.

"I will not say more on the subject of finance, but before this Council adjourns and its members return to their homes, there are some other matters upon which I would like to avail myself of this opportunity to say a few words to the members of my Legislative Council.

"When closing the Budget debate last year I dwelt on the approaching visit of Their Imperial Majesties the King-Emperor and Queen-Empress to India and the measures that we were already taking to ensure the success of their visit. Since then Their Imperial Majesties have come and after a happy time, full of mutual esteem and affection towards their Indian subjects, have returned to their English home. I will not dwell here upon the splendid pageants of the Coronation Durbar or the cordial reception granted to Their Majesties in Bombay and Calcutta, but I will only say that the expression I used last year, namely, a tidal wave of enthusiasm, was a very inadequate description of the stream of loyal enthusiasm and respectful reverence which broke through every restraint and flooded the country and all classes of the population with joy and gladness at the presence of Their Majesties amongst them. It was one only more proof of the undeniable fact that this vast Empire will yield to none in its loyalty and homage to the Throne.

BUDGET.

[The President.]

"The past year may well be described as an annus mirabilis, and owing to the beneficent administrative changes announced by the King-Emperor at Delhi, it will leave a lasting mark upon the history of India. We are confident that the beneficial results of those changes will eventually exceed all expectation, will introduce an era of peace and contentment, and will be to the advantage of better government and more efficient administration.

"In five days' time the three new Provinces will come into existence with complete full powers, with the exception of the Province of Bihar and Orissa, which will have to wait a few weeks, in accordance with law, for the creation of an Executive Council. All I wish to say to the three reconstituted Provinces is—'Go forward and prosper, and justify the policy of the Government of India by the maintenance of peace and order within your boundaries.' The tranquillity that happily prevails in Bengal as compared with the situation of the past few years, and even of a year ago, is already a striking and undeniable proof of the wisdom of the policy of the Government of India.

"As regards the transfer of the capital to Delhi, we fully realise the heavy responsibility entailed in the creation of a new Imperial city that shall be worthy of this Empire and which shall meet the requirements of a great capital, with a careful, but not too parsimonious supervision of the expenditure required to achieve a really satisfactory result. The creation of this new city is a matter in which I am taking, and shall continue to take, a very keen personal interest, and I have been in correspondence with Lord Crewe to send here as soon as possible the best sanitary engineer, town-planner, architect and landscape gardener that he can find to draw up plans for the new city. These will leave England in a few days' time. When acceptable plans have been prepared, the moment will arrive to call in architects to provide suitable designs and estimates for the new Government buildings, and these will require very careful selection and supervision. My own personal inclination is towards an Oriental style of architecture which should be in unison with local surroundings and with climatic conditions.

"I am well aware that criticisms have been levelled at the Government of India for having cited a fixed sum as the probable cost of the new capital, and that certain people have mentioned ten to fourteen millions as more likely to be expended than the more modest sum of four millions named by Government. I do not know upon what basis these estimates have been framed, but I can only regard them as exaggerated and fantastic. A little thought as to what land, Government buildings, roads, drainage, water-supply, etc., will at the outset be required for the new city, would convince any unbiassed person that the cost will approximate far more nearly to the Government estimate than to these exaggerated figures. For example, when I was in Delhi a few days ago, I saw what appeared to me a desirable site, and I made inquiry into the cost of acquiring a space of 30 square miles embracing this area. I found that it would cost, roughly speaking, 30 to 35 lakhs. Now, irresponsible critics have probably not taken into account the cheapness of land at Delhi, which after all is a well-known fact, although most of the land in question is covered with rich and luxuriant crops. Lime, bricks and splendid stone, the same as that used by the Moghal Emperors, are to be found absolutely on the spot, while the Mekrana marble quarries are only 200 miles distant on a direct line of railway. These facts naturally conduce to reduce expenditure, but they again have been probably ignored by our amiable critics. Then again I know that the Government buildings and civil station at Dacca cost under 70 lakhs; I know also that the estimated expenditure on a handsome scale for Government buildings and civil station at Bankipore is under a crore. Are we wrong therefore in considering that we can do the same at new Delhi on a much more magnificent scale for six crores? Government have of course no intention of themselves building private residences, shops, business premises, etc. On the other hand, they hope to obtain a good return for land sold to private individuals on reasonable terms for building leases. I therefore do not at all regret that the Government of India mentioned a fixed sum of 4 million sterling, i.e., six crores, as a probable cost of Delhi, which amount I have good reason to believe will, with proper care and supervision, he in the end but little, if at all, exceeded by the time that the city is built. I hope that these facts may reassure people in India and serve to correct irresponsible statements made by interested persons.

"We all know the adage that Rome was not built in a day; and however hard we may work, it will take some years before the new city can be completed. In the meantime we are making arrangements for the temporary accommodation of the Government of India at Delhi during next cold weather and for the meeting there of this Council. Although I fear that owing to the fortune of war in the approaching electoral campaign some familiar friends and faces may be absent when we meet next year at Delhi, I trust that nobody of my Council will take too seriously to heart the grave forebodings of certain organs of the Press in which Delhi is described as being afflicted with the ten plagues of Egypt. I bid those who are timid to be stout of heart, to realise that, in spite of these blood-curdling stories, the death-rate of Delhi is no more than that of Lucknow, and to remember that Delhi is one of the towns of Northern India where the increase of population has during the last twenty years been both steady and progressive.

"I should now like to turn your thoughts for a few minutes to external affairs in which the interests of a very large and influential section of the community are sentimentally, though indirectly, affected. I do not wish to touch on the question of the war between Turkey and Italy beyond expressing our profound regret that hostilities should be in progress between two countries so friendly disposed towards Great Britain, and to add that I happen to know that His Majesty's Government have, in conjunction with other Powers, already taken steps to mediate with a view to securing an honourable peace. When, however, it appeared that there was a likelihood of hostilities being extended by the Italian naval forces to Jeddah and Yambo, I immediately drew the attention of His Majesty's Government to the very serious anxiety that would be created by an attack upon the ports leading to the holy cities of Islam, and by an interference with the pilgrim traffic to those ports. Representations were at once made to the Italian Government by the Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs and satisfactory assurances were obtained.

"Having already mentioned the friendly disposition of Turkey towards Great Britain, I should like to inform the members of my Council of a significant incident which occurred only a few days ago, and of which I only learnt yesterday. The King received, on March 21st, a Special Mission from the Sultan of Turkey, consisting of the Turkish Ambassador, the Councillor and two Secretaries of the Turkish Embassy, and Reshid Bey (Conseiller légiste) of the Sublime Porte, who presented to His Majesty an autograph letter from the Sultan, and also the Order of the Hamedan-al-Osman and the Order of the Imtiaz conferred on the King as a fresh proof of the Sultan's desire to strengthen the friendly relations and cordial ties now existing between the two Empires, and as a special mark of His Imperial Majesty's sincere friendship towards the King. The point is that the almost unprecedented distinction of the simultaneous conferment of these two Orders by the Sultan on His Majesty the King-Emperor is a striking act of confidence and goodwill which I am sure will be appreciated by the Muhammadans of India.

"In Persia the situation during the past two years has been as unsatisfactory as possible, in so far as British and Indian interests are concerned. In the south of Persia anarchy reigns supreme, the Persian Government having neither power nor authority, while order in the Gulf ports is maintained solely by the presence of the British East Indian Squadron in the Persian Gulf. British and Indian trade interests have suffered severe losses, many caravans having been robbed and the muleteers killed by tribesmen, so that no caravans can now proceed in safety along the main trade routes. Within only the last few days 150 Indian troops have had to be landed at Lingah to protect the Consulate and British and Indian lives and property from the threatened attack of 2,400 tribesmen. Six months ago, owing to an attack made upon the British Consulate at Shiraz, which I may add was very bravely repulsed by a small handful of Indian troops acting as Consular guards,

BUDGET.

[The President.]

it was decided to strengthen the escorts at Bushire, Shiraz and Ispahan, and four squadrons of the Central India Horse were sent to Persia for distribution between these towns and for the protection of British and Indian life and property. Shortly afterwards, when the British Consul at Shiraz was proceeding with a caravan with specie belonging to the Imperial Bank of Persia, escorted by half a squadron of the Central India Horse, they were attacked by the very men who were employed by the Persian Government as road guards, and they lost a few men killed and wounded, amongst the latter being the British Consul. The ordinary course under such circumstances would be to demand from the Persian Government the punishment of the offenders and reparation. Such a course under existing circumstances is not likely to produce much result, and the only alternative course would be to take the law into one's own hands and to send a punitive expedition. To act on such lines there would in my opinion be serious objections, since it might involve us in a situation in Southern Persia from which it might be difficult to extricate ourselves and which might eventually lead to the partition of Persia. Such a policy is entirely opposed to the views of the Government of India, whose hope and desire are that the integrity and independence of Persia may remain unimpaired. In view, however, of the necessity of looking after our own interests, we propose, with the approval of the Secretary of State, to instruct our Resident at Bushire to open negotiations with the tribes for the punishment of those who led the attack upon our convoy and for the proper guarding and security of the British and Indian caravans passing along the main trade routes of the south. This explanation of our policy will, I trust, dispel the fears of those who have imagined that we had leanings towards the partition of Persia with Russia. We have, I maintain, acted with much patience under circumstances of grave provocation, and our one hope is that we may yet see peace and order restored in Southern Persia in the near future.

"There are, I know, certain critics who declaim against the Anglo-Russian Agreement in connection with Persia, and ask of what use it can be in view of the presence of Russian troops in Northern Persia. To those critics I would reply that the fundamental basis of the Anglo-Russian Agreement is the independence and integrity of Persia; and so long as we are a signatory to that agreement, we are able to exercise a moral influence on our co-signatory, where we could not use material pressure. Russian troops have not entered Teheran, and within the last few weeks they have been withdrawn from Kasvin. It is my own conviction that, were this agreement not in force, the partition of Persia would already be an accomplished fact.

"Nearer home and actually on our north-east borders we have had to send a small punitive expedition against some tribes of Abors, who last spring murdered Mr. Williamson, an able young official, and his party under circumstances of great treachery. The remains of Mr. Williamson have been partly recovered, and some of those implicated in his murder have been captured. Advantage was taken of the presence of the expedition to survey a considerable tract of country which was absolutely unknown. The expedition having achieved its object is now returning home.

"Although the Government of India have been so fortunate as not to be engaged in any tribal war on the North-West Frontier during the past few years, we have quite recently been nearly in conflict with the Mahsuds. This tribe has during the past year suffered terribly from famine; and in order to give them employment and to save them from being driven by hunger to become a nuisance to their neighbours, we obtained authority from the Secretary of State to commence work on a proposed railway from Pezu to Tonk. Upon this line 2,500 Mahsuds have for some time been employed. A certain section of the tribe that was hostile has tried to create trouble and has destroyed one of our roads. This caused some unrest on the frontier, necessitating the moving up of troops to meet all eventualities. Happily the Mahsuds employed on the railway realised the advantages of their situation, drove off their fellow-tribesmen and repaired the road. I think we may congratulate ourselves that this small railway, of which the construction will be profitable in the future, has saved us from a tribal war on the frontier.

BUDGET.[The President.]

"Now turning to affairs nearer home, and in particular to the work of my Legislative Council during the past session, I think that I may say with some pride and satisfaction that the debates that have taken place have reached a higher standard of statesmanship and efficiency than has ever been previously attained. They have taken place with a self-restraint and a mutual courtesy and good fellowship that might well be a model to all legislative bodies. Many Resolutions of various kinds have been brought forward by non-official members, and their views have been set forth with explicit clearness and much force. The fact that a large majority of these Resolutions have been negatived by Government is no reason for regarding these discussions as sterile or a waste of time. On the contrary, I regard them as most beneficial, since not only do they present an opportunity for the Government to hear the views of Hon'ble Members from every part of the country and thereby to acquire much useful local information, but they enable the Government to explain clearly their own views and to give publicity to their reasons for not acceding to them. Government must clearly be a moderating influence and restraining force advancing steadily on the path of reform and development with every care for the varied interests of the millions entrusted to their care. If all the Resolutions that were proposed were accepted and became law to-morrow, they would assuredly give place to others, probably of a more advanced type; and with progress at this rate India would soon be in the melting-pot. Consequently I see every advantage in the discussions that have taken place in this Council. They are in my opinion extremely educative, and will, I am sure, bear fruit in due season.

"With these few words I wish you all a happy return to your homes, and I declare this session closed.

The Council adjourned sine die.

The examination will be conducted either at the College, or by an Accountant-General (including Government Examiner of Railway Accounts and Examiner of Accounts, Lower Ganges Bridge Project), in Bengal, Eastern Bengal and Assam and Burma only. The examination will be ipso facto vitiated if it be not held (begun* and completed) on the dates fixed; but the officer who will conduct the examination may make his own arrangements with the candidates in regard to the place and hour of examination.

Candidates will not be examined in any of the Calcutta offices.

A candidate already in permanent Government employ* may be allowed to compete in the examination, even if he is more than 25 years of age, and may be appointed to an accountantship, if he passes it; but if he is not already in pensionable service, he will be eligible only for appointment to the non-pensionable establishment on State Railways.

2. The candidate should apply to an Accountant-General not later than 30 days previous to the date fixed for the examination and obtain his consent to conduct the examination, if examination at the College is not convenient. The application must bear the address of the candidate, must be accompanied by a fee of Rs. 10 and the following certificates and registration form duly filled in, and must be forwarded by him, not direct to the Principal, but through the Accountant-General.

Certificates may be submitted in original, or true copies attested by an officer of the Engineer or Accounts Branch, but none will be returned :—

(1) Certificate of good character signed by applicant's immediate official superior, or by the instructor under whom he has been educated, or by some other superior under whom he may have been brought up or employed, or to whom he may be well known. (This certificate must have special reference to the two years immediately preceding the application.)

(2) Certificate of age, baptismal or of birth (not required, if the candidate is already in permanent Government employ).

(3) Certificate that the application is in the candidate's hand-writing.

(4) Registration statement containing the following information :—

(a) Name in full.

- (g) Examinations passed.
- (h) Thumb mark of candidate, left hand, to be made in the presence of a responsible person who knows candidate.
- (i) Signature and address of above-mentioned witness.

NOTE.—A candidate already in Government service should, in like manner, submit his application through his immediate official superior to an Accountant-General (including Government Examiner of Railway Accounts and Examiner of Accounts, Lower Ganges Bridge Project), qualified to hold the particular examination, and should state whether he desires to be examined at the office of the Accountant-General concerned or at the College.

It will rest with the Accountant-General (including Government Examiner of Railway Accounts and Examiner of Accounts, Lower Ganges Bridge Project) to whom the candidate submits his application, to decide, on a consideration of the certificates submitted, whether the candidate should be allowed to appear for the examination, or whether his application should be rejected. The Accountant-General or the other officers referred to will then forward to the Principal, for registration, the names of the accepted candidates, together with their registration statements, which should be signed by the Accountant-General. The registration statements should be carefully preserved by the Principal. The names of these candidates should be entered in a statement showing their ages and their addresses, and also showing where each candidate is to be examined, whether at the College, or at the office of the Accountant-General. This statement, together with the fees, should be transmitted to the Principal not later than 15 days after the dates fixed in paragraph 2 for the submission of applications of candidates.

3. Examination papers that are issued for examination need not be returned.

4. Each examination is complete in itself. A candidate who has failed in an examination, and presents himself for examination on a subsequent occasion, must undergo the full examination and furnish fresh fee and certificates.

5. If from any cause a candidate fails to appear for the examination, the fee paid will not be refunded.

6. It must be distinctly understood that the passing of this examination does not give any claim to an appointment, and that, in making appointments, preference will be given to qualified persons who are already employed in the Department.

7. Passed candidates should apply, not to the Principal of the College, nor to the Comptroller-General, but direct to the Accountant-General or Government Examiner of Railway Accounts in the province or railway under whom they may desire to be employed.

8. The Civil Engineering College acts solely as an examining body in reference to admission to the 1st grade of Accountants, Public Works Department.

9. Candidates for the 1st grade Accountantship examination, who are not Government servants and over 25 years of age, are allowed to appear at the examination of the Sibpur College centre only, but, even if successful, they are debarred from employment in the service of Government, and their names will be excluded from the list of passed candidates which is furnished to the Comptroller and Auditor-General.

10. Candidates over 25 years of age should apply in writing to the Principal of the Civil Engineering College not later than 30 days previous to the examination; the application to be accompanied by the fee of rupees ten, and the Registration statement prescribed in rule 2 (4).

 - (i) in a Presidency town, or its suburbs or in Rangoon, the Commissioner of Police;
 - (ii) elsewhere, the Magistrate of the District.
- (7) "Fulminate", means any chemical compound or mechanical mixture whatever, which, from its great susceptibility to detonation, is suitable for employment in percussion-caps or any other appliance for developing detonation, or which, from its extreme sensibility to explosion and from its great instability (that is to say, readiness to undergo decomposition from very slight exciting causes), is especially dangerous.
- (8) "Gunpowder" means gunpowder ordinarily so called.

(ii) includes a rifle-calibre machine-gun cartridge, if it is as described in clause (i) whether it is for use with a machine-gun having chambers identical with those of rifles or with a machine-gun having special chambers:

Provided that the diameter of the cartridge in either case (i) or case (ii) does not exceed one inch.

(13) "Safety fuze" means a fuze for blasting which burns and does not explode, and which does not contain its own means of ignition, and which is of such strength and construction, and contains an explosive in such quantity, that the burning of such fuze would not communicate laterally with other like fuzes.

(14) "Testing authority" means the Chemical Examiner or such other officer as the Local Government may appoint in this behalf.

CHAPTER II.

PRESCRIBED TESTS.

[Vide rule 16.]

GENERAL INSTRUCTIONS.

Apparatus required.

1. A water bath, consisting of a spherical glass or copper vessel [(a) Fig. I] of about 8 inches diameter, and with an aperture of about 5 inches, the bath is filled with water to within a quarter of an inch of the edge. It has a loose cover of sheet copper about 6 inches in diameter (b), and rests on a tripod stand about 14 inches high (c), which is covered with coarse iron wire gauze (e), and is surrounded with a screen of thin sheet tin or copper (d). Within the latter is placed an Argand burner (f), with glass chimney. The cover (b) has four holes arranged as seen in Fig II, No. 4 to receive the regulator, No. 3 the thermometer, Nos. 1 and 2 the test-tubes containing the gun-cotton or other materials to be tested. Around holes 1 and 2 on the under side of the cover are soldered three pieces of brass wire with points slightly converging (Fig. III), these act as springs and allow the test-tubes to be easily placed in position and removed.

Fig. I.

Fig. II.

Fig. IV.

Fig. III.

* 2 Scheibler's or Page's temperature regulator.

* 3. Two cells of Le Clanché's battery No. 1

* 4. A few yards of insulated copper wire } if Scheibler's regulator is used.

* This is not absolutely required, as the temperature of the bath can be kept constant by proper attention to the heating flame.

5. Test-tubes from $5\frac{1}{4}$ to $5\frac{1}{2}$ inches long, and of such diameter that they will hold from 20 to 22 cubic centimetres of water when filled to a height of 5 inches.
6. India-rubber stoppers, fitting the test-tubes and carrying an arrangement for holding the test-paper, viz., a narrow glass tube passing through the centre of the stopper, drawn out so as to form a hook, or terminating in a platinum wire hook (Fig. IV).
7. A thermometer, with range not less than from 30° to 212° Fahrenheit.
8. A minute clock.

Materials required.

(a) Test-paper.—The test-paper is prepared as follows:—45 grains of white maize starch (cornflour), previously washed with cold water, are added to $8\frac{1}{4}$ ounces of distilled water, the mixture is stirred, heated to boiling, and kept gently boiling for 10 minutes; 15 grains of pure potassium iodide (i. e., which has been re-crystallized from alcohol) are dissolved in $8\frac{1}{4}$ ounces of distilled water. The two solutions are thoroughly mixed and allowed to get cold. Strips, or sheets, of best white English filter paper, weighing air dry, from 4.1 to 4.6 grammes per 100 square inches, previously washed with water and re-dried, are dipped into the solution thus prepared, and allowed to remain in it for not less than 10 seconds; they are then allowed to drain and dry in a place free from laboratory fumes and dust. The upper and lower margins of the strips, or sheets, are cut off, and the paper is preserved in well-stoppered or corked bottles and in the dark.* The dimensions of the pieces of test-paper used are about $\frac{1}{10}$ inch by $\frac{1}{8}$ inch (10 mm. by 20 mm.).

(b) Standard tint-paper.—A solution of caramel in water is made of such concentration that when diluted one hundred times (10 cc. made up to 1 litre) the tint of this diluted solution equals the tint produced by the Nessler test in 100 cc. water containing 0.000075 grm. of ammonia or 0.0002355 grm. of chloride of ammonium. With this caramel solution lines are drawn on strips of white filter paper† by means of a clean quill pen. When the marks thus produced are dry the paper is cut into pieces of the same size as the test-paper previously described, in such a way that each piece has a brown line across it near the middle of its length, and only such strips are preserved in which the brown line has a breadth varying from $\frac{1}{2}$ mm. to 1 mm. ($\frac{1}{16}$ of an inch to $\frac{1}{8}$ of an inch).

II.—Testing Dynamite, Blasting Gelatine, and other Explosives of the First Division of the Nitro-compound Class.

A.—DYNAMITE, ETC., ETC.

Nitro-glycerine preparations, from which the nitro-glycerine can be extracted in the manner described below, must satisfy the following test.

This test, however, though at present looked upon as the most important, as far as testing the purity of the nitro-glycerine is concerned, is in England only one of several which any given sample of nitro-glycerine preparation has to satisfy in order to establish its compliance with the definition in the Authorised List.

* When a paper is freshly prepared, and as long as it remains in good condition, a drop of dilute acetic acid, put on the paper with a glass rod produces no coloration. In process of time, however, the stronger the light to which the paper is exposed, the sooner a drop of acid produces a brown or bluish coloration (a single hour of direct sunlight produces a marked effect), and whenever this is the case the paper should be rejected. After preparation the paper should be kept in the dark for a month before being taken into use. After that, if carefully kept in the dark, it will remain good for six months or more; but should be tested from time to time as above.

† This paper must be carefully washed with distilled water in the first instance, to remove any traces of bleaching matter, and dried.

About 300 to 400 grains of dynamite (b) finely divided are placed into the funnel which has previously been loosely plugged by some freshly-ignited asbestos (a).

The surface is smoothed by means of a flat-headed glass rod or stopper, and some clean washed and dried Kieselguhr (c) is spread over it to the depth of about $\frac{1}{2}$ inch.

Water is next carefully dropped from a wash bottle upon this Kieselguhr, and when the first portion has been soaked up more is added; this is repeated until sufficient nitro-glycerine has been collected in the graduated measure (e) below.

If any water should have passed through with the nitro-glycerine, it should be removed with a piece of blotting paper, and the nitro-glycerine, if necessary, filtered through a dry paper filter.

Application of the Test.

The thermometer is fixed so as to be inserted through the lid of the water bath described under 1, into the water (which is to be steadily maintained at a temperature of 100° Fahr *) to a depth of 2 $\frac{1}{2}$ inches. Fifty grains of nitro-glycerine to be tested are weighed into a test-tube in such a way as not to soil the sides of the tube. A test-paper is fixed on the hook of the glass rod so that when inserted into the tube it will be in a vertical position. A sufficient amount of a mixture of half distilled water and half glycerine to moisten the upper half of the paper is now applied to the upper edge of the test-paper by means of a camel's-hair pencil, the cork carrying the rod and paper is fixed into the test-tube and the position of the paper adjusted, so that its lower edge is about half-way down the tube; the latter is then inserted through one of the perforations of the cover to such a depth that the lower margin of the moistened part of the paper is about five-eighths of an inch above the surface of the cover. The test is complete when the faint brown line, which after a time makes its appearance at the line of boundary between the dry and moist part of the paper, equals in tint the brown line of the standard tint paper.

The nitro-glycerine under examination will not be considered to have satisfied the test unless the time necessary to produce the standard tint as above described is at least 15 minutes.

B.—BLASTING GELATINE, GELATINE DYNAMITE, AND ANALOGOUS PREPARATIONS.

Fifty (50) grains of blasting gelatine are to be intimately incorporated with one hundred (100) grains of French chalk.† The mixture is to be gradually introduced into a test-tube of the dimensions prescribed above for the dynamite heat test, with the aid of gentle tapping upon the table, between the introduction of successive portions of the mixture into the tube, so that when the tube contains all the mixture it shall be filled to the extent of 1 $\frac{3}{4}$ inches (one inch and three-quarters) of its height. The test-paper is then

* For explosives supplied for His Majesty's Military and Naval Services the temperature is fixed by the War Office at 180°.

† This can be readily effected by carefully working the two materials together with a wooden pestle in a wooden mortar.

The French chalk should be of good commercial quality, and, after being carefully washed with distilled water and dried in a water oven, it should be exposed under a bell jar to moist air until it has taken up about 0.5 per cent. of moisture. It should then be bottled for use; and with ordinary care the limits of 0.5 per cent. can be maintained in keeping.

to be inserted and the heat is to be applied in the manner prescribed above for the dynamite heat test, and the sample tested is to withstand exposure to 160° Fahr. for a period of ten (10) minutes, before producing a discoloration of the test-papers corresponding in tint to the standard colour test which is employed for governing the results of the dynamite heat tests.

(For Exudation and Liquefaction tests for Blasting Gelatine, etc., etc., see Appendix).

N. B.—Non-gelatinized nitro-glycerine preparations from which the nitro-glycerine cannot be expelled by water, are tested without any previous separation of the ingredients, the temperature being as above (160° Fahr.) and the time being seven (7) minutes.

C.—CORDITE AND BALLISTITE.

1. Apparatus required.

The apparatus necessary for the application of the heat test to cordite is identical with that described above for explosives of the nitro-compound class generally* with the addition of a mill and a nest of sieves† similar to those used at Waltham Abbey for preparing the cordite for testing (see instructions below).

2. Preparation of the sample to be tested.

Pieces half an inch long are cut from one end of every stick selected for the test; in the case of the thicker cordites, each piece so cut is further sub-divided into about four portions. These cut pieces are then passed once through the mill, the first portion of material which passes through being rejected on account of the possible presence of foreign matter from the mill. The ground material is put on the top sieve of the nest of sieves and sifted. The portion which has passed through the top sieve and been stopped by the second is taken for the test. If the mill is properly set the greater portion of the ground material will be of the proper size.

If the volatile matter in the explosive exceed 0.5 per cent the sifted material should be dried at a temperature not exceeding 140° Fahr. until the proportion does not exceed 0.5 per cent.

After each sample has been ground, the mill must be taken to pieces and carefully cleaned.

3. Application of the Test.

The thermometer is fixed so as to be inserted through the lid of the water bath described under paragraph 1, so as to be immersed in the water to a depth of 2½ inches. The water is maintained at a constant temperature of 180° Fahr. When this temperature is reached, 25 grains of the sifted cordite are put into one of the test-tubes, and collected at the bottom by gentle tapping. A test paper is fixed on to the hook of the glass rod, so that when inserted into the tube it will be in a vertical position. A mixture of equal parts of distilled water and pure glycerine (Price's) is now applied to the upper edge of the test paper by means of a camel's-hair pencil, in sufficient amount to moisten the upper half; the stopper carrying the rod and paper is fixed into the test-tube and the position of the paper adjusted so that its lower edge is about half way down the tube; the latter is then inserted through one of the perforations of the cover to the same depth as the thermometer. The lower margin of the moistened part of the paper should then be about five-eighths of an inch above the surface of the cover. The test is completed when the faint brown line, which after a time makes its appearance at the margin between the wet and dry portions of the test-paper, equals in depth of tint the brown line drawn on the standard tint paper.

4. The time which elapses between the insertion of the test-tube and the completion of the test must not be less than 15 minutes.

* In the Waltham Abbey apparatus the cover (Fig. II) has all the holes around the circumference instead of having one in the centre and three around the circumference.

† A nest of two sieves with the holes drilled in sheet copper. The holes in the top sieve have a diameter = 14 B. W. G., those in the second = 21 B. W. G.

If too hard for the mill, it may be softened by exposure to the vapour of acetone, or reduced to the necessary degree of sub-division by means of a sharp moderately coarse rasp. Should it have become too soft in the acetone vapour for the mill, it should be cut up into small pieces which may be brought to any desired degree of hardness by simple exposure to air.

Explosives which consist partly of gelatinized collodion cotton and partly of ungelatinized gun-cotton are best reduced to powder by a rasp, or softened by exposure to mixed ether and alcohol vapour at a temperature of 90° to 100° Fahr.

N. B.—In the case of ballistite the treatment is the same except that when it is in a very finely granulated condition it need not be cut up.

III.—Testing Gun-cotton, Schultz's Gun Powder, E. C. Powder, and other explosives of the 2nd Division of the Nitro-compound Class.

A.—COMPRESSED NITRO-CELLULOSE, TONITE, ETC., ETC.

Sufficient material to serve for two or more tests is removed from the centre of the cartridge by gentle scraping, and, if necessary, further reduced by rubbing through a sieve with a clean hard brush.

The fine powder thus produced is spread out in a thin layer upon a paper tray 6 inches by 4½ inches which is then placed inside a water oven, kept, as nearly as possible, at 120° Fahr.

The wire gauze shelves in the oven should be about 3 inches apart. The sample is allowed to remain at rest for 15 minutes in the oven, the door of which is left wide open.

After the lapse of 15 minutes the tray is removed and exposed to the air of the room for two hours, the sample being at some point within that time rubbed upon the tray with a brush, in order to reduce it to a fine and uniform state of division.

Application of the Test.

The cover of the water bath is fitted with the gas regulator which is inserted through the centre hole (No. 4). The thermometer is fixed into hole No. 3. The water in the bath is then heated to 170° Fahr., and the regulator set to maintain that temperature. Twenty grains of the sample to be tested are weighed out, placed in the test-tube, and gently pressed down until the specimen occupies a space of not more than 1½ inches in a test-tube of the dimensions specified. A test-paper is affixed to the hook of the glass rod or tube, and moistened by touching the upper edge with a drop of distilled water containing 50 per cent. of Price's glycerine. The quantity of liquid used must be only sufficient to moisten about half of the paper. The cork carrying the rod and test-paper is then fixed into the test-tube, and the latter inserted into the bath to a depth of 2½ inches, measured from the cover, the regulator and thermometer being inserted to the same depth. The test-paper is to be kept near the top of the test-tube, but clear of the cork, until the tube has been immersed for about five minutes. A ring of moisture will about this time be deposited upon the sides of the test-tube a little above the cover of the bath; the glass rod must then be lowered until the lower margin of the moistened part of the paper is on a level with the bottom of the ring of moisture in the tube; the paper is now closely watched. The test is complete when the faint brown line which makes its appearance at the line of boundary between the dry and moist parts of the paper, equals in tint the brown line of the standard tint paper.

The interval of time between the first insertion of the tube containing the sample of gun-cotton in the water at 170° and the production of the standard tint constitutes the test, and this interval of time must be not less than 10 minutes, or the sample will not be considered to have satisfied the test.

B.—GELATINIZED AND SEMI-GELATINIZED NITRO-CELLULOSE PREPARATIONS.*

Twenty-five grains introduced into the test-tube* of the dimensions prescribed for the dynamite heat test, then proceed as for blasting gelatine, etc., taking the temperature at 180° Fahr., and the time as 15 minutes.

C.—NITRO-CELLULOSE NOT INCLUDED IN A. OR B., SCHULTZ'S POWDER, E. C. POWDER, ETC., ETC.

Sufficient of the sample, without further mechanical division, is dried in the oven as above, and then exposed for two hours to the air. The test as directed above for compressed nitro-cellulose, etc., is then applied, the minimum duration of test being the same, viz., 10 minutes.

D.—PICRIC ACID.

(1) The material shall contain not more than 0.3 part of mineral or non-combustible matter in 100 parts by weight of the material dried at 160° Fahr.

* If in a compressed form it should be broken up in the same manner as cordite and ballistite.

(2) It should not contain more than a minute trace of lead. *

(3) One hundred parts of the dry material shall not contain more than 0.3 part of total (free and combined) sulphuric acid, of which not more than 0.1 part shall be free sulphuric acid.

(4) Its melting point should be between 248° and 253° Fahr.

E.—AMMONITE, BELLITE, ROBURITE, AND EXPLOSIVES OF SIMILAR COMPOSITION.

These are required to stand the same heat test as compressed nitro-cellulose.

IV.—Testing Chlorate Mixtures.

The material must not be too sensitive * and must show no tendency to increase in sensitiveness on keeping.

The material must contain nothing liable to reduce the chlorate.

Chlorides calculated as potassium chloride must not exceed 0.25 per cent.

The material must contain no free acid, or substance liable to produce free acid.

Explosives of this Class containing nitro-compounds will be subject to the heat test as if they belonged to Class III.

V.—Testing Ammunition (Divisions 2 and 3).

Any explosive made up into ammunition (other than Division 1), for which a test is provided in the schedule is to be tested as if not so made up.

APPENDIX.

Exudation and Liquefaction Test for Blasting Gelatine, Gelatine Dynamite and analogous Preparations.

TEST FOR LIQUEFACTION.

A cylinder of blasting gelatine is to be cut from the cartridge to be tested, the length of the cylinder to be about equal to its diameter and the ends being cut flat.

The cylinder is to be placed on end on a flat surface without any wrapper, and secured by a pin passing vertically through its centre.

In this condition the cylinder is to be exposed for one hundred and forty-four (144) consecutive hours (six days and nights) to a temperature ranging from 85° to 90° Fahr. (inclusive), and during such exposure the cylinder shall not diminish in height by more than one-fourth of its original height, and the upper cut surface shall retain its flatness and the sharpness of its edge.

Note.—If the blasting gelatine and the gelatine dynamite to be tested be not made up in a cylindrical form, the above test is to be applied with the necessary modifications.

TEST FOR LIABILITY TO EXUDATION.

There shall be no separation from the general mass of the blasting gelatine or gelatine dynamite of a substance of less consistency than the bulk of the remaining portion of the materials under any conditions of storage, transport, or use, or when the material is subjected three times in succession to alternate freezing and thawing, or when subjected to the liquefaction test hereinbefore described.

* They will be considered too sensitive if they can be exploded however partially by means of a glancing blow with a broomstick on soft wood (such as deal).

Conditions.

[IV of 1884.] 1. The license is granted subject to the provisions of the Indian Explosives Act, 1884, and the rules thereunder.

2. The licensee shall keep records and accounts of all explosives manufactured, of all stock in hand, and of all sales, in such form as the Local Government may from time to time direct.

3. The licensee shall exhibit his stock and his books and records of manufacture and sales to any Magistrate or to any Police-officer not below the rank of Inspector, whenever such Magistrate or officer may call upon him so to do.

4. (1) The explosive shall be manufactured in a tent or lightly constructed building exclusively appropriated for the purpose and separated from any dwelling-house, highway, street, public thoroughfare or public place by the distance—

(a) in the case of gunpowder or small-arm nitro-compound, of one hundred yards, or

(b) in the case of an explosive of the 1st Division of the 6th (ammunition) Class, or of the 7th (firework) Class, of fifty yards.

(2) In the case of filling cartridges for small-arms the operation may, if preferred, be carried out in the upper room of a building to which the conditions in clause (1) as to distance need not apply:

Provided that no more than five pounds of explosive (except such as may be contained in safety cartridges) shall be in the room where the operation is being carried on.

(3) In all other cases the manufacture shall be carried on in a one-storeyed building.

5. The number of persons employed at any one time in manufacture in any one building or room shall not exceed six, and only persons actually manufacturing or superintending manufacture shall be allowed inside the place of manufacture.

6.* No iron or steel implements shall be used in manufacture. Only copper, gun-metal or wooden tools are permissible.

7. All explosives, as manufactured, shall be removed without delay to a safe place of storage, and no explosive shall be allowed to accumulate in the place of manufacture.

8. Manufacture shall only be carried on between sunrise and sunset.

9. No smoking or lights shall be allowed in or near a room where explosives are being manufactured.

10. All sales of explosives under this license must be effected on the premises shown on the face of the license.

11. An explosive shall not be sold to any child apparently under the age of fourteen years, nor shall any child under that age be employed in manufacture.

12. The explosives possessed by the licensee shall be kept in one or other or both of the following modes :—

Mode A, that is to say, in a building or excavation, which is detached from any dwelling-house, and is separated by the distances prescribed in condition No. 4* from any highway, street, public thoroughfare or public place, and is made and closed so as to prevent unauthorised persons from having access thereto and to secure it from danger from without, and is exclusively appropriated to keeping explosives : and

(a) such a building must be substantially constructed of brick, stone or concrete, or must be a securely constructed fireproof safe ; and

(b) such an excavation must be formed in solid rock, or earth, or in mine refuse not liable to ignition, and must not open into, from or out of any mine, quarry, tunnel or underground place which is in use for the carrying on of any work or for the employment of any person.

Mode B, that is to say, in a substantial receptacle (whether or not a fireproof safe) which is closed and secured so as to prevent unauthorised persons from having access thereto, and is exclusively appropriated to the keeping of explosives, and is placed inside a dwelling-house, or inside a building which is not itself qualified for the keeping of explosives in Mode A :

Provided that a fireproof safe shall not be used for the keeping of any explosive other than gunpowder or small-arm nitro-compound and cartridges of the 2nd Division of the 6th (ammunition) Class (not containing their own means of ignition) and made with gunpowder or small-arm nitro-compound, such as cartridges or charges for cannon or blasting purposes.

13. The maximum quantity of explosives allowed to be kept at the same time shall be the following :—

(1) if the only explosive kept be one or more of the following, namely :—

(a) gunpowder ;

(b) small-arm nitro-compound ; or works, the maximum shall be—manufactured fireworks	Two hundred.	Fifty.

-------------------------------	--------------	--------

(3) in any other case the maximum shall be—mixed explosives, including gunpowder, small-arm nitro-compound and manufac- tured fireworks, etc., in all	Sixty.	Fifteen.

and, in addition, of explosives contained in ammunition of the 1st Division of the 6th Class	Any quantity.	Any quantity.

Provided that in each of the three cases above-mentioned the aggregate quantity kept on the premises in Mode A and Mode B together may not in any case exceed the maximum quantity which may be kept in Mode A.

14. With respect to a building or excavation used in Mode A, and a receptacle used in Mode B,—

(a) the interior thereof, and the shelves and fittings therein, shall be so constructed, or so lined and covered, as to prevent the exposure of any iron or steel, or the detaching of any grit, iron or steel or similar substance, in such manner as to come into contact with the explosive ; and such interior, shelves and fittings shall, so far as is reasonably practicable, be kept free from grit and otherwise clean ;

* These distances may be reduced to one-half when the building is surrounded by a traverse as high as the eaves of the building.

(b) in the case of any explosive being possessed which is liable to be dangerously affected by water, due precautions shall be taken to exclude water therefrom ;

(c) all articles or substances of an explosive or highly inflammable nature, and all lights, shall be kept at a safe distance from the explosive, and from any room or part of a building, excavation or receptacle containing the same ; and

(d) no person in any such room or part of a building or any such excavation, or any such receptacle, shall have any iron or steel in his possession, or attached to or on his boots or shoes :

Provided that this condition, so far as it relates to the exposure of iron or steel or similar substances, shall not be obligatory in the case where no explosive is kept other than ammunition of the 1st Division of the 6th (ammunition) Class.

15. Any quantity exceeding five pounds of an explosive of the 1st Division of the 6th (ammunition) Class or of the 2nd Division of the 7th (firework) Class, and of any other explosive exceeding one pound, shall be kept in a substantial case, bag, canister or other receptacle, made and closed so as to prevent the explosives from escaping ; and, when publicly exposed for sale or when sold, the outermost receptacle containing such explosives shall have affixed the name of the explosives in conspicuous characters by means of a brand or securely-attached label or other mark :

Provided that two samples of each kind of firework may be exposed for sale without complying with the foregoing clauses of this condition, if such samples be placed in such a position that no light or fire is, or is likely to be, brought near them.

16. (r) Explosives of different descriptions which may be kept under this license shall be separated by an intervening partition of such substance and character, or by such intervening space, as will effectually prevent explosion or fire in the one communicating with the other :

(2) Provided as follows :—

(a) Gunpowder, small-arm nitro-compound and safety fuzes belonging to the 1st Division of the 6th (ammunition) Class may be kept with each other without any intervening partition or space ;

(b) the various explosives of the 1st Division of the 6th (ammunition) Class may be kept with each other without any intervening partition or space ;

(c) the various explosives of the 7th (firework) Class may be kept with each other without any intervening partition or space

(a) the name and address of the person who takes delivery of the articles sold ;

(b) the nature and amount of articles sold ; and

and shall append his signature to the endorsement.

Conditions.

1. This license is granted subject to the provisions of the Indian Explosives Act, 1884, and the rules thereunder.

2. The whole vessel, barge or craft in or on board which the explosives are stored shall be deemed to constitute the magazine.

3. The magazine shall be used only for the keeping of such explosives as may be specified in the license, and of receptacles for, or tools or implements for work connected with, the keeping of such explosives.

4. The interior of the magazine, and the benches, shelves and fittings therein, shall be so constructed or so lined or covered as to prevent the exposure of any iron or steel in such manner, and the detaching of any grit, iron, steel or similar substance in such manner, as to come into contact with the explosives in such magazine; and such interior, benches, shelves and fittings shall, so far as is reasonably practicable, be kept free from grit and otherwise clean.

5. The magazine shall have attached thereto an efficient lightning conductor, which shall be tested previous to the storage of explosives.

6. No charcoal, whether ground or otherwise, oiled cotton, oiled rags or oiled waste and no article whatever which is liable to spontaneous ignition, shall be taken into the magazine.

7. Before repairs are done to or in any part of the magazine, it shall, so far as practicable, be cleaned by the removal of all explosives, and by a thorough washing out. After being so cleaned, it shall not be deemed to be a magazine until explosives are again taken into it.

8. There shall be constantly kept in the magazine, affixed in such manner as to be easily read, a copy of the license, and of any special rules that may be issued from time to time for the keeping of explosives in a floating magazine.

9. All tools and implements used in any repairs to or in any part of the magazine shall be made only of wood or copper or brass or some soft metal or material, or shall be covered with some safe and suitable material.

10. No fires, lights or lucifer matches, and no substance or article which is likely to cause explosion or fire, shall be permitted to be at any time in the magazine.

11. Due provision shall be made, by the use of suitable working clothes without pockets, or of suitable shoes, or by searching or otherwise, or by some such means, for preventing the introduction into the magazine of fire, lucifer matches or any substance or article which is likely to cause explosion or fire; and for preventing the introduction or any grit, iron or steel into any part of the magazine where it would be likely to come into contact with explosives; and in any part of the magazine in which any explosive is kept which is liable to be dangerously affected by water, due precautions shall be taken to exclude water from such part; but this condition shall not prevent the introduction of an artificial light of such construction, position or character as not to cause any danger of fire or explosion; and so much of this condition as relates to the exclusion of grit, iron or steel shall not be obligatory in the case of a magazine in which no explosive other than explosives of the 1st Division of the 6th (ammunition) Class is kept.

12. No person shall smoke in any part of the magazine.

13. (1) The licensee shall not employ any vessel, barge or craft to carry an explosive to or from the magazine unless the cabin, hold or other part of the vessel, barge or craft in which the explosive is or is to be carried—

(b) contains only explosives, and

(c) is closed or otherwise properly covered over :

Provided that clause (a) shall not apply in the case of any vessel, barge or craft which carries no explosive other than explosives of the 1st Division of the 6th (ammunition) Class, or which is specially exempted by an order of the Chief Inspector of Explosives or by an order of the Local Government endorsed on this license.

(2) The licensee shall see that the explosives to be placed on any vessel, barge or craft so employed are loaded, carried and unloaded with all due diligence and with such precautions and in such manner as will sufficiently guard against any accidental ignition.

14. The licensee shall see—

(a) that no fire, unprotected light or smoking is allowed while any explosive [other than explosives of the 1st Division of the 6th (ammunition) Class] is being received or delivered, or while the hatches or door of the magazine, or the hatches or coverings of any vessel, barge or craft alongside containing any such explosive, are open; and

(b) that no receipt or delivery of explosive is carried on, and that the hatches or door of the magazine are or is kept closed, when any vessel, barge or craft having on board a fire (other than engine-fires properly banked up) or an unprotected light is alongside a magazine containing an explosive other than explosives of the 1st Division of the 6th (ammunition) Class or in its immediate vicinity.

15. A person under the age of fourteen years shall not be employed in or enter the magazine, except in the presence and under the supervision of some grown-up person.

16. In the case of the magazine being approachable at low water by carriages, the words "vessel, barge, or craft," in Nos. 13 and 14 of these conditions, shall be taken to include a carriage.

17. (1) Two or more descriptions of explosives, which may lawfully be possessed in a licensed magazine, may be possessed in the same magazine, if they are separated from each other by an intervening partition of such substance and character, or by such intervening space, as will effectually prevent explosion or fire in one compartment from extending to another compartment.

(2) Provided as follows:—

(a) the various explosives of Classes 1 (gunpowder), 2 (nitrate-mixture), 3 (nitro-compound) and 4 (chlorate mixture), safety fuzes belonging to the 1st Division of the 6th (ammunition) Class, and such of the various explosives of the 2nd Division of the 6th (ammunition) Class, as do not contain any exposed iron or steel, may be kept with each other without any intervening partition or space;

1. The examination is held annually at the Civil Engineering College, Sibpur, on the first Monday in June. The examination will be conducted, either at the College, or by an Accountant-General (including Government Examiner of Railway Accounts and Examiner of Accounts, Lower Ganges Bridge Project), in Bengal, Eastern Bengal and Assam and Burma only. The examination will be ipso facto vitiated, if it be not held (begun and completed) on the dates fixed; but the officer who will conduct the examination, may make his own arrangements with the candidates in regard to the place and hour of examination.

Candidates will not be examined in any of the Calcutta offices.

A candidate already in permanent Government employ* may be allowed to compete in the examination, even if he is more than 25 years of age, and may be appointed to an accountantship, if he passes it; but if he is not already in pensionable service, he will be eligible only for appointment to the non-pensionable establishment on State Railways.

* This term includes employment under Local Boards and Foreign bodies, if such is pensionable by the British Government.

2. The candidate should apply to an Accountant-General not later than 30 days previous to the date fixed for the examination and obtain his consent to conduct the examination, if examination at the College is not convenient. The application must bear the address of the candidate, must be accompanied by a fee of Rs 10 and the following certificates and registration form duly filled in, and must be forwarded by him not direct to the Principal, but through the Accountant-General

Certificates may be submitted in original, or true copies attested by an officer of the Engineer or Accounts Branch, but none will be returned:—

(1) Certificate of good character signed by applicant's immediate official superior, or by the instructor under whom he has been educated, or by some other superior under whom he may have been brought up or employed, or to whom he may be well known. (This certificate must have special reference to the two years immediately preceding the application.)

(2) Certificate of age, baptismal or of birth (not required, if the candidate is already in permanent Government employ).

(3) Certificate that the application is in the candidate's hand-writing

(4) Registration statement containing the following information:—

- (a) Name in full.
- (b) Father's name.
- (c) Nationality or class, i.e., European, Anglo-Indian or Indian, of candidate; and, if Indian, caste or tribe.
- (d) Date of birth.
- (e) Place of birth
- (f) Present address.
- (g) Examinations passed.
- (h) Thumb mark of candidate, left hand, to be made in the presence of a responsible person who knows candidate.
- (k) Signature and address of above-mentioned witness

NOTE.—A candidate already in Government service should, in like manner, submit his application, through his immediate official superior to an Accountant-General (including Government Examiner of Railway Accounts and Examiner of Accounts, Lower Ganges Bridge Project), qualified to hold the particular examination, and should state whether he desires to be examined at the office of the Accountant-General concerned or at the College

It will rest with the Accountant-General (including Government Examiner of Railway Accounts and Examiner of Accounts, Lower Ganges Bridge Project) to whom the candidate submits his application, to decide, on a consideration of the certificates submitted, whether the candidate should be allowed to appear for the examination, or whether his application should be rejected. The Accountant-General or the other officers referred to will then forward to the Principal, for registration, the names of the accepted candidates, together with their registration statements, which should be signed by the Accountant-General. The registration statements should be carefully preserved by the Principal. The names of these candidates should be entered in a statement showing their ages and their addresses, and also showing where each candidate is to be examined, whether at the College or at the office of the Accountant-General. This statement, together with the fees, should be transmitted to the Principal not later than 15 days after the dates fixed in paragraph 2 for the submission of applications of candidates.

3. Examination papers that are issued for examination need not be returned.

4. Each examination is complete in itself. A candidate who has failed in an examination, and presents himself for examination on a subsequent occasion, must undergo the full examination and furnish fresh fee and certificates.

5. If from any cause a candidate fails to appear for the examination, the fee paid will not be refunded.

6. It must be distinctly understood that the passing of this examination does not give any claim to an appointment and that, in making appointments, preference will be given to qualified persons who are already employed in the Department.

7. Passed candidates should apply, not to the Principal of the College, nor to the Comptroller-General but direct to the Accountant-General or Government Examiner of Railway Accounts in the province or railway under whom they may desire to be employed.

8. The Civil Engineering College acts solely as an examining body in reference to admission to the 4th grade of Accountants, Public Works Department.

9. Candidates for the 4th grade Accountantship examination, who are not Government servants and over 25 years of age, are allowed to appear at the examination of the Sibpur College centre only, but, even if successful, they are debarred from employment in the service of Government, and their names will be excluded from the list of passed candidates which is furnished to the Comptroller and Auditor General.

10. Candidates over 25 years of age should apply in writing to the Principal of the Civil Engineering College not later than 30 days previous to the examination; the application to be accompanied by the fee of rupees ten, and the Registration statement prescribed in rule 2 (4)

B.—MEMORANDUM FOR INVENTORS DEALING WITH THE ARMY OR MARINE DEPARTMENT OF THE GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

1. Instructions how to submit.—Persons who desire to submit any invention for the consideration of the Government of India should do so by letter addressed to the Secretary to the Government of India in the Army or Marine Department through the Director-General of Ordnance in India.

2. The letter should state the nature of the invention and give sufficient particulars to enable its merits to be fully considered, and adduce any evidence there may be of the usefulness of the invention, obtained by actual previous experiment. Any drawings, models, or samples which it is desired to submit should either accompany the letter or be sent separately at the same time, or if bulky, particulars should be given as to the place at which the samples or models can be inspected if necessary. All designs, plans, drawings, models, samples or papers submitted are at the owner's risk, and the Army or Marine Department cannot accept any responsibility for damage to them, should such occur.

3. The letter should also state whether the inventor has acquired an exclusive privilege under the Inventions and Designs Act II of 1888 or a patent under the Indian Patents and Designs Act, 1911, or whether application has been made for a patent under the latter Act. If the invention is not so covered the fact should be stated.

4. Terms.—The letter should also state what remuneration or terms the inventor would ask if the Government of India should desire :—

(i) to acquire exclusive use of the invention;

(ii) to acquire unrestricted use of the invention, but also allowing the inventor a free hand to let others use it.

If no remuneration is desired the fact should be stated.

5. Should the Government of India consider it desirable to try an invention, the inventor will, as a general rule, be required to bear the expense of the provision of the article, its carriage, fitting up and removal, but the question whether such expenses shall, in special cases, be finally borne by the Government of India, or by the inventor, will be decided by the Governor General in Council according to the circumstances of the case.

6. Retention of description.—The Government of India reserve the right to retain for future reference any designs, plans, drawings, models, samples or papers forming an essential part of the description of the invention which may be forwarded; but if the inventor desires their return the Government of India will not re-use it unless they think there is good reason for doing so. It is desirable, however, that the inventor should keep copies.

7. Adoption of invention.—Should the invention be adopted for Military or Marine services, terms for its use will be fixed by subsequent agreement, and such terms will include the supply of two copies of all designs, drawings, patterns and particulars relating to the invention which may be considered necessary by the Government of India; and it is to be understood that all such designs, drawings, patterns and particulars will be absolutely at the disposal of the Government of India for all purposes whatever, and that for them reasonable prices only will be paid to cover the cost of draughtmanship and manufacture.

8. No claim for remuneration for an invention will be held to be established unless the invention has been adopted into the service.

9. All claims for remuneration will be carefully considered but any award which may be made will only be payable to the claimant when approved by the Government of India.

M. H. S. GROVER, Major-General,

Secretary to the Government of India.

Season and Crop Prospects for the week ending Saturday,
13th April 1912.

Burma.—Light showers are reported to have fallen in several districts. Reaping of spring rice, cultivation of summer rice and harvesting of tobacco and island crops are progressing normally. Standing crops are healthy. The condition of cattle is normal. The price of unhusked rice remains very high.

Assam.—The weather was rainy during the week. Sowing of jute and rice continues. Tea is being manufactured. Prospects are good. Pressing of sugarcane is nearing completion. Cattle disease is prevalent in seven districts. The price of common rice is stationary.

Bengal.—There have been heavy falls of rain over the major portion of the Province but more rain is required in some of the western districts where ploughing and sowing of rice and jute are comparatively behind hand. Heavy rain and hail have done some injury to standing crops such as tobacco, spring rice and chillies and have delayed the planting of sugarcane in some places. Cattle disease is reported from all divisions. The average price of common rice is practically the same as last week.

Bihar and Orissa.—Rain fell in Purnea, the Sonthal Parganas and Singhbhum and in all the districts of the Orissa division. The fall was generally very light except in Balasore where it amounted to 1·86 inches. There was no rain in the rest of the Province. Harvesting of spring crops is approaching completion. Preparation of lands and planting of sugarcane are in progress. Threshing of spring crops continues. Sowing of jute is in progress in Purnea. The mango crop is reported to have failed in many parts of Purnea. Standing crops and vegetables are doing well. The price of common rice has risen in Palamau, has fallen in Shahabad, Monghyr, Bhagalpur and Angul and has been stationary in the remaining districts. Cattle disease is reported from Champaran, Muzaffarpur, Monghyr, Bhagalpur, Angul and Puri. The supply of fodder and water is sufficient throughout the Province.

United Provinces.—The week was rainless. Harvesting of spring crops has been practically completed. Threshing and winnowing are still in progress. Extra crops are flourishing. Fields are still being planted for the new sugarcane crop. Sporadic cattle disease is reported by a few districts but the general condition of agricultural stock is good. The fodder and water supply is sufficient. The general level of prices is stationary with a slight downward tendency in the case of spring grains.

Punjab.—The week was generally rainless. The condition of standing crops is average to good. Spring crops are being harvested. Sowings of extra spring and autumn crops are proceeding. Cattle are generally healthy but fodder is still scarce. Prices remain high.

North-West Frontier Province.—The week was wet and the weather cloudy. The condition of standing crops is average but in the Dera Ismail Khan district and in the Bannu tahsil unirrigated crops are reported below the average and bad respectively. Harvesting of spring crops is proceeding in the Bannu and Dera Ismail Khan districts and a normal outturn is expected. Sowings of extra spring crops, sugarcane and cotton continue. The water supply is deficient in damar villages in Dera Ismail Khan. Fodder is generally sufficient but is scarce in Dera Ismail Khan. The condition of cattle is poor in Dera Ismail Khan for want of fodder and good elsewhere. Prices are stationary.

Jammu.—Slight rain fell during the week. Prices are fluctuating. Wheat sells from 10 to 14 and maize from 11 to 33 seers per rupee. The condition of standing crops is fair. Fodder is sufficient.

Kashmir.—Slight rain fell several times during the week and was beneficial to spring crops. Zamindars are busy with sowings. Prices are unchanged. There is no disease among cattle. Fodder is average.

Rajputana.—The weather is hot and occasionally cloudy. Harvesting has been completed or is nearing completion. The outturn is poor in Merwara and in certain tracts to the west and south but fair to good elsewhere. Cattle disease prevails in isolated places. There is slight emigration from Jaisalmer. Cattle are suffering for want of pasturage in parts of the western States, Mewar and Jaipur Residencies. Pasturage and fodder is also scarce in Merwara. The water supply is deficient in many places in Kotah and is diminishing in the Hilly Tracts and Mewar. Prices are high in most States and in Ajmer-Merwara. They are rising in Ajmer and in four States.

Central India.—No rain fell during the week. The weather is very hot. Harvesting of spring crops is in progress. The outturn is above normal in Bundelkhand and good elsewhere but poor in parts of Bhopawar and Indore. Crops have been damaged slightly by hail in parts of Indore and Bundelkhand. Water is scarce in the Malwa and Bhopawar Agencies. Cattle disease is prevalent in parts of the Gwalior, Indore, Bhopal and Bhopawar Agencies. Fodder is insufficient in parts of the Gwalior, Indore and Bhopawar Agencies. Prices are normal in Bhopal and Baghelkhand, have fallen slightly in Gwalior, are fluctuating in Bhopawar and are steady elsewhere. Opium is in good condition.

The weekly report on the famine and scarcity is as follows.—Distress is increasing in Dhar. There is no emaciation and the condition of people on relief works is good. The following rules are published for general information :—

I.—The following are entitled to attend His Excellency the Viceroy's Levée :—

All gentlemen, whether European or Indian, who have been presented at the Court of St. James, or at the Viceregal Court.

II.—The following are eligible for presentation at His Excellency's Levée, whether European or Indian :—

(a) All Ruling Chiefs.

(b) All Commissioned Officers in Civil, Naval, Military (British and Indian), Marine and Volunteer Services.

(c) All Gazetted Officers of the first Class in Government employ.

(d) All gentlemen who have received titles of honour from His Majesty the King-Emporor, or His Excellency the Viceroy.

III.—Admission to Viceregal Lodge will be by ticket only. Applications for tickets should be submitted to the Military Secretary's Office not later than 23rd May, after which date no applications will be received. These same tickets will be made use of by the Military Secretary when reading the names to His Excellency the Viceroy and must consequently be brought to the Levée room. No other name-cards will be required.

This rule will not apply to gentlemen who have the privilege of Private Entrée, but they are requested to bring with them cards on which their names are typed or very clearly hand-printed.

IV.—Gentlemen, whether European or Indian, who have not already been presented at the Court of St. James or at the Viceregal Court, and who desire to be presented at His Excellency's Levée, should submit their applications through the gentlemen proposing to present them. The latter will apply to the Military Secretary to the Viceroy for a "form of presentation" which, after the necessary particulars have been filled in by the presenter, will be returned to the Military Secretary not later than Monday, the 20th May, in order that the names may be submitted to His Excellency, when, if they are approved, tickets of admission will be issued.

Gentlemen who present others must themselves attend the Levée.

In the case of all Government officials or gentlemen engaged in business, the presenter should ordinarily be the Head of the Department or Firm.

V.—Applications for permission to be presented, submitted by non-official gentlemen, whether European or Indian, will, as a general rule, be referred to the Local Authorities by the Military Secretary to the Viceroy. Only those who are declared eligible on account of their social status will be permitted to attend.

VI.—Gentlemen who are entitled ex-officio to attend Provincial Durbars may be presented at His Excellency the Viceroy's Levée by the Heads of their Departments. This will not confer upon them the privilege of attending Levées after they have ceased to hold the position which made them eligible for presentation, nor will it entitle them to present other gentlemen.

VII.—Dress :—

(a) Civil and Military Officers—Levée dress (helmets will not be taken to the Levée).

(b) Clergymen being University Graduates and other gentlemen entitled to wear robes or gowns on account of Judicial or Academical office or status and not entitled to wear uniform will appear in such robes or gowns.

- (c) Gentlemen not entitled to wear uniform, or robes or gowns, will appear in Evening Dress.
- (d) Indian gentlemen who do not appear in the dress prescribed above will wear Choga, Aba or Jubba and Chapkan, Chilta, Saya or Kaba with trousers and their distinctive National head dress, or the ceremonial dress approved for the class by the Local Government.
- (e) In the case of Bengali gentlemen the head dress should be Pugree generally known as Shamla or Mouratta, and not a brimless cap.
- (f) In the case of Burmese gentlemen the head dress should be a white fillet, the hair being dressed in a top knot.
- (g) Indian gentlemen who do not appear in the dress prescribed in (a), (b) or (c) should not remove their head dress when they pass His Excellency.

At the Viceregal Court only patent leather boots or shoes of an English pattern are allowed to be worn, except in the case of Indian Military Officers who wear the particular style of boot or shoes which forms part of their uniform.

N.B.—Gentlemen who had intended to be present but have found themselves unable to do so should submit an explanatory letter to the Military Secretary to the Viceroy before, or as soon as possible after, the Levée.

By Command,

F. A. MAXWELL, Lieut.-Colonel,
Military Secretary to the Viceroy.

WHEREAS by the Extradition Acts, 1870 to 1906, it was amongst other things enacted that, where an arrangement has been made with any foreign State with respect to the surrender to such State of any fugitive criminals, His Majesty may, by Order in Council, direct that the said Acts shall apply in the case of such foreign State ; and that His Majesty may, by the same or any subsequent Order, limit the operation of the Order, and restrict the same to fugitive criminals who are in or suspected of being in the part of His Majesty's dominions specified in the Order, and render the operation thereof subject to such conditions, exceptions, and qualifications as may be deemed expedient :

And whereas a Treaty was concluded on the $\frac{11th}{24th}$ day of September, 1910, between His Majesty and His Majesty the King of the Hellenes for the mutual extradition of fugitive criminals, which Treaty is in the terms following :—

His Majesty the King of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland and of the British Dominions beyond the Seas, Emperor of India, and His Majesty the King of the Hellenes, having determined, by common consent, to conclude a Treaty for the extradition of criminals, have accordingly named as their Plenipotentiaries :

And His Majesty the King of the Hellenes, His Excellency M. Demetrius Kalergi, Officer of the Royal Hellenic Order of the Redeemer, His Majesty's Minister for Foreign Affairs ;

Who, after having exhibited to each other their respective full powers and found them in good and due form, have agreed upon the following Articles —

ARTICLE 1.

The High Contracting Parties engage to deliver up to each other, under the circumstances and conditions stated in the present Treaty, those persons who, being accused or convicted of any of the crimes or offences enumerated in Article 2, committed in the territory of the one Party, shall be found within the territory of the other Party.

ARTICLE 2

1. Murder (including parricide, infanticide, poisoning), or attempt or conspiracy to murder, manslaughter.
2. Kidnapping and false imprisonment
3. Abandoning or exposing children below the age of 7 years
4. Abortion
5. Abduction of persons under age
6. Bigamy.
7. Malicious wounding or inflicting grievous bodily harm with premeditation, when such acts cause death (without the intention of killing) or disease or incapacity for personal labour lasting for more than three months, or serious mutilation, or the loss or disablement of a member or organ, or other permanent infirmity.
8. Threats by letter or otherwise with intent to extort.
9. Perjury
10. Arson
11. Burglary, housebreaking, larceny, embezzlement, fraudulent misappropriation of property, obtaining property by false pretences.
12. Fraud and embezzlement by public officials, bribery of public officials
13. Receiving any chattel, money, valuable security, or other property, knowing the same to have been embezzled, stolen, or feloniously obtained
14. Counterfeiting or altering money, or knowingly bringing into circulation counterfeited or altered money.
15. Knowingly making without lawful authority any instrument, tool, or engine adapted and intended for the counterfeiting of the coin of the realm.
16. Forgery by writing or uttering what is forged.
17. Fraudulent bankruptcy.
18. Malicious injury to any house or building calculated to cause danger to life or property.
19. Rape.

Participation in the aforesaid crimes is also included, provided that such participation is punishable by the laws of the demanding State and of the State applied to.

ARTICLE 3.

No Greek subject shall be surrendered by the Government of His Majesty the King of the Hellenes to the Government of His Britannic Majesty, and no British subject shall be surrendered by his Government to the Government of His Majesty the King of the Hellenes.

ARTICLE 4.

Extradition shall not take place if the person claimed on the part of His Britannic Majesty's Government, or of the Government of His Majesty the King of the Hellenes, has already been tried, discharged, or punished, or is awaiting trial in the territory of the United Kingdom or in Greece, respectively, for the crime or offence for which his extradition is demanded.

If the person claimed on the part of the Government of His Majesty the King of the Hellenes, or of his Britannic Majesty's Government, should be awaiting trial or undergoing sentence for any other crime or offence in the territory of Greece or in the United Kingdom, respectively, his extradition shall be deferred until after he has been discharged, whether by acquittal or on expiration of sentence.

ARTICLE 5.

Extradition shall not be granted if exemption from prosecution or punishment has been acquired by lapse of time, according to the laws of the State applied to.

Neither shall it be granted in the case of persons convicted by default or otherwise, unless the sentence inflicted be at least one year's imprisonment.

ARTICLE 6.

The person claimed shall not be surrendered if the crime in respect of which extradition is applied for be deemed by the party to whom application is made to be a political offence, or connected with such an offence, or if the person claimed proves that the application for extradition has in fact been made with a view to try or to punish him for an offence of this character.

ARTICLE 7.

A person whose surrender has been granted shall in no case be detained or tried in the State to which the surrender has been made for any other crime, or on account of any other matters than those for which the extradition shall have taken place.

This stipulation does not apply to crimes committed after the extradition.

The person who has been claimed, and whose extradition shall have been granted, shall not be tried or punished for any political offence committed prior to his extradition, nor for any matter connected with such an offence, nor for any crimes or offences not provided for in the present Treaty.

ARTICLE 8.

The requisition for extradition shall be made through the Diplomatic Agents of the High Contracting Parties respectively.

The requisition for the extradition of an accused person must be accompanied by a warrant of arrest issued by the competent judicial authority setting forth clearly the nature of the crime or offence with which the person claimed is charged. The said warrant shall also be accompanied by such evidence as, according to the laws of the place where the accused is found, would justify his arrest if the crime had been committed there.

If the requisition relates to a person already convicted, it must be accompanied by a copy of the judgment passed on the convicted person by the competent Court of the State that makes the requisition for extradition.

A sentence passed in contumaciam is not to be deemed a conviction, but a person so sentenced may be dealt with as an accused person.

In the event of any doubt arising as to whether the crime or offence, in respect of which the prosecution has been instituted, comes within the stipulations of the present Treaty, the Government applied to shall be at liberty to require all such further information as it may consider necessary or of assistance in order to form an opinion, after which it shall decide what action shall be taken on the demand for extradition.

The requisitioning Government, in furnishing such further information to the Government applied to, shall, at the same time, place at the disposal of the latter all such documents as may be necessary or useful in enabling it to form an opinion.

ARTICLE 9.

In cases of urgency provisional arrest may be effected upon notice being given, by post or telegraph, through the diplomatic channel that one of the documents enumerated in Article 8 has been issued, provided, however, that such notice shall always be given to the Ministry for Foreign Affairs of the State applied to.

Provisional arrest shall be effected in the manner and in accordance with the rules laid down by the laws of the State applied to. It shall not be maintained if, within a period of one month from the date on which it has been effected, the State applied to has not been furnished with one of the documents specified in Article 8 of the present Treaty.

ARTICLE 10.

All papers and documents issued by the authorities of the Contracting States which may be produced in virtue of Articles 8 and 13 of the present Treaty must be accompanied by an authenticated translation in the French language.

ARTICLE 11.

The extradition shall take place only if the evidence be found sufficient, according to the laws of the State applied to, either to justify the committal of the prisoner for trial, in case the crime had been committed in the territory of the same State, or if extradition is claimed in respect of an offence of which the fugitive has been already convicted, to prove that the prisoner is the person convicted, and that the crime of which he has been convicted is one in respect of which extradition could, at the time of such conviction, have been granted by the State applied to.

ARTICLE 12.

Extradition shall be granted in accordance with the rules laid down by the law of the State applied to.

ARTICLE 13.

Warrants, depositions, and affirmations, issued or taken in the dominions of one of the High Contracting Parties, and copies of such documents as well as certificates or judicial documents stating the fact of a conviction shall be admitted as valid evidence in the proceedings taken in the dominions of the other party, if they bear the signature or are accompanied by the certificate of a Judge, Magistrate, or officer of the State in which they have been issued or taken, provided that such warrants, depositions, affirmations, copies, certificates, or judicial documents are authenticated, either by the oath of some witness, or by being sealed with the seal of the Minister of Justice, or some other Minister of State.

ARTICLE 14.

If the accused or sentenced person be not a subject of one of the Contracting Parties, the Government to whom application for extradition is made shall be at liberty to take such action in respect of the application, as it may think fit, and to surrender the person claimed to be tried in the State in which the crime or offence has been committed.

Nevertheless, the Government of His Majesty the King of the Hellenes reserves to itself the option of surrendering the person claimed to the State to which he belongs, instead of surrendering him to the State in which the crime or offence has been committed.

ARTICLE 15.

If a fugitive criminal who has been arrested has not been surrendered and conveyed away within three months after his arrest, or within three months after the decision of the Court upon the return to a writ of habeas corpus in the United Kingdom, he shall be set at liberty.

ARTICLE 16.

When extradition is granted all articles connected with the crime or offence, or which may serve as proofs of the crime, which are found in the possession of the person claimed at the time of his arrest, or which may be afterwards discovered, shall, if the competent authority of the State applied to so direct, be seized and restored to the requisitioning State.

Such restoration shall be carried out, even if extradition be not carried out owing to the escape or death of the person claimed.

The rights, however, which third persons, not involved in the prosecution, may have acquired over the said articles are reserved, and the latter shall, should the case arise, be restored to them, free of charge, at the termination of the proceedings.

ARTICLE 17.

All expenses arising out of an application for extradition, also the costs of the arrest, maintenance, and transport of the person whose extradition shall have been granted, as well as of the despatch and forwarding of the articles which, by the provisions of Article 16, are to be returned or restored, shall be borne by the requisitioning State and by the State applied to within the limits of their respective territories.

The cost of transport or other expenses outside the territory of the State applied to shall be borne by the demanding State.

ARTICLE 18.

The stipulations of the present Treaty shall be applicable to the Colonies and foreign possessions of His Britannic Majesty.

The requisition for the surrender of a fugitive criminal who has taken refuge in any of such Colonies or foreign possessions shall be made to the Governor or chief authority of such Colony or possession by the Chief consular officer of Greece in such Colony or possession.

Such requisition may be disposed of subject always, as nearly as may be, to the provisions of this Treaty, by the said Governor or chief authority. He shall, however, be at liberty either to grant the surrender or to refer the matter to his Government.

His Britannic Majesty shall, however, be at liberty to make special arrangements in the British Colonies and foreign possessions for the surrender of criminals from Greece who may take refuge within such Colonies and foreign possessions, on the basis of the provisions of the present Treaty.

Requisitions for the surrender of a fugitive criminal emanating from any Colony or foreign possession of His Britannic Majesty shall be governed by the rules laid down in the preceding Articles of the present Treaty.

ARTICLE 19.

The present Treaty shall come into operation ten days after its publication in conformity with laws of the respective countries.

Crimes committed prior to the coming into force of the Treaty shall not form the subject of an application for extradition except in cases in which the persons claimed shall have taken refuge in the territory of the State applied to after the exchange of ratifications.

Each of the Contracting Parties shall be at liberty at any time to denounce the present Treaty upon giving six months' notice to the other Party of its intention to do so.

It shall be ratified, and the ratifications shall be exchanged at Athens as soon as possible.

And whereas the ratifications of the said Treaty were exchanged at Athens on the 30th day of December, 1911;

Now, therefore, His Majesty, by and with the advice of his Privy Council, and in virtue of the authority committed to him by the said recited Acts, doth order, and it is hereby ordered, that from and after the 26th day of February, 1912, the said Acts shall apply in the case of Greece under and in accordance with the said Treaty of the 24th September, 1910;

Provided always that the operation of the said Acts shall be and remain suspended within the Dominion of Canada so long as an Act of the Parliament of Canada, being Part I of chapter 155 of "The Revised Statutes of Canada, 1906," and entitled "An Act respecting the Extradition of Fugitive Criminals," shall continue in force there, and no longer.

It moved slowly across northern India giving precipitation over north Baluchistan, the North-West Frontier Province, the Punjab and along the Himalayas; and increased, in northeast India, the rainfall which had continued daily since the previous week.

Some rainfall was also reported from the Peninsula, the Central Provinces, Central India and Burma in the course of the week, while in Gujarat the first appreciable rainfall since the 26th of October last, was recorded on the 24th.

2. At the beginning of the week temperature was above normal in the northwest and below normal in the northeast, but on and after the 22nd it was lower than usual over practically the whole of northern India. Conditions rather warmer than usual prevailed over the Peninsula in the middle of the week.

3. Burma.—A few falls of rain occurred, chiefly in the northern parts, on each day except the 22nd.

Northeast India, including Orissa.—Rainfall was fairly general in Assam, and numerous falls occurred in Bengal. Some rain fell also in Bihar and Orissa.

Northwest India.—Light precipitation was reported from parts of the area comprising north Baluchistan, the North-West Frontier Province, the Punjab and Kashmir, on each day of the week. Rajkot and Ahmadabad recorded light rainfall on the 24th, and very light falls occurred in Rajputana West on the 23rd and 24th.

Season and Crop Prospects for the week ending Saturday,
20th April 1912.

Burma.—Several districts received rain during the week. Reaping of spring rice, cultivation of summer rice, planting of early sesamum and harvesting of tobacco, cotton and island crops are progressing normally. The condition of standing crops is good and that of cattle normal. The price of unhusked rice remains much above normal.

Assam.—The rainfall was heavy over the Province in general and in the Surma Valley division in particular. Sowing of rice and jute still continues though it has been retarded by rain in places. Some damage has been done to standing crops by hail and rain. The manufacture of tea is in progress. Prospects are generally good. Cattle disease prevails in seven districts. The price of common rice has risen slightly.

Bengal.—The rainfall in the Presidency and Burdwan divisions was moderate; in Eastern Bengal it has been heavy and accompanied by many hailstorms. Prospects of jute and rice are threatened owing to the impossibility of weeding in water-logged fields. Hail has damaged crops in several districts but the extent of the injury is not very serious because most spring crops have already been harvested and others are not sufficiently advanced to suffer much. The prices of common rice have risen, the average being 1·3 per cent higher than last week. Cattle disease is reported from the western, central and also the south-eastern districts.

Bihar and Orissa.—Light rain fell in all the districts from which reports have been received. Preparation of lands is going on and sowing of early paddy has commenced in some districts. Threshing of spring crops is approaching completion. Sugarcane and other standing crops are doing well and prospects are generally good. The price of common rice has risen in Shahabad, Monghyr, Puri and Hazaribagh and has fallen in Gaya. Cattle disease is reported from Bhagalpur, Angul and Puri. The supply of fodder and water is sufficient. Reports from four districts, viz., Saran, Champaran, Muzaffarpur and Darbhanga, have not been received.

United Provinces.—Some slight showers of rain have fallen chiefly in the sub-montane districts. The spring harvest is nearly over. Threshing and winnowing still continue. Extra crops are flourishing and sugarcane is doing well. Sporadic cattle disease is reported from a few districts but the general condition of agricultural stock is good. The fodder and water-supply is sufficient. The general level of prices is unchanged.

Punjab.—The week was wet and cloudy and unfavourable for reaping and threshing. The condition of standing crops is average to good. Spring crops are being harvested and the outturn is average to good. Sowings of extra spring and autumn crops are proceeding. Cattle are generally healthy but fodder is still scarce. Prices remain high.

North-West Frontier Province.—The week was wet and the weather cloudy. The condition of standing crops is average but in Bannu and Dera Ismail Khan, unirrigated crops are reported bad and below the average respectively. Harvesting of spring crops continues and a normal outturn is generally expected. Extra spring crops and cotton are being sown. Sowings of extra spring crops have been concluded in Bannu. The water-supply is sufficient but is scarce in certain damans villages in Dera Ismail Khan. Fodder is scarce in Dera Ismail Khan and sufficient elsewhere. Cattle are generally in good condition but are poor in Dera Ismail Khan owing to scarcity of fodder. Prices are nearly stationary.

Jammu.—Slight rain fell during the week. Prices are fluctuating. Wheat sells from 9 to 15 and maize from 12 to 28 seers per rupee. The condition of standing crops is fair. Cattle disease of mild type prevails in the Riasi tahsil. Fodder is sufficient except in the Udhampur and Ramban tahsils.

Kashmir.—Continuous rain fell during the week and was rather excessive for crops. Zamindars are busy with sowings. Prices are unchanged. There is no disease among cattle. Green fodder is available.

Rajputana.—The weather was hot and generally cloudy. Harvesting has been completed or is nearing completion. The outturn is poor in Merwara and certain tracts to the west and south but fair to good elsewhere. Cattle disease prevails in isolated places. Cattle are suffering for want of pasturage in parts of the western States, Mewar and Jaipur Residencies. Pasturage and fodder is also scarce in Merwara. The water-supply is deficient in many places in Kotah and is diminishing in the Hilly Tracts and Mewar. Prices are high in most States and in Ajmer-Merwara and are rising in Merwara.

Central India.—The weather was close and cloudy and threatening rain. Harvesting of spring crops is in progress. The outturn is above normal in Bundelkhand, fair or poor in Bhopawar and parts of Indore and good elsewhere. Water is scarce in the Malwa and Bhopawar Agencies. Cattle disease is prevalent and fodder is insufficient in parts of the Gwalior, Indore, Bhopal and Bhopawar Agencies. Prices are normal in Bhopal and Baghelkhand, have fallen slightly in Gwalior and are fluctuating in parts of the Indore and Bhopawar Agencies. The opium crop is good.

The weekly report on the famine and scarcity is as follows :—Distress is general in Jobat and increasing in Dhar. There is no change in Ali Rajpur. People on relief works are in good condition and relief measures are adequate. There is no wandering or emaciation. Fodder is scarce. The price of the cheapest food stuff varies from 11 to 12½ seers per rupee. The numbers on relief works were :—Dhar 6,267, Ali Rajpur 1,613, Jhabua 1,588 and Jobat 1,010. On takavi works in Jhabua 1,091. On gratuitous relief in Dhar 165.

Central Provinces.—The weather during the week has been hot and clear, but occasionally cloudy and accompanied with high winds. Eight districts had light showers not exceeding 48 cents. Threshing and winnowing of spring crops are still in progress. Ploughing of land for sowing of next autumn crops is also in progress. For the Provinces as a whole a normal outturn of spring crops is expected. Cattle are healthy. Prices are stationary with slight fluctuations.

Feudatory States.—Prospects are generally good. Prices are almost steady.

Bombay.—Slight rain fell during the week in parts of the Deccan and the Karnatak. Harvesting is still progressing in parts. Preparation of lands for cultivation of autumn crops is progressing generally. The fodder supply is generally inadequate. Agricultural stock is deteriorating in parts of Sind and Gujarat and is deficient in parts of the Deccan. The water-supply both for irrigation and drinking purposes is deficient in parts of the Presidency Proper. Prices are high and generally stationary.

The weekly report on the famine and scarcity is as follows :—Distress continues throughout the Panch Mahals and parts of Kathiawar. There is no wandering or emaciation. People on relief works are in good condition and relief measures are adequate. The public health is generally good. People find employment in digging temporary wells. Suspensions of land revenue have been granted and takavi is being freely advanced. Grain stocks are sufficient. Bajri sells at 9 to 10 and maize at 10½ to 11 seers per rupee. The numbers on relief for the week ending 20th April were :—Panch Mahals, on works 42,468, on gratuitous relief 50,642, total 93,110. Kathiawar, on works 6,215. On test works in Kaira 1,393. On gratuitous relief in Ahmedabad, Kaira, West Khandesh, Ahmednagar, Poona, Sholapur and Belgaum 9,008. In the Native States of Kathiawar, Palanpur, Mahi Kantha and Rewa Kantha there were 4,613 on test works and 4,931 in receipt of gratuitous relief.

Hyderabad.—Slight scattered showers fell in all districts except Medak, Nalgonda and Warangal. The highest fall was 70 cents in Makhtal, the average for the Dominions being 9 cents. Standing crops are unaffected by the rainfall. Late rice is being irrigated in places and is fair to good. Some injury by insects is reported in parts of the Medak, Warangal and Karimnagar districts. Harvesting is progressing throughout the Dominions. Cattle disease prevails in 14 talukas, fodder scarcity in 24 and water scarcity in 24. Prices :—wheat 7, coarse rice 6 and juar 13½ seers per rupee, showing a fall of ½ seer in the price of juar. White juar is selling in Hyderabad City at 12 seers. The highest price in districts is 9 seers in Raichur and the lowest 50 seers in Bir, Parbhani and Nander.

Mysore.—Prices of food grains have risen slightly in Shimoga and Chitaldrug. Markets are well supplied. Standing crops are in good condition except in parts of Mysore and Kadur where the want of rain is being felt. Prospects of the season are good. Cattle are generally healthy. Water and fodder are available.

Coorg.—The weather is cloudy. Prices of food grains are normal. Water and fodder for cattle are sufficient. The public health is fair.

Madras.—Light rain fell in the south, the west coast and parts of the Circars and heavy rain in the Nilgiris. Standing crops are fair to good. Harvesting of paddy, dry crops and sugarcane is proceeding and the outturn is fair to normal. Sowings of dry crops and paddy are proceeding normally. The condition of cattle is good. Fodder and water are generally sufficient. Prices are stationary but show a tendency to rise.

Nepal.—Report for the quarter ending 15th April 1912 —The rainfall for the period was 2.96 inches against 5.11 inches for the corresponding period of last year.

January and February 1912.—The second crop of potatoes and winter vegetables was sown.

March 1912.—The spring crop (wheat, barley, gram and oilseeds) was harvested in the Terai and the outturn was good.

April 1912.—The wheat and barley crops in the hills and Nepal Valley were suffering until the beginning of April from a marked shortage of moisture. Late but abundant rain has however fallen in the period 1st to 15th April and the crops which promised to be very poor have greatly improved and should now turn out above the normal. Peas (small) are being gathered and the second crop of potatoes is being dug. Fields are being prepared for paddy and Indian corn. Red pepper and early rice are being sown. Prices of food grains are normal and the market is well stocked. The health of live-stock is reported to be good.

1. The examination is held annually at the Civil Engineering College, Sibpur, on the first Monday in June. The examination will be conducted, either at the College, or by an Accountant-General (including Government Examiner of Railway Accounts and Examiner of Accounts, Lower Ganges Bridge Project), in Bengal, Eastern Bengal and Assam and Burma only. The examination will be ipso facto vitiated, if it be not held (begun and completed) on the dates fixed; but the officer who will conduct the examination may make his own arrangements with the candidates in regard to the place and hour of examination.

Candidates will not be examined in any of the Calcutta offices.

A candidate already in permanent Government employ* may be allowed to compete in the examination, even if he is more than 25 years of age, and may be appointed to an accountantship, if he passes it; but if he is not already in pensionable service, he will be eligible only for appointment to the non-pensionable establishment on State Railways.

2. The candidate should apply to an Accountant-General not later than 30 days previous to the date fixed for the examination and obtain his consent to conduct the examination, if examination at the College is not convenient. The application must bear the address of the candidate, must be accompanied by a fee of Rs 10 and the following certificates and registration form duly filled in, and must be forwarded by him not direct to the Principal, but through the Accountant-General.

Certificates may be submitted in original, or true copies attested by an officer of the Engineer or Accounts Branch, but none will be returned:—

(1) Certificate of good character signed by applicant's immediate official superior, or by the instructor under whom he has been educated, or by some other superior under whom he may have been brought up or employed, or to whom he may be well known. (This certificate must have special reference to the two years immediately preceding the application.)

(2) Certificate of age, baptismal or of birth (not required, if the candidate is already in permanent Government employ).

(3) Certificate that the application is in the candidate's hand-writing.

(4) Registration statement containing the following information:—

(a) Name in full.

(b) Father's name.

(c) Nationality or class, i.e., European, Anglo-Indian or Indian, of candidate; and, if Indian, caste or tribe.

(e) Place of birth.

(f) Present address.

(g) Examinations passed.

(h) Thumb mark of candidate, left hand, to be made in the presence of a responsible person who knows candidate.

(i) Signature and address of above-mentioned witness.

NOTE.—A candidate already in Government service should, in like manner, submit his application, through his immediate official superior to an Accountant-General (including Government Examiner of Railway Accounts and Examiner of Accounts, Lower Ganges Bridge Project), qualified to hold the particular examination, and should state whether he desires to be examined at the office of the Accountant-General concerned or at the College.

It will rest with the Accountant-General (including Government Examiner of Railway Accounts and Examiner of Accounts, Lower Ganges Bridge Project) to whom the candidate submits his application, to decide, on a consideration of the certificates submitted, whether the candidate should be allowed to appear for the examination, or whether his application should be rejected. The Accountant-General or the other officers referred to will then forward to the Principal, for registration, the names of the accepted candidates, together with their registration statements, which should be signed by the Accountant-General. The registration statements should be carefully preserved by the Principal. The names of these candidates should be entered in a statement showing their ages and their addresses, and also showing where each candidate is to be examined, whether at the College or at the office of the Accountant-General. This statement, together with the fees, should be transmitted to the Principal not later than 15 days after the dates fixed in paragraph 2 for the submission of applications of candidates.

3. Examination papers that are issued for examination need not be returned.

4. Each examination is complete in itself. A candidate who has failed in an examination, and presents himself for examination on a subsequent occasion, must undergo the full examination and furnish fresh fee and certificates.

5. If from any cause a candidate fails to appear for the examination, the fee paid will not be refunded.

6. It must be distinctly understood that the passing of this examination does not give any claim to an appointment and that, in making appointments, preference will be given to qualified persons who are already employed in the Department.

7. Passed candidates should apply, not to the Principal of the College, nor to the Comptroller-General but direct to the Accountant-General or Government Examiner of Railway Accounts in the province or railway under whom they may desire to be employed.

8. The Civil Engineering College acts solely as an examining body in reference to admission to the 4th grade of Accountants, Public Works Department.

9. Candidates for the 4th grade Accountantship examination, who are not Government servants and over 25 years of age, are allowed to appear at the examination of the Sibpur College centre only, but, even if successful, they are debarred from employment in the service of Government, and their names will be excluded from the list of passed candidates which is furnished to the Comptroller and Auditor General.

10. Candidates over 25 years of age should apply in writing to the Principal of the Civil Engineering College not later than 30 days previous to the examination; the application to be accompanied by the fee of rupees ten, and the Registration statement prescribed in rule 2 (4).

1. The examination is held annually at the Civil Engineering College, Sibpur, on the first Monday in June. The examination will be conducted, either at the College, or by an Accountant-General (including Government Examiner of Railway Accounts and Examiner of Accounts, Lower Ganges Bridge Project), in Bengal, Eastern Bengal and Assam and Burma only. The examination will be ipso facto vitiated, if it be not held (begun and completed) on the dates fixed; but the officer who will conduct the examination may make his own arrangements with the candidates in regard to the place and hour of examination.

Candidates will not be examined in any of the Calcutta offices

A candidate already in permanent Government employ* may be allowed to compete in the examination, even if he is more than 25 years of age, and may be appointed to an accountantship, if he passes it; but if he is not already in pensionable service, he will be eligible only for appointment to the non-pensionable establishment on State Railways.

*This term includes employment under Local Boards and Foreign bodies, if such is pensionable by the British Government.

2. The candidate should apply to an Accountant General not later than 30 days previous to the date fixed for the examination and obtain his consent to conduct the examination, if examination at the College is not convenient. The application must bear the address of the candidate, must be accompanied by a fee of Rs. 10 and the following certificates and registration form duly filled in, and must be forwarded by him not direct to the Principal, but through the Accountant-General.

Certificates may be submitted in original, or true copies attested by an officer of the Engineer or Accounts Branch, but none will be returned:—

(1) Certificate of good character signed by applicant's immediate official superior, or by the instructor under whom he has been educated, or by some other superior under whom

he may have been brought up or employed, or to whom he may be well known. (This certificate must have special reference to the two years immediately preceding the application.)

(2) Certificate of age, baptismal or of birth (not required, if the candidate is already in permanent Government employ).

(3) Certificate that the application is in the candidate's hand-writing.

(4) Registration statement containing the following information :—

(a) Name in full.

(b) Father's name.

(c) Nationality or class, i.e., European, Anglo-Indian or Indian, of candidate ; and, if Indian, caste or tribe.

(e) Place of birth

(f) Present address.

(g) Examinations passed.

(h) Thumb mark of candidate, left hand; to be made in the presence of a responsible person who knows candidate.

(k) Signature and address of above-mentioned witness.

NOTE.—A candidate already in Government service should, in like manner, submit his application, through his immediate official superior to an Accountant-General (including Government Examiner of Railway Accounts and Examiner of Accounts, Lower Ganges Bridge Project), qualified to hold the particular examination, and should state whether he desires to be examined at the office of the Accountant-General concerned or at the College

It will rest with the Accountant-General (including Government Examiner of Railway Accounts and Examiner of Accounts, Lower Ganges Bridge Project) to whom the candidate submits his application, to decide, on a consideration of the certificates submitted, whether the candidate should be allowed to appear for the examination, or whether his application should be rejected. The Accountant-General or the other officers referred to will then forward to the Principal, for registration, the names of the accepted candidates, together with their registration statements, which should be signed by the Accountant-General. The registration statements should be carefully preserved by the Principal. The names of these candidates should be entered in a statement showing their ages and their addresses, and also showing where each candidate is to be examined, whether at the College or at the office of the Accountant-General. This statement, together with the fees, should be transmitted to the Principal not later than 15 days after the dates fixed in paragraph 2 for the submission of applications of candidates.

3. Examination papers that are issued for examination need not be returned.

4. Each examination is complete in itself. A candidate who has failed in an examination, and presents himself for examination on a subsequent occasion, must undergo the full examination and furnish fresh fee and certificates.

5. If from any cause a candidate fails to appear for the examination, the fee paid will not be refunded.

6. It must be distinctly understood that the passing of this examination does not give any claim to an appointment and that, in making appointments, preference will be given to qualified persons who are already employed in the Department.

7. Passed candidates should apply, not to the Principal of the College, nor to the Comptroller-General but direct to the Accountant-General or Government Examiner of Railway Accounts in the province or railway under whom they may desire to be employed.

8. The Civil Engineering College acts solely as an examining body in reference to admission to the 4th grade of Accountants, Public Works Department.

9. Candidates for the 4th grade Accountantship examination, who are not Government servants and over 25 years of age, are allowed to appear at the examination of the Sibpur College centre only, but, even if successful, they are debarred from employment in the service of Government, and their names will be excluded from the list of passed candidates which is furnished to the Comptroller and Auditor General.

10. Candidates over 25 years of age should apply in writing to the Principal of the Civil Engineering College not later than 30 days previous to the examination ; the application to be accompanied by the fee of rupees ten, and the Registration statement prescribed in rule 2 (4).

ALMERIC FITZROY.

Rules referred to in the foregoing Order in Council.

RULES

For regulating the Procedure and Practice in cases brought before the High Court of Judicature at Fort William in Bengal under the Colonial Courts of Admiralty Act, 1890.

1. In the construction of these rules the following terms shall (if not inconsistent with the context or subject matter) have the respective meanings hereinafter assigned to them ; that is to say :—

" The Court " shall mean the High Court of Judicature at Fort William in Bengal.

" Judge " shall mean a Judge of the said Court.

" Registrar " shall mean the Registrar of the said Court, on its original side, or other officer authorised to perform the duties of such Registrar.

" Registry " shall mean the office of the Registrar.

" Marshal " shall mean the Marshal or his substitute or substitutes or other officer who may be appointed by the Chief Justice to execute the process of the Court.

" Attorney " shall mean any Attorney entitled to practise in the said Court, or the party himself if conducting his suit in person.

" Suit " shall mean any suit, action, or other proceeding instituted in the said Court in its jurisdiction under the Colonial Courts of Admiralty Act.

" Affidavit " shall, in addition to its ordinary meaning, include a statement in writing on solemn affirmation wherever by law a person may make a solemn affirmation instead of an oath.

2. These rules shall, if previously approved by His Majesty in Council, come into operation on a day to be fixed by the Court and shall apply to all suits instituted on and after that day.

3. A suit shall be instituted by a plaint drawn up, subscribed and verified according to the provisions of the Code of Civil Procedure, save that if the suit is in rem the defendants may (subject to such variation as the circumstances may require) be described as "the owners and parties interested in" the vessel or other property proceeded against instead of by name.

4. In suits in rem a warrant for the arrest of property may be issued at the instance either of the plaintiff or of the defendant at any time after the suit has been instituted, but no warrant of arrest shall be issued until an affidavit by the party or his agent has been filed, and the following provisions complied with:—

- (a) The affidavit shall state the name and description of the party at whose instance the warrant is to be issued, the nature of the claim or counter-claim, the name and nature of the property to be arrested, and that the claim or counter-claim has not been satisfied.
- (b) In a suit of wages or of possession the affidavit shall state the national character of the vessel proceeded against; and if against a foreign vessel, that notice of the institution of the suit has been given to the Consul of the State to which the vessel belongs, if there be one resident in Calcutta and a copy of the notice shall be annexed to the affidavit.
- (c) In a suit of bottomry the bottomry bond, and if in a foreign language also a notarial translation thereof, shall be produced for the inspection and perusal of the Registrar, and a copy of the bond, or of the translation thereof, certified to be correct, shall be annexed to the affidavit.
- (d) In a suit of distribution of Salvage the affidavit shall state the amount of Salvage money awarded, or agreed to be accepted, and the name, address and description of the party holding the same.

5. The Court or a Judge may in any case, if they or he thinks fit, allow the warrant to issue, although the affidavit in rule 4 mentioned may not contain all the required particulars, and in a suit of wages the Court or Judge may also waive the service of the notice, and in a suit of bottomry the production of the bond.

6. In suits in rem no service of writ or warrant shall be required when the attorney of the defendant waives service and undertakes in writing to appear and to give security or to pay money into Court in lieu of security.

7. An Attorney not entering appearance or giving security or paying money into Court in lieu of security in a suit in rem in pursuance of his written undertaking so to do shall be liable to attachment.

8. Every writ, warrant and process shall be served by the Marshal or his substitute. Every warrant shall be returned to the Registry within six days from the date thereof.

9. In suits in rem service of summons or warrant against ship, freight or cargo on board, is to be effected by nailing or affixing the original writ or warrant for a short time on the main mast or on the single mast of the vessel and by taking off the process, leaving a true copy of it nailed or affixed in its place.

10. If the cargo has been landed or transhipped, service of the writ or warrant to arrest the cargo and freight shall be effected by placing the writ of summons or warrant for a short time on the cargo, and by, on taking off the process, leaving a true copy upon it.

11. If the cargo be in the custody of a person who will not permit access to it, service of the writ or warrant may be made upon the custodian.

12. In a suit in rem any person not named in the writ may intervene and appear on filing an affidavit showing that he is interested in the property under arrest or in the fund in the Registry.

13. After the expiration of 12 days from the return of a warrant, if no appearance shall have been entered in the suit, the attorney for the plaintiff may cause the suit to be set down for hearing.

14. If when the suit comes before the Court, the Judge is satisfied that the plaintiff's claim is well founded, he may pronounce for the claim and may order the property to be sold with or without previous notice and the proceeds paid into the Registry or may make such order in the premises as he shall think just.

15. An attorney desiring to enter an appearance in any suit, shall file in the Registry a præcipe, a copy of which shall have been previously served on the adverse attorney.

16. The præcipe shall contain the name of the attorney and an address in Calcutta at which it shall be sufficient to leave all instruments and documents in the suit.

17. Where security is to be given in the Registry, it shall be given according to the rules and practice of the Court as to security in the case of an attachment before judgment in an ordinary Civil suit.

18. Property arrested by warrant shall only be released under the authority of an instrument issued by the Registrar, to be called a "release."

19. An attorney at whose instance any property has been arrested may, before an appearance has been entered, obtain the release thereof by filing a præcipe to withdraw the warrant.

20. An attorney may obtain the release of any property by paying into the Registry the sum in which the suit has been instituted.

21. Cargo arrested for the freight only, may be released by an order of a Judge in Chambers upon proof by affidavit of the value of the freight and by paying the amount of the freight into the Registry.

22. In a suit of salvage the value of the property under arrest shall be agreed to or proved by affidavit to the satisfaction of a Judge in Chambers before the property is released.

23. Where security shall have been given in the sum in which the suit has been instituted or such sum shall have been paid into the Registry, and if the suit be one of salvage the value of the property arrested shall have been proved to the satisfaction of a Judge in Chambers, an attorney shall be entitled to a release for the same, unless there be a Caveat against the release thereof outstanding in the "Caveat Release Book."

24. The release, when obtained, shall be left with a præcipe in the office of the Marshal by the attorney taking out the same, who shall also at the same time pay all costs, charges and expenses attending the care and custody of the property whilst under arrest, and the Marshal shall thereupon release the property.

25. An attorney in a suit desiring to prevent the release of any property under arrest, shall file in the Registry a præcipe, and thereupon a Caveat against the release of the property shall be entered in a book to be kept in the Registry called the "Caveat Release Book."

26. A party delaying the release of any property by the entry of a Caveat shall be liable to be condemned in costs and damages, unless he shall show, to the satisfaction of the Court or a Judge, good and sufficient reason for having so done.

27. A party desiring to prevent the arrest of any property may cause a Caveat against the issue of a warrant for the arrest thereof to be entered in the Registry.

28. For this purpose he shall cause to be filed in the Registry a notice, signed by himself or his attorney, undertaking to enter an appearance in any suit that may be instituted against the said property, and to give security in such suit in a sum not exceeding an amount to be stated in the notice, or to pay such sum into the Registry, and a Caveat against the issue of a warrant for the arrest of the property shall thereupon be entered in a book to be kept in the Registry called the "Caveat Warrant Book."

29. Before issuing a warrant for the arrest of the property, the Registrar shall ascertain whether or not any Caveat has been entered against the issue of a warrant for the arrest thereof.

30. An attorney instituting a suit against any property in respect of which a Caveat has been entered in the Caveat Warrant Book shall forthwith serve a copy of the plaint upon the party on whose behalf the Caveat has been entered or upon his attorney.

31. Within three days from the service of a copy of the plaint, the party on whose behalf the Caveat has been entered shall, if the sum in which the suit has been instituted does not exceed the amount for which he has undertaken, give security in such sum or pay the same into the Registry, or if it exceeds that amount give security in the sum in which the suit has been instituted or pay the same into the Registry.

32. After the expiration of twelve days from the service of a copy of the plaint, if the party on whose behalf the Caveat has been entered shall not have given security in such sum, or paid the same into the Registry, the plaintiff's attorney may proceed with the suit by default, and have it heard: Provided that the Court may on good cause shown and on such terms as to payment of costs as it may impose, extend the time for giving security or paying the money into the Registry.

33. If when the suit comes before the Court it is satisfied that the claim is well-founded it may pronounce for the amount which appears to be due, and may enforce the payment thereof by order and attachment against the party on whose behalf the Caveat has been entered, and by the arrest of the property if it then be or thereafter come within the jurisdiction of the Court.

34. The preceding rules shall not prevent an attorney from taking out a warrant for the arrest of any property, notwithstanding the entry of a Caveat in the "Caveat Warrant Book," but the party at whose instance any property in respect of which a Caveat is entered shall be arrested, shall be liable to be condemned in costs and damage, unless he shall show, to the satisfaction of the Court, good and sufficient reason for having so done.

35. Every sale under the decree of the Court shall, unless the Judge shall otherwise order, be made by the Marshal in like manner as a sale of moveable property in execution of a decree in an ordinary Civil suit.

36. The Marshal shall pay into Court the gross proceeds of sale of any property sold by him, and shall at the same time bring into the Registry the Account of Sale, with vouchers in support thereof, for taxation by the Taxing Officer of the Court, to whom the same shall be transmitted by the Registrar for that purpose.

37. Any person interested in the proceeds may be heard before the Taxing Officer on the taxation of the account of expenses and an objection to the taxation shall be heard in the same manner as an objection to the taxation of an attorney's bill of costs.

38. All money paid into Court shall be paid to the Registrar.

39. Money paid into Court shall not be paid out of Court, except in pursuance of an order of the Court or a Judge.

40. Security for latent demands shall not, unless the Judge shall otherwise order, be required on the payment of money out of Court.

41. An attorney desiring to prevent the payment of monies out of the Registry shall file a notice and thereupon a Caveat shall be entered in a book, to be kept in the Registry called the "Caveat Payment Book."

42. Applications may be made either in Court or to a Judge in Chambers.

43. Forms of præcipes required to be filed in the Registry or the Marshal's office may be obtained on application in the Registry. They may be varied or altered by a Judge at his discretion.

44. Every præcipe shall be signed either by the party or by his attorney.

45. If a præcipe be not properly filled up the Registrar or the Marshal, as the case may be, may refuse to receive the same or to act thereon.

46. A Caveat, whether against the issue of a warrant, the release of property, or the payment of money, out of the Registry, shall not remain in force for more than six months from the day of the date thereof.

47. A Caveat may be withdrawn by the party on whose behalf it has been entered or by his attorney; but the præcipe to lead the withdrawal thereof shall, save by permission of the Registrar, be signed by the person who signed the præcipe to lead the entry of the Caveat.

48. Application may be made to the Court on motion or to a Judge in Chambers, by summons to over-rule any Caveat.

49. The fees of Court and the fees to be allowed to the attorneys shall be those set out in the tables of fees sanctioned for proceedings under the Original Civil Jurisdiction of the High Court. The fees to be taken by the Marshal shall be those set forth in the Schedule hereto.

50. The forms used in the Admiralty Division of the Supreme Court in England under the rules of the Supreme Court, in 1883, shall be followed as nearly as the circumstances of each case will allow.

51. Where no other provision is made by these rules proceedings in suits brought in the Court in the exercise of its jurisdiction under the Colonial Courts of Admiralty Act, 1890, shall be regulated by the rules and practice of the Court in suits brought in it in the exercise of its Ordinary Original Civil Jurisdiction.

SPECIAL SUMMARY PROCEDURE.

52. The parties to any suit may have the same dealt with, heard and determined in accordance with the following special rules upon filing in the Registry a consent signed by the parties or their attorneys duly authorised in that behalf in the form given below.

53. After such consent has been filed application may be made by any party to the Judge in Chambers to appoint a day for the hearing, and to give directions.

54. There shall be no pleadings beyond a statement of claim verified by affidavit, but if there be a counter-claim notice thereof shall be given in writing before such consent as aforesaid is signed.

55. List of documents shall be exchanged and mutual inspection of documents given at or before a time appointed by the Judge on the hearing of the application aforesaid.

56. At the hearing of the application, aforesaid, unless it shall sufficiently appear from the statement of claim or otherwise in writing, the plaintiff shall specify the cause or causes of action in respect of which the suit is brought, and if practicable the amount actually claimed, and the defendant shall specify the grounds of defence on which he relies and in salvage claims, the plaintiff and defendant respectively shall at the same time, or within such time as the Judge shall direct, state the values of their property and, if required, by affidavit. In the case of a counter-claim the cause or causes of action and the claim therein and the grounds of defence thereto shall be similarly stated.

57. The Judge shall be at liberty to receive, call for, and act upon, such evidence, documentary or otherwise, whether legally admissible or not, as he may think fit.

58. If in any suit the sum awarded, or for which judgment is given, exceeds the sum, if any, tendered, the Judge may nevertheless exercise his discretion as to how and by whom the costs shall be borne.

59. There shall be no appeal from any order or judgment of the Judge except on a question of law, and then only by his leave.

60. In other respects the ordinary rules and practice shall apply so far as may be necessary. Notwithstanding anything in these special rules, the Judge may, if he thinks fit, make such orders as he might make under the ordinary rules and practice.

FREDERICK NOËL-PATON,
Director-General of Commercial Intelligence

"In 1900, the gross receipts from Railways were 28 crores only. For the year 1911-12 they will be close on 50 crores—nearly double. Intermediately, however, there have been heavy variations.

In 1906-07, the figures were	40	crores
„ 1907-08, „ „	42	„

the following years being 43 to 46, and this year about 50 crores.

"Now for the six years, April 1907 to April 1913, a sum of 88 crores was allotted for Railway expenditure under the Programme, of this sum 65½ crores were allotted to open lines and rolling stock, the amount earmarked for the latter being 30 crores, and the balance being for works such as doubling lines, strengthening bridges and permanent-way, so as to enable more and heavier trains to be run and generally to improve the carrying capacity of Railways.

"The provision of an average expenditure during the last six years of 6 crores per annum for works to facilitate traffic, and of 5 crores per annum for rolling stock to meet the growth of trade is, I hold, a very fair provision to make out of the funds available, and it must be recollected that considerable sums are also spent on Revenue account, both for works and rolling stock, with the same object.

"The difficulties now being experienced are due primarily to the unprecedented, and I think I may say unexpected, development of trade at the present time which has outstripped the capacity of the Railway and, incidentally, to other causes, and is only partly due to shortness of rolling stock.

"The reason why Railways are unable to carry the present abnormal traffic is because terminal facilities at Ports are inadequate, because single lines are now being taxed beyond their capacity, because a big fodder famine traffic has to be dealt with at the same time as a big export business, because Railways being short of coal owing to the unprecedented traffic which they now have to deal with are employing a large number of wagons on this traffic, because there has been a large rise in steamer freights for coal, thus diverting its carriage to Railways, and also to difficulties, I understand, about water for locomotives in the famine area where water is scarce.

"When congestion occurs all siding accommodation becomes fully occupied and trains have to be hung up en route and loaded wagons kept at stations, and the only course then to take is, to stop booking from up-country and so to restrict the amount which the Railway leading to the port will take from inland Railways for that destination.

"This is what is happening to-day. Loaded wagons are waiting at junctions, till the receiving Railway is able to take them, and inland Railways, like the Oudh and Rohilkhand Railway, are restricted to despatching 50 tons a day towards Bombay or, as happened last week, are absolutely debarred from despatching a single ton. This restriction on the Oudh and Rohilkhand Railway again reacts on the Bengal and North-Western Railway and obliges that line to restrict its bookings.

"The practical result is to lock up wagons and to prevent their being used to the best advantage and, to meet such traffic as is now offering, improved facilities to increase the number of trains and their weight, are of as much importance as additional wagons.

"Now as to what is being done to provide for the possibility of this abnormal traffic continuing next year or, at any rate, during a good portion of it, I may say that in Bombay the Port Trust have been busy the last three or more years in reclaiming land and arranging for the construction of very large warehouses and depôts, which will give to the port the additional terminal facilities which it so much requires.

"Further the Railway Board last year sanctioned the quadrupling of the Great Indian Peninsula line from Kalyan to Bombay, a very congested section, and the doubling of the line from Nagpur to Shegaon, and work is in progress. With these works completed, the Great Indian Peninsula will be in an immensely better position than it now is, to deal with abnormally heavy traffic like the present, and this again will enable the Oudh and Rohilkhand Railway and the Bengal and North-Western Railway to deal with their business, without being subject to the restricted booking from their lines that has to be enforced at present.

"The Port Trust in Calcutta no doubt are moving in the direction of increased terminal accommodation, to avoid the recurrence of the unfortunate stoppage of bookings to Howrah and the Docks which happened last year owing to the Dock godown being full of Java sugar, and the East Indian Railway are shortly putting forward proposals, costing some 35 lakhs, for the purpose of accelerating the handling of their coal traffic.

"Taking now the difficulties in the coal trade, I would explain that there are three exceptional factors at work, one being that Railways themselves are very short of coal, owing to the increased traffic they have to carry, the second being the rise in steamer freights which is causing more coal to be sent by Railways instead of by sea, and, thirdly, the increased demand by the public up-country for coal which seems to be growing rapidly.

"Railways must be kept working and have, therefore, the first claim on wagons for coal. It would be disastrous to the trade of the country if Railways not having collieries on their lines, had to cease working in order to enable the Bengal lines to provide wagons for general produce in full. This Railway coal traffic is absorbing more wagons than usual and is the cause of a diminished supply for the public.

"The second and third factors create a shortage of wagons owing to the long distance to which coal is now carried by rail. It is obvious that such longer journeys lock up a loaded wagon for a great many days and reduce its carrying capacity in any fixed time, to a lesser tonnage than would be the case if it had been employed on the shorter run to Calcutta.

"While I hold, therefore, that the situation is exceptional and that no immediate remedy is possible, it would be wise to take some immediate steps in light of the experience of the present time, to provide for the present pressure of traffic continuing during next year.

"In next year's programme a sum of 950 lakhs has been allotted for open line works and rolling stock, of which a sum of 475 lakhs has been set aside for the latter. This will provide—besides coaching stock.

6,100 goods wagons,

"The completion of works now in progress, to enable better use to be made of the existing rolling stock and the pushing on rapidly of further facilities for dealing with traffic, justify an increase in the amount of rolling stock to be ordered next year, and for which provision has been made in the programme.

"Arrangements are, therefore, in progress for the supply of 2,500 broad gauge wagons and 1,000 metre gauge wagons, in addition to the stock which I have referred to as being provided for in the programme.

"I feel confident that Railways are doing their best under very difficult conditions, the enormous growth in railway receipts each week being clear evidence of this. To confirm this, as soon as I can get away from Council, I propose to go to Bombay to consult with the Railways there. In addition both Members of the Railway Board have proceeded to the North-West with the same object.

"I think I have said enough to show that Government and the Railway Board have not been asleep, that they are fully alive to the present difficulties, that they have foreseen a great growth of Indian trade and have taken steps, within the financial limits imposed, to be ready for it, but that the unprecedentedly heavy trade of the present year and the other contingencies, which I have indicated, have exceeded all possible expectations."

The Hon'ble Mr. Mudholkar: "Sir, I beg to move the Resolution that this Council recommends to the Governor-General in Council (1) that the grant for railways be increased by twenty lakhs of rupees for taking the main line of the Shegam-Nagpur section of the Great Indian Peninsula Railway through Amraoti, and (2) that out of the total amount allotted for railway construction, fifty lakhs of rupees be earmarked for being applied towards the construction of the Akola-Basim Railway during the year 1912-1913.

"Sir, I have listened with great interest to the explanation of the programme of Railway work in the coming year given by Sir T. Wynne, and I acknowledge all the efforts which are being made by the Railway Board for facilitating Railway transport. Among the other things which he mentioned was the case of doubling the line between Shegam and Nagpur. In regard to that, there arises an important matter—a matter, which though one might say, it belongs to a particular locality has also got considerable importance both to the Province wherein the locality is situated and to the country generally. I refer, Sir, to the case of Amraoti.

“Amraoti is the head-quarters of Berar, which, though it has ceased since 1903 to be a separate Province, is among the most important and advanced territories under the administration of the Chief Commissioner of the Central Provinces. The resident population is not very large, being only about 41,000 for the town and Civil station, but the town possesses the largest cotton market of a tract which occupies the foremost place among the cotton producing areas of India. There are 18 cotton ginning and 15 cotton pressing factories and two oil extraction mills. The arrivals of cotton in the local market were last year 170,000 carts, weighing 132,000 bales of 400 lbs. each, and constituting about 1-19th of the cotton exports of the whole of India. Its general trade and commercial activity are of no small magnitude. One thousand passengers are daily booked outward, and the number of arrivals is about the same. The goods brought by railway come up in weight to about a million and a quarter maunds a year, while goods booked outward are slightly less. Seven trains have to be run daily each way between Amraoti and Badnera; and even this number does not meet all the wants of the public and afford them the convenience they desire. Between Bombay and Nagpur—a distance of 520 miles—the goods traffic of Amraoti has during the last quarter of a century, always occupied either the first or the second place after Bombay. Its position as a town of great commercial activity and an important trade centre can be traced back several generations. It has always been a matter of wonder and regret to the people of the District that, when the railway was first constructed 47 years ago, the main line was not taken through this town. The mistake of leaving it out of direct railway communication was discovered soon after, and in 1870 a branch line was constructed by the State. That line, however, could serve only as a temporary makeshift, and in the interests of the general public, of commerce and industry and of the State, the time has now come for revising the action taken 50 years ago and rectifying the serious mistake then committed.

“The existing arrangements involve great loss of time extending over forty minutes to three hours, inconvenience and even positive trouble to the travelling public, as also, pecuniary burden. The goods traffic has also to bear imposts and disabilities productive of heavier charges on the one hand and delay in transport on the other. There is a special toll levied on goods on the Amraoti line over and above the ordinary freight. The amount of this impost comes in the aggregate in a year to Rs. 36,000. The Amraoti traffic has, during the first thirty years after the opening of the line, yielded a net profit of 8·82 per cent. on the capital outlay of 4·5 lacs when many of the other lines were a source of loss to the State. During the last ten years, the net profit has, it is estimated, been above 12 per cent. After giving 3½ per cent. of net profits, the line has repaid the original outlay two and a half times over. The town and its passenger and goods traffic have thus a just claim upon the kind consideration and generosity of Government.

“Judging by the extraordinary progress which has taken place at other stations in Berar, situated on the main line, the expansion of the trade of Amraoti and the development of its industries have been prejudicially affected by its not being on the main line. The proper development of the fertile and progressive portion of Berar to the West, North and North-East of this town loudly demands the execution of the Amraoti-Ellichpur and Amraoti-Morsi-Sonnair projects. A distributing centre and the largest market for the towns and villages of North-East Berar, the projected light railway to Ellichpur and the Amraoti-Sonnair line will radiate from it and it will become a junction station within a short time. In a reply which the Hon'ble Sir T. Wynne gave to a question which I put in January 1911, he said that we had to bear in mind that the interests of Badnera would be affected by the proposals which were contained in my question.

“Now Sir, as regards Badnera, the passenger traffic of that place is 1/10th of that of Amraoti, and the goods traffic probably less than 1/10th. I submit that it would be unfair and highly prejudicial not only to an important town like Amraoti, but to several other places of no mean agricultural, industrial and commercial position to permit the insignificant traffic of Badnera to come in the way of an alignment beneficial alike to a large section of the public and to the State. What local traffic there exists at Badnera can, it is submitted, be more than adequately met by maintaining the existing branch line and running a train each way daily. It is doubtful if even the expenses of one train can be met by this traffic. But it is not necessary for granting relief to Amraoti to do any injustice to Badnera, if it is thought that the removal of that place from the main line would be a real hardship. I have explained in the interviews which Sir T. Wynne and the Members of the Railway Board have been kind enough to grant me that this can be done, and the only result of doing justice to Amraoti while keeping Badnera on the main line would be an addition of a few miles to the length of the line, the length varying from 5 to 8 miles according as one place or another is adopted which after all is not a very serious thing.

"The question which remains is the cost of this construction. About the cost, estimates vary greatly, and it is a matter in which the President of the Railway Board is a far greater authority than I can pretend to be.

"Assuming the calculation which was made by the Railway Board that it would involve an increase in expenditure of something like 20 lakhs, I would say that the expenditure of 20 lakhs would be more than amply repaid soon. What we have got to see is that there is a town of very great capacity—a town which has already a great passenger traffic of two thousand passengers daily, and a goods traffic next in importance to that of Bombay the hardship of which has to be taken into consideration; and, even if, for the time being, there is no sufficient return, it is an expenditure worth incurring.

"Sir, in this matter, my town has made a representation to the Government of India, and I was given, as I have already said, the advantage of a discussion with the Members of the Railway Board. I then pointed out to them that the request of the town was supported by the Commissioner of Berar and by the Head of the Local Government who is now in this Council, and both are authorities who possess intimate local knowledge, and their opinion was certainly deserving of consideration and will be given the weight that it is entitled to. They would not have supported the request of Amraoti, if there was anything wrong in the statements of fact on which that request was based. When persons holding their authority support a prayer, I think Sir, it is a matter which the Government should take into serious consideration.

"I was told, Sir, that the Railway Company objected to find 20 lakhs which they considered were required. Well I must confess I do not see where the Railway Company comes in here at all. The Amraoti line was constructed out of Berar funds, and now that Berar is handed over permanently to the Government of India, it belongs to that Government. As a matter of fact, the whole line, worked by the Great Indian Peninsula Railway, belongs to the State, and it is the Government which has to consider whether 20 lakhs are to be spent or are not to be spent by the State. When the State has to approach a matter of this kind it has to consider not only the question of pounds, shillings and pence, but also the question of granting relief to a large portion of the travelling public and to a large commercial centre. The developing capacity of the town has already been shown. It is a matter which would naturally weigh with the Government of India and not with a Company carrying on work only for its dividends. It is said that the Railway Company is entitled to a certain proportion of the profits. Now, Sir, the Great Indian Peninsula Railway Company according to the Contract, is only entitled to 1-20th portion of the net profits which remain after paying up all the working expenses, interests and everything and it is only to that that it is entitled. Nineteen-twentieths or 95 out of 100 belongs to the Indian Government and that Government, as representing the public, it is they who are entitled to have the final say in the matter. It is they who ought to decide as they represent the people. It is the Finance Department which must find money for this. Now I do not know that in a matter of this kind, where a demand is supported by local authorities of such great eminence, the Finance Department would not take that into consideration. It is true that that Department would wish to be satisfied in regard to a project which was put before them that it would be a paying one. But when the assurance comes from local authorities that it is bound in the end to be a remunerative one, I do not think that the Finance Department would put its spoke in the wheel.

"There is one other consideration which I would advance before the Council. During the last eight years that Berar has come under the administration of the Central Provinces, it has been held under a permanent tenure by the British Government, and all the revenue goes to the British Government. The average yield of the revenues in Berar has been 145 lakhs a year during this period. Out of that amount, 25 lakhs are paid to the Nizam and 50 lakhs are spent in the Province. About 3 lakhs may be allowed as a fair contribution required for paying towards the expenses of the Central machinery of the Provincial Government and the heads of Departments. There remains an amount of between 70 and 75 lakhs, of which 35 lakhs are received by the Government of India, and at least that amount or probably 37 lakhs are received by the Provincial Government. Now, in these circumstances, when there is a province which is not only self-supporting, but which leaves to the Imperial Government 35 lakhs a year, and which over and above its share of contribution to the up-keep of the Central Provincial authority pays to the Provincial Government—37 lakhs a year—it is undoubtedly a province which deserves some consideration; and I urge before the Council that its needs and requirements have to be taken into heed.

"These are my arguments so far as the taking of the main railway line to Amraoti is concerned.

"I then go next to the question of the Akola-Basim Railway. This project has been urged before the Government ever since the eighties. In reply to the question which I put to the President of the Railway Board 13 months ago, I was told that it stood high in the list of projects. The work on the line, however, has not yet been commenced. Since I gave notice of my Resolution, I was informed by the Hon'ble the President of the Railway Board that the work will be soon undertaken. Well, Sir, if that assurance is given in this Council, the second part of my Resolution can be regarded as accepted. If, in any case there is a disposition to postpone the work, I would bring to the notice of Government that this is a line, the importance of which has been admitted for more than a quarter of a century. It has a traffic which would have brought more than 6 per cent. or 7 per cent. to the Government all these years had a railway been constructed at the time it was asked for. Anybody who travels those 50 miles in the months of November to June would find 1,500 to 2,000 carts travelling along that track. It is one which would have amply repaid any railway company which had constructed a line over it. This is a project which also demands the consideration of Government and the attention of the Railway Board. With those words, Sir, I commend my proposals to the Government."

The Hon'ble Sir T. R. Wynne: "Sir, Badnera is a station between Bhuswal and Nagpur. The main line of the Great Indian Peninsula Railway was aligned so as to pass Badnera, some six miles from Amraoti, because of a range of hills in the vicinity which would have involved considerable expenditure to cross if the line had been taken straight through Amraoti. I have no information on the subject, but I surmise that some 40 years ago the trade of Amraoti was not of very great importance. The construction of the Branch line from Badnera to Amraoti seems to have well served its purpose judging by the Hon'ble Member's account of the present prosperity of the town. There can be no doubt that for goods traffic Amraoti at the present time has nothing to complain of. Goods can be despatched from there straight to Bombay just as well as if the town was on the main line. The whole justification therefore for adopting the Hon'ble Member's proposal rests in spending a large sum of money so that passengers to and from Amraoti might be saved the trouble of changing carriages at Badnera. Now, who is to provide this money, the amount involved being some 20 to 30 lakhs of rupees. Its expenditure is not likely to bring in any increased revenue. The Great Indian Peninsula Railway decline to agree to add to their capital, and I could not recommend that the Government of India should bear the cost, as I feel sure the Finance Department would object. Amraoti was suffering under some disadvantages which the Hon'ble Member explained to me when discussing his scheme. When the line was built as a Provincial line, it was allowed to make certain extra charges, tolls, etc. When the line was absorbed in the Great Indian Peninsula Railway undertaking, this was overlooked and the charge was retained. This has now been put right and the extra charges for the Amraoti Branch have been withdrawn. The Railway Board are also in communication with the Great Indian Peninsula Railway as to running a train between Amraoti and Badnera and back again and on to Bombay. Of course, the Hon'ble Member has pointed out that the Local Government strongly supported this, but from the Local Government's point of view they had no option but to support it; but I think it would be interesting to know what opinion the Local Government would have taken if supporting the proposal had involved expenditure from their own provincial revenues instead of from the revenues of the Government of India; so on the part of the Government of India I oppose this Resolution.

"With regard to the Akola-Basim line, this is a project well to the fore as it is a most important project connecting as it would the metre gauge system of the north of India with that of the south. At the present moment we have a strong survey party working it up, but the line must take its turn in being included in the programme. The Hon'ble Member has advanced many reasons why it should be made at once, but there are many other lines in India regarding which you could advance equally strong reasons. I said, in the answer which I gave last year, that it is a line that is very much to the fore, and so it is. With all these demands for improving open lines, it is impossible to give a date when this line will be taken in hand."

The Hon'ble Mr. Mudholkar: "Sir, I must confess that I am greatly disappointed at the line taken up by the Hon'ble the President of the Railway Board. It is said that the placing of Amraoti on a branch makes no difference to the goods traffic. But I must remind my Hon'ble friend that I did bring to his notice a very fresh instance of such a difference, and that this town, which has a cotton trade of its own constituting one-nineteenth part of the cotton export trade of the whole of India, was unable to get trucks for carrying its cotton to Bombay or Calcutta, and that for weeks and weeks the station-yard was full of the bales. I have also told him that what some of the people did then was to take the bales by bullock carts to Badnera, the station on the main line five miles away; and there they could get trucks. That is the disadvantage of being on a branch line, the existence of which can be seen even now if only one goes there. Then in regard to what I have said about the capabilities of the town and the probability of its commercial expansion, there is no reply forthcoming. It is true that there is the question of cost which it is said would be 35 lakhs or at least 20. Sir, I cannot see why such an amount would be wanted. But there is another reply--'you have constructed lines which for years have not yielded any dividend whatsoever; but which, on the contrary, have been a source of annual loss. Now here is a line which is pronounced by competent authorities to be one which would be a self-supporting and paying one, and still there is want of funds for it.' I must confess, Sir, it looks as though it rather depends upon the clamantcy with which one puts forward his case than on its own inherent strength whether it gets a proper hearing or not. What I say is that as there have been other cases in which there have been expenses incurred on the probability of a return, so also is the present case, which I urge is one deserving of consideration, because the people and the local authorities also say that the expenditure would obtain a return before long, and I would therefore press this proposition on the consideration of the Council."

The Resolution was put and rejected.

REGISTRATION, JAILS, LAW, POLICE, ETC.

The Hon'ble Sir Reginald Craddock: "Sir, in introducing to the Council the heads of the Financial Statement which appertain to my Department, I do not wish to take up their time with any comments in detail. These heads are Registration, Jails, Courts of Law, Police, Medical, and General Administration. Leaving aside the Medical Department for the moment, all these departments represent necessary and important services; but the greater part of their expenditure consists of establishments, and the work they do does not, as a rule, attract much attention as to the details of the expenditure. It is regarded as necessary and the details are not, as a rule, much criticised. There is a Resolution on the agenda regarding the Police and also upon General Administration, and upon both of these, I do not want at this stage to make any remarks.

"As to medical, the greater portion of the items included under this head belongs to the Department administered by my Hon'ble Colleague in charge of Education; and in connection with that portion we have heard a most comprehensive and able exposition from the Hon'ble Surgeon General Lukis as to the sanitary and research work that is being undertaken by the Government. I need not add anything to those remarks, but I would just refer to the fact that included in the statement* which Surgeon General Lukis put on the table is a reference to the Tropical School of Medicine in Calcutta which it is proposed to establish, and a sum of 5 lakhs has been included in the estimates for capital expenditure on this account. This is a very important departure, and I feel sure that the Council will accept it as most satisfactory. Another item to which I would like to refer is the grant of 1½ lakhs in aid of the Dufferin Fund, which is included in the estimates subject to the sanction of the Secretary of State; and I am sure that the Council will agree that the inclusion of a sum of this kind in aid of the great charity which was instituted by the Countess of Dufferin for bringing medical relief more within the reach of the women of India, is aid which commends itself to the Council, and meets with their approval."

CHARGES FOR SECRETARIATS.

The Hon'ble Mr. Subba Rao: "I beg to move, Sir, that the Council recommends to the Governor General in Council that the sum of rupees thirty-three lakhs and seven thousand under the head No. 18 (1) (iv) (Charges for the Secretariats) be reduced by 5 lakhs."

"It will be seen that under the head of general administration, the charges of the Government of India come up to quite as much as the charges of all the Provincial Governments put together, that is, to more than a crore of rupees. Of these, there are two large items. One is the Secretariats costing about 33 lakhs, and the other is offices of Accounts and Audit, nearly 38 lakhs.

"This Resolution deals with the former. I wish to inquire from the Hon'ble the Home Member whether any attempt is made to review the expenditure under this head. I submit that retrenchment is necessary, especially as there is an extra expenditure of 5 lakhs provided towards the cost of the new Delhi administration. We are told on high authority that the administration of India is the costliest in the world. We shall be gratified, Sir, if the cost of administering the new Capital does not entail an extra burden on the country. This can only be done by curtailing expenditure under other heads. It appears to me that there is room for effecting savings in this direction. It is curious that the Public Service Commission did not touch the Government of India Secretariats. The number of charges under the Government of India reserved to the members of the Indian Civil Service increased from 55 in 1892 to 85 in 1910. Yet there is not a single Indian employed in any of these offices. The Hon'ble the Finance Member announced last year that he had recently selected an Indian to the post of an Assistant Secretary under him, and he pointed out that it was the first time when an Indian held such an appointment. The Statutes on the subject do not debar Indians from holding appointments in the Secretariats. On the other hand, express power is given under the Statute of 1870 to the Government to appoint Indians, if they choose, to the Secretariats. The fact that the question of abolishing the Provincial Service as constituted at present and holding simultaneous examinations in India and England is under correspondence with the Secretary of State need not stand in the way of appointing Indians to the Secretariats.

"I submit, Sir, that the present exclusion should not be permitted to continue any longer. It is a slur on the large fund of statesmanship and ability available in the country. It is a slur also on the British Government that it cannot utilize this material in making the administration economical and popular. I take the liberty of commending to the Council the weighty words that fell from you, Sir, at the meeting of the Council held on the 25th January 1910. You said:—

"As a Finance Minister, it is permissible for me to say that, from the economic standpoint, it seems to be for consideration whether we might not make greater use than at present of the undoubted abilities of the educated Indian."

"I submit that strenuous efforts should be made to reduce expenditure under this head, so that the cost for the new Delhi administration might be met, if possible, out of the savings.

"With these words, Sir, I commend the resolution to the Council."

Sir Reginald Craddock : "Sir, I felt rather under a disadvantage in connection with this Resolution, as I was not able even to surmise what points exactly the Hon'ble Member would take. I did not suppose that it was possible that he was so hard-hearted as to suggest that we should turn adrift large numbers of our clerks, and therefore I was anxious to hear in what direction he could suggest economies of the kind indicated. Well, as a matter of fact (I do not know whether I am trespassing on the domain of the Finance Department, if I am, I will admit that I would rather that they undertook the defence) as far as I am able to find from the figures available to me at this moment; the cost of the Imperial Secretariat has shown no increase during the last few years, if we exclude from it the additional expenditure which was required last year in connection with the arrangements for the Delhi Durbar. The actuals for the year 1908-09 were Rs. 34,64,000, and the budget figures for the year 1912-13 are Rs. 33,07,000. Last year a promise was made that Departments would be overhauled with a view to seeing whether any reductions were possible; but in the Secretariat branch of the expenditure it was not found possible to make any material reductions. The Hon'ble Member has suggested that it would be possible to make an economy by the larger employment of Indians in Secretariat appointments. The larger employment of Indians in Secretariat appointments is a totally different question upon which I cannot very well enter at present for the reasons which the Hon'ble Member has himself indicated; but if he puts this forward as a means of securing the economy of 5 lakhs which his motion contemplates, I can only say that no such economy or anything like it can be obtained by the method that he suggests. At present the Secretariat appointments are in a great part limited to the Indian Civil Service by Statute, and if Indians belonging to the Indian Civil Service are appointed in Secretariat posts, there will be no saving at all. If officers of the Provincial Service should be appointed by making the appointments under the present system—listed appointments—even then the savings would be so small that they would be utterly insignificant by the side of the sum mentioned by the Hon'ble Member. There have been instances—one was quoted by the Hon'ble Member, and no doubt if I had more time, I could have found others—in which Indians have held Secretariat appointments; and in the Bengal Secretariat, there has recently been a small experiment in that direction, of attaching two members of the Provincial Service as Attachés to the Secretariat so that they may be able to learn the work. This constitutes therefore an experiment as to the possibility of employing such officers in such posts. Beyond that, of course, I am unable to say anything on the particular method that the Hon'ble Member suggests, by which economy may be obtained; but on behalf of the Government, I am obliged to oppose this measure, because it seems to me that the Hon'ble Mover has not in any way indicated how this very large economy which he suggests can be secured. On behalf of the Government, therefore, I oppose the Resolution."

The Hon'ble Mr. Subba Rao : "Sir, I quite admit that the figure under this head as stated by the Hon'ble the Home Member has remained substantially the same during the last few years. The figure for 1909-10 is Rs. 33,17,000 and the budget figure Rs. 33,07,000, nearly the same. The Hon'ble the Home Member says that if we employ Indians who have passed the Indian Civil Service Examination, there will be no savings at all. That is true. He says also that if members of the Provincial Service were appointed, the savings effected would be inconsiderable. He further says that there are Statutes that limit the appointments to those who pass the examination in England. I have pointed out that the Statute of 1870 expressly enables the Government to appoint Indians to any of the posts that are reserved to members of the Indian Civil Service. Therefore, there are ample powers given to the Government to appoint Indians, if they choose, to such places. As regards the savings by appointing Indians to such posts under the Statute of 1870, it is plain, from the correspondence on the subject, that the saving would be at least one-third of the amount paid to the members of the Indian Civil Service; so that if three lakhs is spent at present, there will be a distinct saving of one lakh out of those three lakhs. As far as I can see, no attempt is made to examine the question from this standpoint. The question has been examined simply whether the number of persons employed in the department could be reduced, and not whether the expenditure could be reduced by employing more Indians in the place of those who are now doing duty. I should have been satisfied, Sir, if the Hon'ble Home Member had promised that he would examine the question from this aspect and a real beginning made in the direction of appointing Indians to reserved places in the Secretariats. I submit, Sir, the question ought to be examined from this standpoint. It is an important question which affects the dignity and status of Indians and the well-being and the popularity of the British Government in this country, and I therefore press this Resolution on this Council."

The Resolution was put and rejected.

POST OFFICE ACCOUNTS AND AUDIT.

The Hon'ble Mr. Subba Rao : "Sir, the next Resolution that I have the honour to place before the Council is :

'That this Council recommends to the Governor General in Council that the sum of rupees thirty-eight lakhs and sixty-one thousand under the head of Office of Accounts and Audit be increased by rupees twenty-five thousand.'

"The Hon'ble the Home Member with regard to the last Resolution said that he did not understand what points I intended to raise by it. If the Hon'ble Member cared to inquire of me, I should have been very happy to place before him the necessary information.

"With regard to this Resolution, Sir, though the terms of the Resolution are wide, I have put it in this form to call attention only to one item under this head, and that is the savings proposed to be effected by dispensing with the services of clerks connected with the Post Office Savings Bank Audit. I have intimated this to the Hon'ble Sir James Meston, our able and good Finance Secretary. With his usual courtesy he has furnished me at my request with a statement on this subject. From this it appears that a saving of Rs. 89,280 is proposed to be effected by dispensing with the services of 196 clerks drawing an average pay of Rs. 38 a month. The pay of these clerks, according to this statement, ranges from Rs. 15 to Rs. 100 a month. As some improvements have been effected regarding the Savings Bank Audit, the services of these men have been found unnecessary, and so notice was given to them that their services would be dispensed with from July next. So far, Sir, no indication has been given as to the future of these men, whether they would be treated on the same footing as those in other departments where retrenchment is found necessary. A good number of these men are young men who have passed the general and special examinations qualifying for the department. It is rather hard for them, after putting in some years of good service under the Government, to turn now to new fields and start life afresh. I may mention further that they belong to the general list of the department and do any branch of work that may be assigned to them. It is by mere accident, Sir, that they now happen to be doing work in the Savings Bank Audit. It is hard, therefore, that the blow should fall on them alone without regard to the length of their service or the good work done by them.

"The Hon'ble the Finance Minister has well outlined in his speech the other day the policy of the Government in dealing with the Opium Department employes, whose services are not needed on account of retrenchment necessitated in that department. He said :

'What we are doing is, first, to get rid of the least efficient of the Opium employes on such pensions or gratuities as the rules permit; second, to transfer to other departments all who are fit for a new class of employment; and third, to encourage the retirement of the senior men by offering full pension to all those who are within five years of completing their qualifying service. On these lines we are dealing with every rank from the highest paid departmental officer down to the humble peon, and we hope to prevent any genuine hardship.'

"I thank the Hon'ble the Finance Minister for outlining this broad and liberal policy. Similarly is the policy laid down by the Government of India in reorganizing the Telegraph Department where retrenchment is proposed to be carried out by gradually absorbing those whose services are found unnecessary, and not by turning them adrift by notice to quit. I am sure the Hon'ble the Finance Minister will deal with these 196 clerks in the Postal Savings Bank Audit with the same generosity as he is dealing with the employes in the Opium Department, and as the Government has resolved to treat the employes in the Telegraph Department."

The Hon'ble Sir Guy Fleetwood Wilson: "Sir, the first idea that occurred to me on reading this Resolution was that the Hon'ble Mover had been induced merely by a general and very natural sympathy with the subordinate staff to endeavour to mitigate the hardships involved in a reduction of establishment. It has since struck me, however, that the Resolution may have had a more specific suggestion—a suggestion in which it would be possible for me to trace an indirect compliment to myself. On the 8th of March a year ago, it will be remembered that the Hon'ble Member moved a Resolution to the effect that the expenditure under the head of offices of Account and Audit be reduced by two lakhs. He referred to the amalgamation of the Civil and Public Works Accounts, which he thought should result in substantial savings; and in connection with the creation of a grade of Chief Accountants who ranked as gazetted officers he said: 'The question was whether the number of officers could not be reduced.' He did not then make any conditions as to the manner in which reductions should be carried out, and it fell to me, while expressing my desire to effect economies wherever possible, to enter a caution that it is necessary, in these cases, to deal tenderly with vested interests. It seems—and this is what I meant by the Resolution being an indirect compliment to myself—that the Hon'ble Member has borne in mind what I said; for no sooner had I effected a substantial economy in my department—an economy in accord with his previous Resolution—then he turns round and asks me, 'What about the staff?' I cannot object to the Hon'ble Member taking up the line I took myself last year, but I think I am entitled to raise some objections to the precise manner in which he has done so. The Hon'ble Member might, I think, have asked himself whether it was likely that I should disregard considerations on which I had myself laid some stress, and if he was uncertain, it would have been a very easy matter for him to ask me how the matter stood. I should have preferred him to take that course, and in moving a Resolution without ascertaining the facts of the case by means of a question or from the head of the department, I think he has departed a little from the consideration which he usually shows me.

"To enable the Council to come to a decision on this Resolution, it is necessary for me to explain briefly the general position. What we have found is that hitherto two sets of ledgers have been maintained for the private accounts of depositors in our Savings Banks. The Post Office maintains one set itself. That is only right and proper. It is no more than any bank would do. But secondly, and for the purposes of audit, another set has been maintained in the Accounts Office. We propose to substitute for this second-hand method, involving obviously a great deal of duplication and clerical work, a direct method of audit applied to the original books. By this simple change we save in the gross over a lakh of rupees. We shall require some inspecting staff, and the Post Office will have to employ a few more clerks, but even the net saving will probably be half a lakh. But the Hon'ble Member is concerned with the effect of these changes on the subordinate staff. I will tell him what we are doing. The men who cannot otherwise be provided for will of course get their compensation pensions or gratuities. That is all they are entitled to under the ordinary rules. But I have been making the best arrangements possible to retain them in the service. Some will go over to the Post Office. For others some posts will, I hope, be found in consequence of a redistribution of work between some of the Postal Accounts Offices which has to be made very shortly. Recruitment again has been stopped in all the Postal Accounts Offices since January, and this has been done with the object of giving the places to qualified men in the Savings Banks sections. A fair number also having earned their pension have intimated their willingness to retire.

"The Hon'ble Member will not expect me to give him exact figures at this stage, for the change will not take effect till July, and the details have not yet been fully worked out. I give him my assurance that no hardship will be caused which can be obviated, but I cannot go further than that. The real requirements which face us in half a dozen different directions are against extravagance. The interests of the tax-payer are against extravagance, and I cannot consent to the retention of unnecessary establishments or to delay in the introduction of reforms which, as in the present case, are clearly desirable."

The Hon'ble Mr. Subba Rao : "Sir, I am much obliged to the Hon'ble the Finance Member for the assurance he has given that in dealing with these clerks no hardship will be caused that can be avoided. He rather found fault with me for not having consulted him in the matter. I may assure the Hon'ble Member that I never intended to show him any disrespect. He will remember that last year I consulted him, but this year I thought it would be better that I should not intrude on his attention, as he was not in the best of health ; but I was in communication with the Hon'ble Sir James Meston, and I had a talk with him on the subject, and he promised to look into it. But as the question was of some public importance, and as I knew that the Finance Department would deal with these people generously and justly, I considered that a statement made by the Hon'ble the Finance Member in the Council would be valuable not only to the few individuals concerned, but also to the large number of Government servants who might any day find themselves in a similar predicament. I therefore thought it worth while to come to the Council with a Resolution on the subject. I hope the Hon'ble Member will take it from me that it was not out of any want of respect or regard for him that I did not consult him in this matter, but because I was in full communication with the Hon'ble Sir James Meston, who has been thoroughly sympathetic on the subject, and because I knew that the question, if brought forward, would elicit a public pronouncement for the guidance of all public servants. With these words I take the liberty of withdrawing the Resolution."

The Resolution was withdrawn.

POLICE.

The Hon'ble Mr. Gokhale : "Sir, I beg to move that this Council recommends to the Governor General in Council that the allotment to Police (India General) for next year be reduced by one lakh of rupees.

"On a reference to page 61 of the explanatory memorandum, the Council will see that the Imperial portion of police charges is shown there under three heads. One is India General, the second is Baluchistan and the third is North-West Frontier. Now, taking the budget and the revised figures for the current year, it will be seen that while the charges for Baluchistan and North-West Frontier have gone down, the revised figures being lower than the budget figures, the figure for India General has increased considerably. The explanatory paragraph appended to this head explains how the decreases against Baluchistan and North-West Frontier are only nominal ; and as I do not raise any question about those entries, I will say nothing more about them. The entry against India General, on the other hand, shows an increase of Rs. 36,000 in the revised estimate over the budget estimate, but there is not a word of explanation in the explanatory paragraph about that increase. Now, Sir, my first query is, why is there no explanation given, and what is the explanation of the increase ? Next, if the Council will look at the figures under this head for the last three years, namely, the accounts for 1910-11, the revised figures for 1911-12 and the budget figures for next year, it will be seen that there is a continuous increase in the charges. In the accounts of 1910-11, the charges were Rs. 8,45,000. Last year the budget estimate of the current year was taken at Rs. 8,96,000, whereas the revised figure now laid before us stands at Rs. 9,82,000 ; while in the budget for next year the sum that is entered is Rs. 9,87,000. Thus the sum budgetted for for next year is much larger than the actual for 1910-11. It is also much larger than that which was budgetted for last year, and is even slightly higher than the revised estimate for the current year. I should like to know why this item is showing an increase when the general policy of Government in regard to such charges is now one of retrenchment. Then, Sir, I find from a return which was laid the other day on the table in reply to a question which I put about retrenchment that in the expenditure which the Home Department controls there is an item of 2·83 lakhs on account of the Central Criminal Investigation Department. That is on the authority of the Hon'ble Mr. Wheeler, Acting Home Secretary, and the amount is given for the year 1910-1911. Now, if we turn to the actuals for 1910-1911, as given in this yellow book—the Finance and Revenue Accounts which is published annually—I find that the cost of the Central Criminal Investigation Department of the Government of India for 1910-1911 was 3·05 lakhs, and not 2·83 lakhs as shown in the return. I should like to have an explanation of this discrepancy; evidently something is left out in the return, or something is included in this yellow book which I cannot make out. I want, therefore, to know whether the Criminal Investigation Department charges of the Government of India are really 2·83 lakhs or 3·05 lakhs. Lastly, Sir,—and that is the principal point for which I have raised this discussion to-day,—I want to know how much of this sum represents the cost of the Government of India Criminal Investigation Department in Provinces which have got Criminal Investigation Departments of their own. I speak necessarily at a disadvantage in this matter, because outside the department the general public knows very little as to the constitution of the Criminal Investigation Department. But it is a matter of common knowledge that the Government of India Criminal Investigation Department maintains officers and men of its own—a small number—in the different Provinces, which have got their own Criminal Investigation Departments. And I should like to know how the spheres of work of the two are differentiated. Of course, so far as the territories directly under the Government of India are concerned, they would be for the Government of India Criminal Investigation Department. So also in regard to the Native States, which are in direct relations with the Government of India. Finally, the expenditure that is incurred in watching men in foreign countries would also come under the Government of India expenditure. So much I think is clear; but in addition to this, I have heard on good authority that the Government of India Criminal Investigation Department maintains a few officers and men of its own, and does espionage work on its own account, even in Provinces which have got their own full-fledged Criminal Investigation Departments, and I want to know why this is done. I find, Sir, that this has been a matter for repeated complaint on the part of several Local Governments, and the Decentralization Commission in its Report notes this complaint. This is what the Commission says:

'The Lieutenant-Governor of the United Provinces complained of encroachment on the Provincial sphere of administration by the Director of Criminal Intelligence, and we have received similar complaints in other Provinces as to what was regarded as the undesirable activity of this officer.'

"This year also, I gather from the newspapers that the Lieutenant-Governor of the United Provinces has complained in his Administration Report of constant friction between the Government of India Criminal Investigation Department and the Provincial Criminal Investigation Department. I should therefore like to know if such a duplication of machinery for espionage exists in the Provinces which have got their own Criminal Investigation Departments, and, if so, why the work is not altogether left to the Provincial Criminal Investigation Departments. Of course, as I have admitted, I speak more or less in the dock on this subject, because the outside public knows very little about this Department. The only thing that people are sure about is, that many of these Criminal Investigation Department men are a great nuisance to innocent people, and that they do their work not only without judgment, but often without a regard to appearances or decency. I therefore strongly urge that, if the Government of India maintain a Criminal Investigation Department of its own in the different Provinces, this duplication should be abolished, and whatever saving results from it should be effected."

The Hon'ble Sir Reginald Craddock: "Sir, the Hon'ble Mr. Gokhale in moving this Resolution has adopted the attitude of not desiring to criticise us unduly, but to obtain information on certain points on which he is not at present sufficiently informed to enable him to judge of the expenditure which is found in our Financial Statement. Now, in the first place, against

'India—General,' he has differentiated very rightly the expenditure which is definitely allotted to 'India—General' from the expenditure in Baluchistan and the North-West Frontier Province, but, as a matter of fact, out of the expenditure shown in 'India—General', all but a little over three lakhs relates to police expenditure in Coorg, and in certain minor administrations under the Foreign Department, and to Railway police on lines which run through Native States and have not been given to adjacent Provincial Governments to supervise. These items represent the normal expenditure on police in the country, and any increase that has taken place only in recent years has merely been in pursuance of the general policy of reform which we discussed little more than a week ago in this Council. So that, practically, the real item on which the Hon'ble Member desires to lay most stress is that item amounting to three lakhs and a little over, which represents the expenditure of the Criminal Investigation Department of the Central Government."

The Hon'ble Mr. Gokhale: "May I interrupt the Hon'ble Member? If the increase in the revised estimates over the budget estimates is in connexion with measures of police reform, why was not the necessary provision made in the budget estimates for the measures that were to be carried out?"

The Hon'ble Sir Reginald Craddock: "I was not referring to the increases in the revised over the budget, but I was referring, generally speaking, to the fact that increases have taken place of late years with regard to the reforms. With regard to the increase of the revised over the budget, additional expenditure was incurred, and the Hon'ble Member will, I am sure, recognise that that additional expenditure was quite properly incurred in connexion with the Royal visit, and this accounts for the increase of the revised under that head.

"Coming now, Sir, to the question of the three lakhs spent on the Imperial Criminal Investigation Department, the increase has not been so very large if we go back a few years. Nearly ten years ago, the expenditure on the old Thagi and Dacoiti Department averaged about two lakhs or a little over, and the increase that has taken place since then may be fully accounted for by the general development of communications by railways, telegraphs, roads and everything else which develops the energies of the criminal classes as well as of the other classes of the community. There was a time not long ago when we found people—we cannot find them now—who respected the boundaries of Administrations and States, and I recollect hearing of a case in which some dacoits, having unwittingly strayed over the boundary and having robbed some wayfarers, who were coming back to their homes, suddenly came upon the boundary marks, which showed that they had been carrying on their depredations inside British territory. Hurrying after the people they had robbed, with many apologies they handed back the goods they had taken from them and went away. Well, Sir, I must confess that conscientious dacoits of this kind are no longer to be found. We have got to recognise the unfortunate fact that criminals refuse to be restricted by the boundaries of Provinces or by the boundaries of States. You can rightly understand that, when things were much simpler and communication much less easy, each Local Government used to manage its own police, who were mainly concerned with their internal affairs, and it was only to a limited extent that they had to pursue criminals over the border. But, now, with the railways and telegraphs, it is absolutely necessary that there should be an organisation which can cope with crime that ramifies over the whole of the country; and the Police Commission, although they were not absolutely the originators of the system (for it had existed before), emphasised their recommendation on that point, and said that they were convinced of the necessity, on the part of the Government of India, to have a much more intimate knowledge of what was going on in every Province, and on the part of every Province to have a much more intimate knowledge of what was going on elsewhere, than at that time existed. In pursuance of this policy, it has been found necessary to employ officers attached to the Central Government whose duties may take them far afield and may keep them in various places at various times. But if we are to deal with cases of organized criminals, such as coiners, note-forgers, dealers in arms, and many others, not to mention the ordinary dacoits whose depredations extend over several Provinces, if we are to keep a hold on these people, and if Hon'ble Members wish to sleep quietly in their beds, we must have a central organisation of this kind. It is impossible of course that I should explain to the Council all details of the distribution of such an organisation—it would be quite impossible—for the whole essence of their success lies in the fact that their operations are not public. But I should like to emphasise the point that though political unrest and the political activities of late years have brought that aspect of their duties more prominently before the public, they must not forget the even more important duties that they perform in connection with the organisation of crimes and criminals, who are becoming cleverer every day. These should not be lost sight of, and I feel sure that the Council will agree with me, now that I have explained this matter, that the sum of three lakhs of rupees for a country of the size of India is really a very small sum to pay for an establishment which is so urgently required for dealing with serious crimes of this kind."

The Hon'ble Mr. Gokhale: "Sir, I would like to say just a word, and that is, that the Hon'ble Member has not told us why it is necessary to maintain a duplication of machinery for purposes of espionage in the Provinces which have their own Criminal Investigation Department for the work. He has also not told us what the Government of India has to say as regards the complaints which the Provincial Governments had been making on this subject. I quoted from the Decentralization Commission's Report an extract showing that the Lieutenant-Governor of the United Provinces complained even before the Commission that there was serious interference with the work of the Provincial Criminal Investigation Department by the Government of India Criminal Investigation Department; and this year again that Government has repeated that complaint. That being so, I think some explanation is necessary as to why such a system, which is complained of by Local Governments, should be maintained. However, as the Hon'ble Member the other day promised an inquiry into the whole question of the Criminal Investigation Department, I do not wish for the present to press my Resolution."

Accordingly the Resolution was withdrawn with the permission of the President.

The Council adjourned to Wednesday, the 13th March 1912.

No 523-B.—The following agreement made under section 42 of the Land Acquisition Act, I of 1894, is published for general information:—

Memorandum of agreement made this 11th day of November 1911 between the India General Navigation and Railway Company, Limited, a Company incorporated under the English Companies Acts having its principal place of business in India at 4, Fairlie Place in the town of Calcutta and the Rivers Steam Navigation Company, Limited, a Company incorporated under the English Companies Acts having its principal place of business in India at No 2, Clive Ghat Street in the town of Calcutta hereinafter called "The Companies" of the one part and the Secretary of State for India in Council and on his behalf the Secretary to the Government of Eastern Bengal and Assam hereinafter called the Secretary of State of the other part.

Whereas for the purpose of the construction of permanent sheds and godowns for the storage and safe custody of imported and exported goods, the Companies have applied to the Government of Eastern Bengal and Assam for the acquisition under the provisions of the Land Acquisition Act, 1894, of the piece or parcel of land containing 8 bighas 15 chitaks of land and one-storied and two-storied building, out-houses, yards, latrines, compound wall, pucca bund and pucca Ghatla, etc., situated in Mahalla Badamtali in the town of Dacca and more particularly described in the schedule hereto and delineated in the plan hereto annexed.

And whereas the said Government of Eastern Bengal and Assam being satisfied by an enquiry held under section 40 of the said Act that the proposed acquisition is needed for the aforesaid purpose and that the said work is likely to prove useful to the public, has consented to acquire on behalf of the Companies the piece or parcel of land hereinbefore described with the structures thereon.

And whereas the said Government of Eastern Bengal and Assam has required the Companies under the provisions of section 41 of the abovementioned Act to enter into the agreement with the Secretary of State hereinafter contained. Now this Indenture witnesseth that it is hereby agreed and declared as follows:—

1. On demand the Companies shall and will pay to the said Government of Eastern Bengal and Assam all and every compensation in respect of the said land and structures, etc., tendered, paid or awarded or to be tendered, paid or awarded by the Collector of Dacca under the Land Acquisition Act of 1894 or by the Court to which a reference under Part III of the said Act may be made or by the Court or Courts to which an appeal from the award of the said Court may be preferred and all costs, charges and expenses of the proceedings in the aforesaid Courts or otherwise incidental to the proposed acquisition or payable in respect thereof under the provisions of the said Act.
2. On demand made by the said Collector the obligations of the Companies under the last preceding clause not being thereby limited, the Companies shall and will deposit with the said Collector such sum or sums of money as in his discretion the said Collector may in anticipation estimate to be necessary for the purpose mentioned above.
3. On payment by the Companies of all demands under the foregoing first clause, or, in the discretion of the said Government of Eastern Bengal and Assam (on deposit by the Companies of all estimated amounts as provided in the second clause), but not before possession shall have been taken under the provisions of the above Act, the Secretary of State shall make over possession of the said land with structures, etc., to the Companies and shall execute and do all such acts and deeds as may be necessary and proper for effectually vesting the same in the Companies.

5. The erection of temporary sheds shall be completed within one year and completion of the full accommodation within three years from the date on which the possession of the said land shall have been given to the Companies.

6. Should the said sheds and godowns not be completed (and fully equipped in all respects ready for use) within the period stated in the last preceding clause or within such further period as in its discretion may be prescribed or allowed by the said Government of Eastern Bengal and Assam, or should the said land at any time thereafter cease for a period of twelve consecutive months, to be held and used, or ceased to be required for the purpose or purposes provided for in the foregoing fourth clause then and in any such case, the said Government may summarily re-enter upon and take possession of the said land and structures thereon and thereupon the interest of the Companies in the said land and structures shall absolutely cease and determine.

7. On taking such possession the said Government may sell or otherwise deal with the said land and structures as it may think proper. Should the said Government sell the said land and structures, the said Government after deducting the expenses incurred in connection with the said taking of possession and with such sale shall pay the proceeds to the Companies. Should the said Government, on taking possession, decide not to sell the land it shall repay to the Companies all sums received from the Companies in respect of all and every compensation as provided in the foregoing first clause (less the statutory allowance of 15 per cent.) but will not repay any sums paid and received on account of costs, charges and expenses.

DEPARTMENT OF REVENUE AND AGRICULTURE.

Season and Crop Prospects for the week ending Saturday, 27th April 1912. c

Burma.—The weather was hot. Showers are reported in several districts. Reaping of spring rice and cultivation of summer rice are progressing normally. Harvesting of tobacco and island crops is nearing completion. Standing crops are healthy. The condition of cattle is normal. The price of unhusked rice is much above normal, it is high and rising.

Assam.—Very heavy rain fell almost throughout the Province. Sowing of rice and jute has been retarded and standing crops have been damaged in places. The manufacture of tea is in progress. Prospects are generally good. Scarcity is reported in some Tippera and Kuki villages to the south of Hailakandi in Cachar. Cattle disease prevails in six districts. The average price of common rice has risen by 3 per cent as compared with that of the previous week.

Bengal.—Storms have been frequent and rainfall generally heavy. In the western districts the conditions for cultivation are favourable but in the eastern half of the Province excessive rain has damaged crops already sown and is preventing further sowings and weeding of jute and autumn rice. The prices of common rice continue to rise partly owing to heavy exports. The average retail price this week is 1·4 per cent higher than that of last week. Cattle disease is prevalent in the Presidency and Chittagong divisions.

Bihar and Orissa.—Light rain fell in all the districts of the Province except Gaya, Cuttack, Puri, Manbhum and Singhbhum. Preparation of lands for the sowing of next season's crops continues. Planting of sugarcane and threshing of spring crops are approaching completion. Sowing of paddy has commenced in some districts and that of jute is going on. Standing crops and vegetables are doing well. The price of common rice has risen in Gaya, the Sonthal Parganas and Cuttack and has fallen in Darbhanga, Puri, Hazaribagh and Palamau. Cattle disease is reported from Darbhanga, Bhagalpur, Angul, Sambalpur, Palamau and Manbhum. The supply of fodder and water is sufficient throughout the Province.

United Provinces.—Slight showers of rain have fallen throughout the most part of the Province. The spring harvest is now finished in the plains but threshing and winnowing continue. Extra crops are flourishing and sugarcane is doing well. Sporadic cattle disease is reported from some districts but the general condition of agricultural stock is good. The fodder and water-supply is sufficient. The general level of prices is stationary with a slight fall in the west.

Punjab.—The week was wet and cloudy and unfavourable for reaping and threshing. The condition of standing crops is good. Spring crops are being harvested and the outturn is average to good. Sowings of extra spring and autumn crops are proceeding. Cattle are generally healthy but fodder is still scarce. Prices remain high.

North-West Frontier Province.—The week was again wet and the weather generally cloudy. Standing crops are average but in Bannu and Dera Ismail Khan unirrigated crops are reported to be bad and below average. Harvesting of spring crops is proceeding and a normal outturn is generally expected. Sowings of extra spring and autumn crops are in progress. Water and fodder are generally sufficient. The condition of cattle is generally good. Prices are nearly stationary but show a slight tendency to rise in Dera Ismail Khan.

Jammu.—Slight rain fell during the week. Prices are fluctuating. Wheat sells from 9 to 16 and maize from 12 to 28 seers per rupee. The condition of standing crops is fair. Cattle disease of mild type prevails in the Udhampur and Riasi tahsils. Fodder is sufficient except in the Udhampur, Ramban, Riasi and Basohli tahsils.

Cattle are suffering for want of pasturage in parts of the Western States and in the Mewar and Jaipur Residencies. Pasturage and fodder also are scarce in Merwara. The water supply is deficient in many places in Kotah and is diminishing in the Hilly tracts of Mewar. Prices are high in most States and in Ajmer-Merwara, but are generally satisfactory.

Central India.—Slight showers fell in parts of Baghelkhand, Bundelkhand and Malwa. The weather is close and cloudy. Harvesting of spring crops is in progress. The outturn is above normal in Bundelkhand, fair in Bhopawar and parts of Indore and good elsewhere. Water is scarce in the Baghelkhand, Malwa and Bhopawar Agencies. Cattle disease is prevalent in parts of the Gwalior, Indore, Bhopal and Bhopawar Agencies. Mortality among cattle is increasing. Fodder is insufficient in the Gwalior, Indore and Bhopawar Agencies. Prices have fallen slightly in Gwalior, are normal in Bhopal and Baghelkhand, are fluctuating in parts of Indore and Bhopawar and are steady elsewhere. The opium crop is good.

RESERVE.

Sir Vithaldas Thackersey]

... if this consummation is reached, it would diminish the pressure upon us for the coinage of fresh rupees and simplify our exchange difficulties. These in their turn are weighty considerations and they are considerations which affect the practical outlook of the business man, who does not delude himself into the idea that the mere opening of the mints to gold would immediately provide a door for the export of superfluous currency in the form of sovereigns when exchange goes against us. I do not myself see any near prospects of that measure of assistance, but I readily admit that the coinage of gold, if it leads to a substantial and growing increase of the active circulation, will carry us some way in that direction, and consequently in the direction of greater security and of greater stability.

"I have now, as I undertook to do, laid before the Council the pros and cons of this important and attractive subject. As I explained, I can at the moment do no more; because the whole question, with the views of the Government of India upon it, awaits the final decision of the Secretary of State.

"If his decision should meet the wishes of my Hon'ble friend, no one will be more gratified than the present Finance Minister."

The Hon'ble Sir Vithaldas Thackersey: "My Lord, I must recognize that the reply of the Hon'ble Finance Member is very satisfactory; and I may say that he has said more in support, he has brought forward more cogent arguments in support, of opening the mints to the free coining of gold, than I was able to do in my opening speech. I am perfectly satisfied with his assurance that he is doing his best to get the sanction of the Secretary of State, and therefore, with Your Lordship's permission, I beg to withdraw my motion for the present."

The Hon'ble Sir Vithaldas Thackersey then moved the further Resolution:

* * * * * It is obvious, Gentlemen, that the influence of the money market on the movement of these very large sums must be considered, and large temporary and permanent investments of Indian balances of various kinds must affect, to a very considerable degree indeed, the rate of discount and the movement of the prices of securities. I only venture to bring that to your attention as showing how deeply you are all concerned in the prudent, judicious management of the finances of the India Office.

"I only bring that before you in order to prevent anybody in India saying "Ah! you have these enormous figures, this £160,000,000 but you are dealing with our figures." Yes, we are dealing with their figures in a sense, but we are dealing with British capital for the most part. However, that may be, we are dealing with it to the enormous material advantage of the population concerned."

"My Lord, the passage which I have quoted shows clearly that the India Office, in addition to its regular duties as a supervising agency, has undertaken the duties also of being a great banking house for financing the London money market. 160 million pounds, as Lord Morley says, is an enormous figure and it is not to be expected that those who control these investments will be easily persuaded to relax their hold on our money and leave it free to return to India.

I realise therefore that the Secretary of State may have to face a very strong opposition before he could consent to the proposition which my resolution embodies. But I am confident, knowing as we do now so much about Lord Crewe after his recent visit to India and his desire to do everything in his power to advance Indian interests, that he will stand up for India's right against such opposition.

"Lord Morley anticipated a natural objection from India that he was dealing with our figures, and went on to reply that he was dealing with British capital. This is surely a novel statement.

"The whole of our Gold Standard Reserve, amounting to nearly 18 million pounds, which is in England is the accumulation of our profits on the coinage of rupees. We have circulated amongst the people a rupee with an intrinsic value of only annas ten, and the balance of annas six is carried to the Gold Standard Reserve. Is this British capital? Then, again, we have about 2½ million pounds of our Paper Currency Reserve invested in England in addition to 5½ millions in gold earmarked for the Paper Currency. Is that British capital? Then, again, the large cash balances of the Secretary of State accumulated by the heavy sales of Council Bills and Telegraphic Transfers in excess of the requirements of the Home Treasury. Is that British capital? I fail to understand the cogency of this argument. If you say that because India raises loans for railways in England and therefore you should invest all these funds there, I would ask are the loans raised there on business principles and do those who buy our paper do it as a sort of investment for themselves or are they doing it to oblige us? Do Canada, Australia, South Africa and other British Colonies not raise loans in England? Do they maintain in England a financial house to finance, out of their own surplus money, the London market, or do they use their money for the development of their own country? The same argument applies to the loans raised by other foreign countries in the London market.

"My Lord, if our Gold Standard Reserve is kept in India in gold, we may be able in times of emergency to be of service to the London money market, while under the present policy, in time of emergency we may increase their difficulties by our necessity to withdraw the gold. A big money market like London will not be adversely affected by the gradual withdrawal of gold in normal times, but in times of trouble it may feel the pinch. With our gold in India, London will keep its necessary stock of gold in the usual way, and in times of trouble we can help them with our gold, which will be an extra reserve. So looking from the point of view of England itself, it is an advantage that our gold should remain in India. There is a further advantage if our Gold Reserve is in India. Government have tried to popularise currency notes and meet the wishes of the Commercial communities by making universal currency notes up to the value of Rupees 100. They have not been able to make all currency notes universal because of the difficulty of meeting the demand of coins on presentation. With a large quantity of our gold in India and distributed over all important centres in addition to the Currency Reserve, our power of successfully meeting any demand for coins will be enormously increased. As years pass and people get used more and more to gold coins, it may be possible to make all currency notes universal. It will be an enormous advantage to trade and commerce, and at the same time it will still further popularise paper currency and largely increase its circulation. Those requiring rupees for small business will get them by tendering gold coins just as they get small change and copper by representation of rupees. Time does not permit me to develop up this argument any further, but I hope I have been able to show that it is both to the advantage of India and England that our Gold Standard Reserve should be held in gold in India.

GOLD STANDARD RESERVE.

[22ND MARCH, 1912.] [Mr. Gokhale; Mr. Dadabhoy.]

The Hon'ble Mr. Gokhale: "My Lord, I wish to express my entire concurrence with my Hon'ble friend in all he has said. He has stated the case with that clearness and practical ability which always distinguish his utterances, and I do not think anything more need be added to what he has said. I heartily support his Resolution."

The Hon'ble Mr. Dadabhoy: "My Lord, I cordially support this Resolution. The Hon'ble Sir Vithaldas has very forcibly and lucidly pointed out the injustice that follows to India from the investment of, at a nominal rate of interest, the bulk of the gold of the Gold Standard Reserve, while money is scarce here and the Bank rate of interest upon demand loans reaches at times the high figure of 9 per cent. It is admitted that liquid capital is what is most needed in this country, and one of the principal reasons for the Government anxiety at the falling exchange 20 years ago was that it retarded the flow of sterling capital here. Now that sterling exchange has steadied and Government holds a large amount of cash in the Gold Standard Reserve, much larger than is necessary to ensure success to the currency measures, the request does not appear extravagant that a substantial part of the Reserve should be held in India. The greater portion of the Reserve now helps to ease the stringency of the London market, and obviously such operations are not required for the support of exchange. Why should not then effect be given to the proposal? The industrial and commercial interests of India are a matter of supreme concern to the Government. When therefore it lies in their power to promote them by relieving the stringency of the Indian money market by timely and temporary advances to the banks out of the superfluity of the Gold Standard Reserve, it is only reasonable to expect that Government will listen to our prayer. The Hon'ble mover has drawn our attention to some of the disagreeable features of the present situation, as also to the heavy odds against which we have to fight in inducing a change of policy in respect of the management of the Reserve. We all sincerely hope and trust Government will resist the adverse and interested influences, and do to India that justice which is her due."

"My Lord, the proposal does not involve any serious departure from that cautious policy which has secured to us a steady exchange. The scheme of which the Reserve is an integral part does not require the maintenance of a bigger reserve in London than £5,000,000. The highest figure suggested by experts was £10,000,000. In 1893, when the closure of the Indian mints to the free coinage of silver initiated a new policy of currency reform, the idea of a Gold Standard Reserve was not entertained by Government. In fact, as has been pointed out by many, we had a gold standard years after. The proposals which were ultimately adopted by Government after the failure of the currency legislation of June 1893 to make the rupee convertible at 1s. 4d., had been first made public in 1876 by Mr. A. M. Lindsay, as pointed out by the Hon'ble Finance Minister this morning. After the slump in the sterling value of the rupee laid on the shoulders of this Government extraordinarily heavy financial liabilities. Mr. Ottomar Haupt of Paris, following the recent precedent of Austria-Hungary, suggested in the Financial Times certain relief measures, the principal feature of which was the closure of the mints. Then came the expert Committees, but apparently all to no good purpose. In January 1893, however, the Madras Chamber of Commerce submitted to this Government for consideration Mr. Lindsay's scheme, whereby a gold standard could be adopted without a gold currency by the maintenance in London of a small reserve on the strength of which bills could be drawn upon India. This scheme was finally adopted by Government. It will be noted that in the original scheme a large reserve like the one we now have was not contemplated. The author, Mr. Lindsay, followed Ricardo both as regards the general plan and the amount of reserve. In Scotland and Ireland, where similar exchange difficulties had been experienced in the latter half of the eighteenth century and removed by arrangements with the Bank of England for the maintenance of gold funds, the reserve was never large. The Parliamentary Committee of 1801, consisting of Pitt, Fox, Foster and others, inquired into the whole question of the Irish currency, and recommended the creation of a small gold fund in London for the purpose of assuring fixity to exchange. Two members of the Indian Currency Committee, Lords Farrer and Welby, suggested in an Appendix to the Committee's Report the creation of a Gold Standard Reserve. But a large fund was not contemplated. So far as the legitimate functions of the Reserve were concerned, the consensus of expert opinion, no doubt, was that it should be held in London. But this does not militate against Sir Vithaldas's proposal. The Hon'ble mover does not propose that the whole of the Reserve should be transferred to India. His recommendation of transfer relates only to a substantial portion. And to this there could not be any reasonable objection. The present strength of the Reserve is already superfluous. We do not require such a large gold holding in London for the stability of the sterling exchange. The contingency is extremely unlikely that an adverse exchange would force the hands of the Secretary of State to exhaust the whole of a Reserve of five millions pounds sterling, and would compel this Government to send back the gold belonging to the Reserve transferred here from London according to the suggestion of Sir Vithaldas. Moreover, as a matter of fact, a substantial portion of the Reserve is now employed, as the Hon'ble Member has shown, in financing the London Banks. This is a purpose so obviously extraneous to the central object that the removal of that portion to India would not have the slightest influence, either present or prospective, upon sterling exchange. We do not object to Government putting as much spare cash as it can command to the Reserve. Our only grievance is, although built up at our cost, the country is deprived of the use of the Reserve in times of acute tightness."

The Hon'ble Sir Guy Fleetwood Wilson : " I congratulate my Hon'ble friend Sir Vithaldas on this second excursion into the regions of pure finance and on the vigour and lucidity with which he has handled a subject of no small intricacy and difficulty. He has, as I have already said, the advantage of me in the freedom with which he can speak on subjects upon which my position, and the position of the Government of India, in relation to the Secretary of State in Council, compels me to caution and even to silence. He must not therefore misjudge me if I cannot follow him over all the field which he has opened for us in the speech to which we have just listened. It would for example, be wholly out of place for me to discuss his views regarding the financial advisers of the Secretary of State, and the influence which they exercise on the disposition of our Indian resources. The responsibility of the Secretary of State in Council is one and undivided, and I at any rate cannot discuss his policy as if it were the policy of individuals. I can only undertake to place before the Secretary of State the expert financial opinion which the Hon'ble gentleman represents in India, and to ask that it receives due consideration along with the expert opinion which His Lordship obtains in England.

" Nor, even if I had the same freedom as my Hon'ble friend, would it be possible for me in the time at my disposal to examine with sufficient care the wide variety of topics over which he has ranged. Let me take, for example, the question of our high balances. I am quite at one with Sir Vithaldas in holding that high treasury balances, whether held in England or in India, are in ordinary circumstances wrong and wasteful.

" High balances in ordinary circumstances are an indication that we have borrowed more than is actually necessary. But it would require a somewhat detailed analysis to place the Council in a position to judge whether the recent history of our treasury balances justifies this rather severe condemnation. I should have to point out to what extent money has been accumulated in London to meet large payments for the redemption of railway debentures which shortly fall due; I should have to connect our opium windfall with the India Bills which I hope we are now on the eve of withdrawing; and I should no doubt have to add a number of other qualifications before I could answer with confidence the point which my Hon'ble friend has taken. Similarly with his arguments in favour of lending out our balances to banks in India; this is also a question to which there are two sides, and an examination of it would involve a lengthy and probably a somewhat dull dissertation on the metallic basis of credit in our Indian money market. To take only one other instance of the wide range of my friend's speech, I should have to go in some detail into the theory of the convertibility of our currency notes, if I were going to attempt an adequate reply to his suggestion for a wider dispersal of our gold resources as a reserve against our paper currency.

"I must, however, avoid these and other fascinating bye-paths into which the Hon'ble Member invites me to stray. And I must return to the literal phrasing of his motion, namely, that a substantial portion of the Gold Standard Reserve should be held in India. Now, I take it that, if Sir Vithaldas had his own way, he would transfer 10 or 15 millions sterling from London to Calcutta. It would come out in sovereigns, and we should then have to decide whether to keep it in sovereigns or to lend it out, as in London, to the banks and on approved short term securities. My Hon'ble friend has not said definitely which of these two courses he would follow; but from the general tenor of his arguments, I gather that he would not be averse to assisting the industry of India on reasonable terms. He has drawn attention, in the most reasonable and proper manner, to the great fluctuations in the rates of interest in this country, and to the prejudicial effect which these fluctuations must have on trade and business. He believes that a more liberal handling of the Government balances would steady the position; and I may, therefore, for the sake of argument, assume that he would not be unwilling to see our Gold Standard Reserve, or some part of it, lent out on approved security. Now, if this happened, it is quite possible that the market would be materially assisted for the moment; a fillip would be given to business; and for a time the severity of the bank rate might be mitigated. But let us see precisely what this would mean, and what would be the consequence when conditions changed. Our gold would be dissipated; it would have passed not only out of our own hands, but out of the hands of the larger banks, and would have flowed down the infinite lumber of small channels through which our currency trickles to the millions of producers in the country. So far all has gone well; but a bad year comes—and in India there is a tragic periodicity about bad years—and the whole situation changes; or there is a crisis in international finance, and the markets for our exports are temporarily closed. The occasion would thus present itself for the use of our gold. We should be asked to export it promptly and in large quantities to prevent a wholesale collapse of exchange. But where should we turn for it in response to this demand? We should have to realise our securities; we should have to call it in from the banks. The sovereign would already be, as it always is when the balance of trade is against us at a premium; it would have practically disappeared from circulation; and large quantities would be obtainable only with the greatest difficulty. By calling in our stock, we should at once raise the premium on gold, we should increase alarm and we should precipitate a panic. The very people on whom we were foreclosing would be those who could worst afford to meet our claims. Exchange would go down with a rush, and commercial disaster might follow. I can imagine no more calamitous position than to have our Gold Standard Reserve, or any substantial part of it, out of our own hands in this country at a time of real difficulty.

[Sir Guy Fleetwood Wilson: Sir Vithaldas D. [22ND MARCH, 1912.] Thackersey.]

"But let us take the other alternative. Let us assume that we are able to resist the desire of the market for our gold, and to maintain it in fluid form. We should then have large quantities of sovereigns shut up in the vaults of Fort William, dormant and inaccessible. In this condition they would remain until required for export in support of exchange. Now, what would happen when they are so required? Presumably, the demands for bills on London would be greater than the supply, and our import merchants would come to us and buy our sovereigns, in order to send them to London in the absence of bills at a reasonable price. They would obtain sovereigns from us; they would then have to arrange for freight; they would have to insure the consignments; and they would have to bear the burden of interest in the interval between the purchase of the gold and its delivery to their creditors in Europe. They would thus pay all expenses of freight, insurance and interest, besides the risk of loss or delay in transit. Would your import merchant prefer this process to the alternative process of coming to our Comptroller General and buying a telegraphic transfer on London, which could be cashed with absolute security by his creditor next day?

"I think there is little doubt which of these two alternatives the ordinary business man would prefer. It would almost certainly be the latter; and the latter is precisely what the Government of India offer to the mercantile public under existing arrangements, while the former is what my friend Sir Vithaldas would substitute for it. It seems to me that there is no real comparison between the inconvenience on the one hand of having gold locked up here, six thousand miles from the point where it is wanted and where it can be effectively employed, and the convenience on the other hand of holding a large quantity of gold or securities which presumably closely approach gold in their stability, which we are in a position to sell by cable the moment that it is wanted and at the place where it is going to be used.

"Sir Vithaldas has supported his arguments by a number of subsidiary considerations in favour of moving our gold from London to India. He points out, for example, that other great countries keep large reserves of liquid gold in their strongholds. I am not quite clear of the extent to which he is thinking of gold which is stored by Government to provide for the encashment of convertible notes, and I think it will be found that, in the countries which he mentions, a considerable proportion of their holdings is necessitated by the size of their paper currency. He also urges that our gold would be useless to us in London in the event of war or panic. If by panic he means an acute financial crisis, I can only repeat what I have said before in another connection, that the Secretary of State has deliberately accepted full responsibility for making the reserve available when required for the purpose for which it was created. In the event of war, I do not see how our gold would be in any degree more useful in India than in London. If the trouble were in this country, we should have all the anxiety and expense of protecting it. If the war were in Europe, it might be perfectly impossible to ship gold from India to the European markets, and it would remain useless in our hands. Finally, Sir Vithaldas has alluded to the feeling that the gold reserve is our own money and that, as a matter of national pride, it should be in our own country as a visible possession. I know that such a sentiment exists, and I am far from despising sentiment even in financial matters; but I cannot seriously think that it should be weighed for a moment against the practical convenience and value of holding our gold in the place where it can best serve the interests of India. It is for this reason that I much regret that I am unable to accept the Hon'ble Member's motion."

The Hon'ble Sir Vithaldas D. Thackersey: "My Lord, I very much regret that Government are not willing to accept my Resolution. I shall not long detain the Council in reply to the several arguments advanced by the Hon'ble Finance Member, because the impression left on my mind at the end of his speech was, that the arguments he advanced against the proposition were so weak that I need not go into the details of them. I only therefore touch two or three points in his speech. He said that the policy that was followed in London was the policy of the Secretary of State in Council and not of individual members. I did not at all say in my speech that it was not so. The policy, of course, is the Secretary of State's policy; but what I pointed out was that the Secretary of State was advised by people who had also other than India's interests to guard. The statement* which the Hon'ble Member has placed before us in reply to my Hon'ble friend Mr. Armstrong's question clearly confirms my contention. It shows that over 10½ million pounds sterling have been lent to approvers, not necessarily joint stock banks, and that about 3½ millions have been deposited with approved banks. On 3 out of the 6 approved banks as mentioned in the statement the Secretary of State's advisers sit as Directors or as Governors. I leave it to the Council to judge whether a man can act in two positions very justifiably. If we put the managers of the Bank of Bombay and the Bank of Bengal and the Bank of Madras on Your Lordship's Council, I am quite sure they will give strong reasons why our money should be brought here, and they will point out to the Hon'ble the Finance Member excellent securities on which those funds can be lent. I have not the slightest doubt that our money in England is being lent on good securities; but I say that we can lend money also on good securities in India with great advantage to ourselves. I will just read a few lines, from a report published in the Times of India, of an incident during an instructive discussion of Indian commerce following a well supported dinner of the London Chamber of Commerce at the Trocadero in February last, which shows how things move:

GOLD STANDARD RESERVE.

'Soon after we had a somewhat amusing reminder that, in monetary matters at least, the sense of reciprocal obligation to India is not so strong as it might be on the part of those who represent city banking interests on the India Council. Giving as a reason for the inadequacy of the flow of British capital into India, the existence even now of the old prejudices having their origin in the instability of the rupee, Sir Felix Schuster, member of the Secretary of State's Council, said that the duty of Government was to support the policy their predecessors laid down by building up their currency reserves in times of prosperity, so that exchange might stand severe tests such as that through which it passed two or three years ago. Someone (I think it was Mr. G. W. R. Forrest) called out, "yes, build up the gold reserve in India." The shaft went home, and Sir Felix, thrown off his habitual guard, made a remark he would much rather have left unsaid, as was clear from the incompleteness of his sentence: "Not only in India," he retorted, "but on our side as well; we can do with it here, and I sometimes wonder" (he left the sentence incomplete).'

"My Lord, we say we can do with it here to the greater advantage of India.

"Then the second point in the Hon'ble Member's speech was that if we brought all our gold to India, when the balance of trade went against us, we should have to export gold, and that would be a great inconvenience to merchants. I admit the cogency of the argument so far, but, during the last 11 or 12 years, how many times have we had to send gold to England? It was only in one year, in 1908, and every other year we have been accumulating our gold standard reserve. Only once in 11 or 12 years if there is any occasion for merchants to export gold, that cannot be called any great inconvenience compared with the great benefit which India would derive with a gold reserve here. Then he said that merchants would prefer telegraphic transfers instead of exporting gold. I did not propose that we should export gold always. In the usual way the Secretary of State would draw on India his Council Bills, and the money necessary to be sent out to England for home charges would be drawn in the usual way, and for that purpose you have not to export gold. It is only when the balance of trade goes against us that the occasion will arise, and that is only rarely, say once in 15 or 20 years. Again we are told that the Secretary of State has taken full responsibility for the present policy. Well, that does not satisfy us. Whoever may take the full responsibility, the everyday loss is ours, and we are not quite satisfied by simply an assertion that those who manage our currency and our reserve, assure us that in time of war or emergency our gold will be made available. We say we want it here, it is our gold, and it ought to remain here. I have already pointed out in my speech that all civilized countries in the world have gold reserves, and I will give you a few figures: United States treasury 233 million pounds, Russia 130 million pounds, France 131 million pounds, Australia 55 million pounds, Bank of England 31 million pounds, and so on. The real reason is that the gold reserve in the London Bank is so low that they cannot afford to send our gold here. We must recognise this; it is no use arguing against facts. The London gold reserve is only 31 million pounds, and the London financiers fear that they might be inconvenienced. My personal opinion is that they won't feel the pinch, if we withdraw our gold gradually. At the same time they will feel the pinch more if we have to withdraw our gold in times of emergency, and it is for England's sake also that our gold should be here. At least twice or thrice, the Bank of England had to go to France for gold. Well, I think it would increase the prestige of Great Britain to come to India for gold rather than to go to France or any other foreign country for gold in times of emergency. My Lord, although Government may not be able to accept this proposition as a whole, I hope the Government of India will take seriously into consideration the position in which the industries are placed in India in the busy season owing to the rise in the rate of interest. I have already said that the Bank rate goes up to 8 or 9 per cent. I will read to you a paragraph from the speech of the Hon'ble Sir James Begg, who is the senior banker in India, and whose excellent work has been recognised by Government only the other day by honouring him. He said :

' You also know that as regularly as one season succeeds another, Bank rate rises from the minimum in the monsoon months to its maximum in the winter and spring months, and that the maximum may be anything from seven to nine per cent., nine per cent. being the highest point for a good many years past. It is inevitable under conditions in India that this regular waxing and waning of Bank rate should occur, but is it inevitable that the movement should be so extreme and especially that the rate should be so constantly forced to such high levels? I think not. The greatest factor in forcing up the rate is the great volume of money that is taken off the market by Government and locked away in the Treasury vaults. That money is released in bulk only through payments for Council bills, that is, after the public have either voluntarily sold their produce for export or been obliged to part with it under the pressure of a high Bank rate as frequently happens."

" I hope the Government of India will seriously consider this position, and devise some policy by which the Bank rate may not go so high. Even our high cash balance in India might be utilized for the purpose, but I think the rate of interest in India ought not to rise above $5\frac{1}{2}$ or 6 per cent.

" My Lord, I think the question is of such great importance that I hope the Council will accept my Resolution."

INDIAN COMPANIES BILL.

The Hon'ble Mr. Clark: "Sir, I move for leave to introduce a Bill to consolidate and amend the law relating to trading companies and other associations.

"Government, Sir, hold that the time is now ripe for a further revision and consolidation of company legislation in this country. The existing law on the subject in India is contained in the Indian Companies Act of 1882, which was modelled on the English law in force in 1877. Since 1882, the Indian law has been added to by four amending Acts dealing with matters of relatively minor importance, while the substantial additions which have been made to the English law by a long series of Acts passed between 1879 and 1908 have not, with the exception of the matters contained in the four amending measures to which I have just referred, found a place in the Indian law. In England, since 1882, there have been no less than thirteen amending Acts, culminating in 1907 with a comprehensive amending Act based on the recommendations of a strong Committee among the members of which were some of the most eminent company lawyers of the day. This Act was followed by the Companies Consolidation Act of 1908, which consolidated the English law into a convenient code. The differences which now consequently exist between the Indian and the English law, in themselves form strong ground for legislation. Ever since we have had any company legislation in India, the advantages of having our company law as similar as possible to the English law has been recognised by the Indian Legislature. The Indian Act of 1857 was a reproduction of the English Joint Stock Companies Act of 19 and 20 Victoria. The Indian Act of 1882 copied the English Act of 1862; and the Indian Act of 1882 (the present Act) followed, as I have already said, the additions made in the English law up to 1877. The advantages of such assimilation are evident. The English law has been studied and commented on comprehensively, and in adopting it, we also inherit the wisdom of the many learned persons who have devoted their time to its exposition: and when it is necessary to carry a case up to the Privy Council, it is manifestly convenient that the law which is to be argued in English should be substantially the same as the English law. Assimilation of the law also tends to produce a feeling of greater security in the breast of the British investor whose capital we wish to attract to this country. As the Board of Trade pointed out in a Memorandum on the Company Laws of the Empire laid before the Imperial Conference of 1907, assimilation "would tend to increase the confidence of the home investor in companies registered in India and in the Colonies, and the result might well be a greater willingness on the part of capital from home to flow into Indian and Colonial undertakings and enterprises.

"Since 1882, there has been a great increase in the number of joint stock companies in India. In 1885-86, there were only 757 companies at work with a paid up capital of 21 crores. In 1910-11, there were 2,251 companies with a paid up capital of 64 crores; in other words, the number of companies and their paid up capital has trebled since the legislation of 1882 came into force. I think it will be generally recognised that with this great increase in business, with the evidence before us of the frequent amendments in company legislation which it has been found necessary to make in England, Government cannot be held to have been premature in having taken up the amendment of the company law of India.

"From what I have said, Hon'ble Members will have anticipated that the Bill follows very closely the provisions of the English Act of 1908. We have not only adopted its principles but have aimed at reproducing as far as possible its language and arrangement. We have, however, preserved the provisions of the Indian Act in certain instances where the law of this country can claim to be more advanced than its older sister, and we have added two entirely new provisions of some importance to which I shall presently refer.

"The Government of India took up the matter in 1909 and a circular letter was addressed to all Local Governments and Administrations asking for their opinions as to the suitability of the provisions of the English Act for adoption in India. The proposal to legislate has met with practically unanimous support from the authorities consulted. Such criticisms as have been made have been mostly in the direction of suggesting that the English law does not go far enough and that Government should take greater powers of control. A somewhat different point of view has been put forward by the Bengal Chamber of Commerce, and it is one which deserves careful consideration. The Committee of the Bengal Chamber suggest that it is questionable whether such an elaborate procedure as is prescribed by the Act of 1908 is necessary or desirable in India, and they thought that in the Indian Bill it should be possible to omit some of the details prescribed in the English Act. The Committee, however, preferred not to make any definite proposals as to matters which might be omitted until they had seen the actual Bill. The Government of India recognise the importance of the point, but it has seemed better to leave the question over until they have received the detailed suggestions of the Chamber after they have had the opportunity of fully examining the Bill.

"I now turn to the other class of criticism, namely, that the English law does not go far enough in the direction of State control. Suggestions of very varying scope have been made to us, some of which go so far as almost to require Government to undertake that a company should pay satisfactory dividends to its shareholders. As I said in connection with the Assurance measures which have just passed through this Council, I fully recognise that in India the State must be prepared to accept heavier responsibilities than in western countries, but I hope I shall carry with me the approval of Council when I say that in such legislation as this, the ideal to be aimed at is the minimum of State interference compatible with the due protection of the investor. We have included two, and only two, provisions working in this direction which do not appear in the British Act. Two may seem a small number, but they are both provisions of some considerable importance.

• COMPANIES.

"Clause 109 of the English Act provides that the Board of Trade may appoint one or more competent inspectors to investigate the affairs of any company on the application of a certain proportion of the shareholders. In the Indian Bill we propose to go further, and to provide also that where the Registrar, on perusal of any document which the company is required to submit to him, considers that any further information or explanation is necessary, and where, after calling on the company to submit such information, he either does not receive it or is of opinion that an unsatisfactory state of affairs is disclosed, he shall report the circumstances of the case in writing to the Local Government, and it shall be open to the Local Government to appoint an inspector. By making this provision for an inspector to be appointed without any action being taken on the part of the shareholders, we hope to some extent to guard against abuses creeping in through apathy and lack of initiative on the part of the shareholders, who in India cannot be accepted to be so alive to their own interests as in an European country.

"The other matter is in connection with auditors. In sections 112 and 113 of the English Act, the appointment, remuneration, powers and duties of auditors are fully provided for, but nothing is said as to the qualifications of the men who are to act as auditors. In India the question of their qualifications is one of supreme importance. The Bombay Chamber of Commerce referred to it in their letter on the subject of this legislation, and I had the further advantage of discussing it with their Committee, as the Hon'ble Sir Vithaldas Thackersey will remember, when I was last in Bombay. What we propose is, in adopting the English provisions, also to provide in the Bill that no person, other than a person holding a certificate from a Local Government entitling him in that behalf, shall be appointed auditor of a company. In this country it would clearly be going too far to lay down that no one should act as an auditor who is not a Chartered or Incorporated Accountant. Such a provision would mean an undue restriction on business. But we hope by requiring such certification by a Local Government to establish a standard which will at least facilitate the elimination of the incompetent by the refusal or the cancellation of the certificate. I am also to say that the Government have under consideration a scheme for starting schools of accountancy for the training of auditors at suitable centres under the control of Local Governments and for the establishment of examinations in connection with the proposed Government certificate. My Hon'ble Friend the Member for Education is interesting himself in this matter, and we hope that a scheme on these lines will not only produce in time a sufficiency of thoroughly qualified accountants to meet the increasing demands for such work in India, but will also result in opening up a lucrative field of employment for Indians who should be well adapted for the work but at present enjoy few facilities to become qualified.

"These are the only two matters in which Government as at present advised propose to go further under this head than the English law, but I ought to point out that by the mere adoption of that law as it stands, we are greatly improving the present safeguards, especially in the direction of affording shareholders closer control over companies in the earlier stages of their formation. I will briefly mention the more important of these provisions. The first is the 'statutory meeting' which every company limited by shares and registered after the commencement of the Act is required to hold within a period of six months from the date on which it is entitled to commence business. At least ten days before this meeting is held, the Directors have to forward to every member of the company a report called the 'statutory report', which must be certified to by not less than two Directors of the company and must contain certain specified items of information regarding the position and constitution of the company. These provisions thus compel the Directors to let the shareholders know the exact financial position in the early stages of the company's history. The provisions in regard to the appointment and qualifications of Directors have been made much more stringent, and clauses dealing with the prospectus of a company require much fuller information to be given than heretofore including among other items the names of Directors and their interest in the company, the estimated amount of preliminary expenses, the amount paid or intended to be paid to the promoter, and the minimum subscription on which Directors may proceed to allotment. Other clauses prescribe restrictions on proceeding to allotment and on the commencement of business. I have already referred to the subject of auditors, whose appointment, remuneration, powers, duties and liabilities are now very strictly prescribed, and I may also mention another provision by which all companies situated outside British India, but operating therein, are required to make certain information available and to have a recognised agent in India to accept service of process or any notice which may have to be served on the company.

[Mr. Clark.]

"While, generally speaking, we have followed the English law with an almost slavish exactitude, there are one or two points on which it has been necessary to depart from it. The most important of these is in regard to the winding up of companies by order of the Court. We have decided to retain in the main the procedure of the existing Indian law in place of the provisions introduced into the British law by the Companies Winding-up Act of 1890. In the United Kingdom, important functions are exercised by the Board of Trade, by Official Receivers and by Committees of Inspection; but Government consider that it would be premature to attempt to create a corresponding machinery in this country. They therefore have left the discretion in the matter of winding-up in the hands of the Court. They have also retained the provisions of the existing Indian law in respect of the annual balance-sheet which can fairly claim to be more complete than the provisions of the English law. The other matters on which modifications have been made in the English law are of minor importance.

"I am afraid, Sir that I am taking up a very large amount of the time of Council, but there are two matters of considerable importance with which we have not attempted to deal in the Bill, and I think I ought to say a few words about their omission. The first of these is the question of Managing Agents, a problem peculiar to this country. The activities of these very useful persons, and their relations to the companies whose affairs they manage, have from time to time been open to attack, and it has been suggested that this Bill should more strictly regulate and define their position. Government have not seen their way to take action on this difficult matter which brings us up against the law of contract; but when I say that, I do not wish to suggest for a moment that we are shutting the door against legislation, if practicable suggestions are made to us before this Bill becomes law. I should like, however, to place one consideration before Council. A Managing Agent either is a Director or is not a Director of the company he manages. In the former case, which I believe is the commonest, he will come under the provisions of the Bill for Directors, and the definition of 'Director' in the Bill makes it clear that, whatever the title chosen for the governing body, the rules which apply to Directors apply also to persons who stand in the position of Directors. In the first case, therefore, he will be subject to the safeguards and penalties prescribed in the case of Directors. In the latter case, where the Managing Agent is not a Director, his relationship with the company is governed by contract and the Bill makes it necessary that every material contract should be disclosed in the prospectus. At any rate, therefore, full publicity is secured as to the nature of the relationship.

• COMPANIES.

[*Mr. Clark ; Sir Vithaldas D. Thackersey ;
Mr. Mudholkar.*]

"The other even more thorny question with which we have not seen our way to deal is that of Banks or of businesses which with varying degree of accuracy prefer to call themselves Banks. This is not a specially Indian problem ; the recent failure of the Charing Cross Bank in England, and the appalling abuse of the depositors' confidence which it disclosed, will be fresh in the memory of Council. The evil which wants a remedy is that poor and uneducated people are attracted by the word ' Bank, ' thinking that it necessarily implies security and stability, and unscrupulous persons accordingly apply the term to any speculative business in order to attract investors and depositors. But how is the use of the term to be restricted and how is banking business to be defined for the purpose ? Government will be very willing to consider any suggestions, but I must confess that the more I think of it the more difficult the problem appears of how to define a banking business, how to control it when you have defined it, and how to avoid interfering with the legitimate business of firms carrying on partly banking and partly other operations. I understand that informed opinion in the United Kingdom, where the question was stirred up again by the Charing Cross Bank smash, is against attempting to legislate, and we may well hesitate to rush in where more experienced legislators fear to tread.

"This, Sir, in more senses than one is a big measure. The Bill deals with big interest, and in the mere matter of bulk runs to 323 clauses and 31 pages of Schedules. It may well be that in such a mass of material those interested will find subjects for criticism and objection. I can only say that Government have no desire to hurry this legislation through ; that every scope will be given for criticism ; and that all opinions will be duly weighed ; and I shall hope later on to have the advantage of personal discussion upon it in the different commercial centres of India. No legislation can prevent fraud or altogether indemnify the investor from the dangers of an incurable optimism : all you can hope for is to make the path of dishonesty more stony and the vagaries of ignorance less liable to disaster. I should be sorry if the impression were created that Government is undertaking this legislation owing to there being any widespread canker in Indian commercial circles ; though bad cases have occurred from time to time, here as in other countries, there is no ground for such a supposition. But we ought to have the best Act we can and I am sure that, as in other recent commercial legislation, I can count on the assistance of the important Chambers of Commerce and of all those interested in commercial law, in helping us to get it."

The Hon'ble Sir Vithaldas Thackersey : "Mr. Vice-President, I heartily congratulate Government on introducing this Bill in this Council. I have no opportunity of going through the several sections referred to by the Hon'ble Member, and therefore I am not prepared at present to go into the details of the Bill ; but on the principle of the Bill, I think commercial communities are at one that this Bill is not brought forward a day too soon."

The Hon'ble Mr. Mudholkar : "Sir, I had an opportunity of expressing my views in regard to the proposed legislation a year or so ago. On that occasion I expressed my concurrence in the proposal that the amendment of the Indian Companies Act should be undertaken. I have studied the English law and I consider that the new provisions introduced into the English Companies Consolidated Act are very desirable, and should be brought into our code also. There are of course several matters in regard to which slight alterations may have to be made, necessitated by the difference in the circumstances of the two countries. But there is no doubt that the English Companies Act of 1908 provides more safeguards than the old law, and that such safeguards are required in India also. It is not necessary to refer to these things specifically on this occasion. We shall have to go into these matters when the time comes. But with regard to the necessity for legislation on the lines which Government propose, I agree with the Hon'ble Member. The Conference which I have the honour to represent, the Indian Industrial Conference in which Indians and Europeans join on more occasions than one, dealt with the subject and expressed its view that the time has come for assimilating the Indian law to the improved English law. With these general observations, I heartily congratulate the Government and the Hon'ble Member on the steps which they propose taking in the matter."

The Hon'ble Sir Cecil Graham: "Sir, I should like to join other Hon'ble Members in congratulating the Government and the Hon'ble Member in charge, for having brought this Bill in. The whole of the commercial community, I think, are at one in wishing for this legislation; but as the Hon'ble Member has pointed out, the Chambers of Commerce preferred to wait and defer expressing their opinion on the details until the actual Bill was before them. However, the Hon'ble Member has promised us plenty of time to go thoroughly into the details and see how far the English Act will fall in line with the conditions governing commerce and business in India. There is only one thing I should like to ask the Hon'ble Member, and that is if he has any information he can give us as to how the English Act has worked in England so far."

The Hon'ble Mr Clark: "Sir, I am very much obliged to Hon'ble Members for the cordial reception they have given to this Bill.

"As regards the question which the Hon'ble Sir Cecil Graham has raised, we are expecting to receive a report from the Board of Trade in London on the subject of the English Act as applied to India, and I imagine that in that report they will inform us as to whether any of the provisions of the Act of 1908 have been found not to work well. We had to introduce the Bill before receiving the report so as to avoid any risk of not getting it introduced this session."

The motion was put and agreed to.

The Hon'ble Mr. Clark introduced the Bill.

The Hon'ble Mr. Clark moved that the Bill together with the Statement of Objects and Reasons relating thereto be published in the Gazette of India in English and in the local official Gazettes in English and in such other languages as the Local Governments think fit.

The motion was put and agreed to.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

DEPARTMENT OF REVENUE AND AGRICULTURE.

Rainfall summary for the seven days ending at 8 hrs. on Thursday, the 9th May 1912, based on the Indian Daily Weather Reports of the period.

1. The week's precipitation was scanty in many parts, the deficiency being most noticeable in Burma where extremely little rain fell. Rainfall was at times fairly general in Bengal and Assam, and more or less rain was recorded in Assam every day during the week. In northwest India feeble disturbances of the winter type continued to prevent the development of the normal hot weather conditions, and gave numerous falls of rain in the western Himalayas and a few falls in the plains of the Punjab and the North-West Frontier Province. Frequent rainfall was reported from the south of the Peninsula, and occasional light rain fell also in the north of the Peninsula and the central parts of the country.

2. Temperature was generally lower than usual in northwest India and higher than usual in Burma. Conditions in the north of the Peninsula were remarkably cool on the 6th, and both there and in northeast India, they were somewhat variable during the week.

3. Burma.—A few light to moderately heavy falls of rain occurred, chiefly along the coast.

Northeast India, including Orissa.—Rainfall was nearly general in Assam and local in Bengal on the first two days of the week. It then diminished until the 7th when it was nearly general again in Assam and the north and east of Bengal. A few light showers were reported from Bihar and Orissa.

The United Provinces, Central India and the Central Provinces.—A few showers occurred in each part of the division.

Northwest India.—In the course of the week numerous falls of rain were reported from the hill districts, and scattered rainfall occurred in the plains of the Punjab and the North-West Frontier Province.

The Peninsula.—Numerous and locally heavy falls of rain were reported from the south, and a few falls occurred in the remainder of the division.

4. The most important precipitation recorded was as follows :—

May 2nd. Moulmein 0·86", Gauhati 2·00", Dhubri 1·06", Narayanganj 0·97", Dinajpur 0·93", Jalpaiguri 0·90", Mukteswar 0·87" and Srinagar 0·96".

„ 4th. Cochin 1·27".

„ 5th. Toungoo 1·21", Cherat 0·92", Belgaum 1·03" and Madura 1·17".

„ 6th. Mangalore 1·34", Calicut 1·59" and Cochin 3·72".

„ 7th. Gauhati 1·09", Shillong 0·94", Cherrapunji 1·12", Chittagong 1·05", Mymensingh 1·71", Jalpaiguri 1·14", Chitaldruz 1·19" and Trichinopoly 0·75".

„ 8th. Kodaikanal 1·27".

5. Rainfall during the week was markedly above normal in the Bombay Deccan, Hyderabad South and Malabar; normal or nearly normal in Assam, the United Provinces East, the Punjab East and North, the North-West Frontier Province, the Central Provinces and Madras southeast; and markedly below normal in the Bay Islands, Burma, Orissa, Chota Nagpur, Bihar, the United Provinces West, Kashmir, Baluchistan, Rajputana East, Hyderabad North, Mysore and the Madras coast north. In Upper Burma, the United Provinces West, Baluchistan, Sind, Rajputana, Gujarat, Central India West, Berar, Hyderabad North and the Madras coast North no appreciable rainfall was reported; but in the Punjab Southwest, Central India East and the Konkan where the normal amount is nil, light rain fell.

Season and Crop Prospects for the week ending Saturday,
4th May 1912.

Burma.—Light showers fell during the week in a few districts. Reaping of spring rice and cultivation of summer rice continue. Harvesting of island crops is almost finished. Hill side cultivation has commenced. Standing crops are satisfactory and promise well. The condition of cattle is normal. The price of unhusked rice continues abnormally high and is rising slightly.

Assam.—Moderate rain fell in all districts. Sowing of rice and jute has been retarded and early rice in low lands has been damaged in places. The manufacture of tea is in progress. Prospects are generally good. The weather is rather too cold in places. Planting of sugarcane has commenced. Cattle disease prevails in nine districts. The price of common rice has risen by one per cent.

Bengal.—The rainfall is reported deficient in Burdwan and beneficial in Malda, but excessive in the districts of the Dacca and Chittagong divisions. Sowing of jute and autumn rice is still in progress but has been retarded in some districts by excessive rainfall. The price of rice generally shows a tendency to rise. Cattle disease is reported from Nadia, Murshidabad, Jessore, Dacca, Mymensingh, Bakarganj, Midnapur and Malda.

Bihar and Orissa.—Rain fell during the week in Champaran, Muzaffarpur, Darbhanga, Purnea, the Sonthal Parganas, Cuttack, Balasore, Angul, Ranchi, Manbhum and parts of Saran, Puri and Hazaribagh. The fall was generally very light except in parts of Purnea where it amounted to 1·94 inches. There was no rain in the remaining districts. Preparation of lands for the next season's crops still continues in some districts. More rain is wanted for the purpose in parts of Singhbhum. Threshing of spring crops is approaching completion. Sowing of paddy and jute is in progress. Newly planted sugarcane is doing well. Prospects of other standing crops are good. The price of common rice has risen in Darbhanga, Monghyr, Angul, Palamau and Manbhum and has fallen in Gaya, the Sonthal Parganas and Balasore. Cattle disease is reported from Muzaffarpur, Puri, Sambalpur and Manbhum. The supply of fodder and water is sufficient throughout the Province.

United Provinces.—The week has been practically rainless. Threshing and winnowing are drawing to a close. Extra crops are flourishing and sugarcane is doing well. Sporadic cattle disease is reported to a diminishing extent from some districts but the general condition of agricultural stock is good. The fodder and water supply is sufficient. Prices show a slight downward tendency, particularly in the west.

Punjab.—The week was wet and cloudy and unfavourable for reaping and threshing. Spring crops are being harvested and the outturn is average to good. The condition of standing crops is good. Sowings of extra spring and autumn crops are proceeding and are generally satisfactory. Cattle are generally healthy but fodder is still scarce. Prices remain high.

North-West Frontier Province.—The week was wet and generally cloudy. The condition of standing crops experienced no change. Harvesting of spring crops is proceeding and the outturn is generally average, but is below normal on unirrigated areas in certain places. Sowings of extra spring and autumn crops continue. Fodder and water are sufficient. The condition of cattle is generally good. Prices are generally stationary. In Dera Ismail Khan they are still high but falling.

Jammu.—Slight rain fell during the week. Prices are fluctuating. Wheat sells from 10 to 15 and maize from 13 to 18 seers per rupee. The condition of standing crops is fair. Fodder is sufficient.

Kashmir.—Rain fell twice during the week and was beneficial to spring and autumn crops. Zamindars are busy sowing. Fodder is average. Prices are rising slightly. There is no disease among cattle.

Rajputana.—Showers fell in Merwara and parts of eastern Rajputana. Bikaner reports slight rain at headquarters. 1½ inches fell in one district during the previous week. The weather is hot and generally cloudy. Preparations for autumn sowing have commenced in places. Cattle are suffering for want of pasturage in parts of the Western States, Mewar and Jaipur Residencies. Pasturage and fodder are also scarce in Merwara. Cattle disease prevails in isolated places. The water supply is deficient in many places in Kotah and is diminishing in Merwara and the Hilly Tracts of Mewar. Prices are generally high and are rising in a few places.

Central India.—Slight showers fell in parts of Gwalior, Baghelkhand and Bundelkhand. The weather is hot and occasionally cloudy. Harvesting of spring crops is in progress in Indore, Baghelkhand and Malwa and has been completed in Gwalior, Bhopal and Bundelkhand. Land is being prepared for autumn crops in Indore, Gwalior, Malwa and Bhopawar. The outturn is above normal in Bundelkhand and good elsewhere. Water is scarce in the Baghelkhand, Malwa and Bhopawar Agencies. Cattle disease is prevalent in parts of the Gwalior, Indore, Bhopal and Bhopawar Agencies. Fodder is insufficient in parts of the Gwalior, Indore and Bhopawar Agencies. Prices have fallen slightly in Gwalior, are normal in Bhopal, Baghelkhand and Malwa, are fluctuating in parts of the Indore and Bhopawar Agencies and are steady elsewhere. The opium crop is good.

The weekly report on the famine and scarcity is as follows:—Distress is not increasing. Relief measures are adequate. There is no disinclination to resort to works and there is no wandering or emaciation. The public health is good. Fodder is scarce. The prices of the cheapest food stuff vary from 11 to 12½ seers per rupee. The number on relief works was:—Dhar 4,165, Jhabua 1,172, Ali Rajpur 1,892 and Jobat 991. On takavi works in Jhabua 1,050. On gratuitous relief in Dhar 180.

Central Provinces.—The weather has been hot and occasionally cloudy during the week. Eleven districts had a sprinkling of rain. Threshing and winnowing of spring crops continued and have been practically completed in most districts. Agriculturists were also busy in ploughing land for sowing of next autumn crops. Cattle are healthy. Prices are nearly stationary but exhibit a tendency to fall.

Feudatory States.—Light showers not exceeding 42 cents were received in three States. Prospects are generally good. Prices are steady.

Bombay.—Slight rain fell during the week in parts of the Karnatak. Preparation of lands for autumn cultivation is progressing generally. The fodder supply is generally inadequate. Agricultural stock is deteriorating in parts of Sind and Gujarat and is deficient in parts of the Deccan. The water supply both for irrigation and drinking purposes is deficient in parts of the Presidency Proper. Prices are high and generally stationary.

The weekly report on the famine and scarcity is as follows:—Distress continues throughout the Panch Mahals and parts of Kathiawar. There is no wandering or emaciation. People on relief works are in good condition and relief measures are adequate. The public health is generally good. People find employment in digging temporary wells. 5. The statement required under section 9 shall be submitted in Form C.

6. The Commissioner in submitting to the Chief Commissioner his report under section 12 shall state clearly his proposals regarding the conditions under which the loan is to be granted. His proposals shall deal with the following points together with any others which he may desire to include:—

- (iv) the amount of the principal and interest to be repaid in each instalment and the date on which each instalment shall become due.

7. If the Chief Commissioner decides that a loan shall be granted under section 13, he will pass orders regarding each of the proposals put forward by the Commissioner and will intimate that a failure to pay any instalment by the date on which it becomes due will constitute an infringement of the conditions of the loan and will render the Talukdar liable to be declared disqualified to manage his own property as provided for in section 17.

12. The total period of repayment of a loan shall not ordinarily exceed 15 to 20 years, the latter period being regarded as a maximum, except in special cases in which the previous sanction of the Government of India will be necessary.

The Chief Commissioner in suspending any instalment will pass orders regarding the date on which the Talukdar is to make payment of the instalment so suspended; and any failure on the part of the Talukdar to comply with such orders shall be regarded as constituting an infringement of the conditions of the loan and as rendering the Talukdar liable to the consequences attaching thereto.

PUBLIC WORKS DEPARTMENT.

NOTIFICATIONS.

No. 439-458-E.

Simla, the 15th May, 1912.

No. 25.—The following is published for general information :—

RESOLUTION.—By the Government of India, Public Works Department.

In the Resolution of the Government of India in the Public Works Department Nos. 675—691-E., dated 24th April 1908, the Governor General in Council announced that His Majesty's Secretary of State for India had sanctioned the introduction of a scheme for the re-organisation of the engineer establishment of the Public Works Department. The main features of the scheme were the substitution of time scales of pay for the graded system of promotion formerly in force, and the complete separation of the Imperial and Provincial Engineer establishments by placing them in two distinct cadres with different rates of promotion to executive rank. It was hoped that the advantages which were held out in the matter of pay would have induced the majority of the Provincial engineers to accept the new conditions of service, but this hope has not been fulfilled. Numerous memorials from the officers themselves, and the result of enquiries made from local Governments and Administrations, shew that the members of the Provincial Engineer service attach much greater importance to being borne on a combined list with their Imperial confreres than was supposed to be the case, and that for this and other reasons it is desirable, so far as the Public Works Department is concerned, to abandon the attempt to carry out fully the recommendation of the Public Service Commission for a separate Provincial service. It was also represented that the scale of pay fixed for the Provincial engineers, although an improvement on the rates obtaining under the old graded system of promotion, was inadequate. In view of these representations the Governor General in Council has had under consideration the possibility of devising a scheme which would satisfy the reasonable demands of the memorialists, and at the same time secure a high standard of efficiency by attracting to the service the best material available in the country.

2. The Governor General in Council now desires to announce that His Majesty's Secretary of State for India has sanctioned the introduction, with effect from the 1st April 1911, of the following revised scheme, which provides for the abolition of the dual cadre, the equalization of the period for promotion to executive rank in the two services, and the increase of the pay of the Provincial officer to an amount which shall bear, as nearly as possible, the same proportion to the pay of the Imperial officer, as that which existed prior to the introduction of the new scales in 1908. The rates of pay now sanctioned for members of the Provincial Engineer service are as follows :

				Maximum pay.
				Rs.
Assistant Engineer	1st year of service	250
" "	2nd " "	275
" "	3rd " "	300
" "	4th " "	325

NOTE.—A special increment of Rs. 50 may be granted by the local Government to a deserving Executive Engineer, who, after completion of five years' service on the maximum pay of Rs. 850, is not promoted to administrative rank.

					Rs.
Superintending Engineer, 3rd class	1,200
" " 2nd "	1,400
" " 1st "	1,600
Chief Engineers	Imperial rates of pay.

The time scale of pay laid down in the Resolution of the 24th April 1908 for officers of the Imperial service remains unaltered, but future entrants will attain executive rank in the 11th, instead of in the 9th year of service as at present. Thus, in both services promotion to executive rank will take place at the same period, and will be subject only to the condition that the officer concerned is considered by the local Government to be fully qualified for the charge of a division. But no officer in the executive class may draw more than the lowest pay of the class, viz., Rs. 800 a month in the case of the Imperial service, or Rs. 535 a month in the case of the Provincial service, except as a purely temporary arrangement, unless he holds a divisional charge, or a charge which in the opinion of the local Government is of equal importance. Further, an officer of the assistant class placed in charge of a division will draw, in addition to his substantive pay, the ordinary officiating allowance admissible under article 120, Civil Service Regulations, subject to a maximum of Rs. 800 in the case of the Imperial service, and of Rs. 535 in the case of the Provincial service. The alteration of the period of promotion will not however affect Imperial officers already in the service, who if qualified will be given the rank of Executive Engineer in the 9th year of service under existing rules. Similarly, any qualified Provincial officer now in the service will be given the rank of Executive Engineer in the same period irrespective of whether he is actually in charge of a division or not. Officers who were in the service on the 8th March 1908 will ordinarily resume the position in regard to seniority which they formerly occupied on the combined list, and officers appointed since that date will ordinarily take their position on the combined list from date of appointment as Assistant Engineer. Should however an officer's promotion have been retarded, the position he is to occupy on the combined list will be a matter for settlement by the local Government concerned.

3. With a view to placing all officers of the Provincial Engineer service on an equal footing, it has been decided to allow those who did not elect to come under the re-organization scheme of 1908, or who elected from a later date than that of its inception, the option of electing to come under the scale of pay introduced by that scheme from the 8th March 1908 to the 31st March 1911.

4. Subject to the modifications indicated above, which apply equally to Royal Engineers on the civil scale of pay, vide Public Works Department Resolution Nos 63—82-E., dated the 18th January 1911, the rules promulgated in the Resolution of the 24th April 1908, will continue in force.

RESOLUTION—By the Government of India, Finance Department.

In connection with the Report of the Royal Commission upon Decentralization, the Government of India referred, for the opinion of local Governments, a number of specific points affecting the financial relations of the Imperial with the Provincial Governments. The particular questions on which advice was sought may be summarised as follows :—

- (a) Certain problems regarding the assignment of revenue to the provinces under the quasi-permanent settlements.
- (b) The desirability of provincial taxation.
- (c) The advisability of floating provincial loans in the open market.
- (d) The control to be exercised over the borrowing of local bodies.
- (e) The delegation of powers of reappropriation.

The reports of local Governments have been considered in detail by the Governor General in Council ; the orders of the Secretary of State have been taken where necessary ; and the object of the present resolution is to bring together in one place the decisions which have been reached upon the various points at issue.

The reason for not issuing the Resolution earlier lies in the desire of the Government of India to see the results of the first year's working of the new financial arrangements with the provinces.

2. The revision of the Provincial Settlements.—In connection with the quasi-permanent provincial settlements, the scope of the reference was comparatively limited. The Government of India expressly declared their intention of retaining unchanged the principles underlying the existing settlements, and the control which they exercised over the provincial budgets. They invited the opinions of the local Governments on three relatively minor points only ; namely, the reduction of over-grown fixed assignments, the gradual elimination of divided heads, and the policy of making special grants from imperial to provincial revenues. When, however, the time came to consider the replies, conditions had changed. The financial position of India was such that it was clearly desirable to take a step which would constitute a decided advance in the evolution of the settlement system. It is not necessary here to describe at any length the history of this system.

Theory of the settlements

Its institution represents an attempt to solve a problem which must always arise where there exists a local Government in complete or partial subordination to a central authority. Certain classes of expenditure must obviously be left to the subordinate authority, while other services can be satisfactorily administered by the central Government alone. Both these bodies require to be kept in funds. In India, where the great bulk of the revenues of the country is collected in, and credited in the accounts of, the various provinces, the problem resolves itself into the question how the central Government can best be supplied with resources to meet the charges of the services which it must of necessity administer. The provincial settlements represent a method of attaining this object, which has been evolved by diverse and protracted experiment. To meet its own expenditure, the Government of India retains, in the first place, the entire profits of the commercial departments and, secondly, all the revenue whose locale is no guide to its true incidence, such as the net receipts from Customs, Salt and Opium. The income derived from these sources is, however, insufficient to cover the cost of the imperial services, and an arrangement had therefore to be made by which the other sources of revenue should be distributed between the central and the various provincial Governments.

3. This arrangement took a semi-contractual shape, as a separate settlement, or agreement, concluded by the Government of India with each individual province. In the stage of development which it had reached when the

Their main features.

Royal Commission reported, the settlement system presented three main features. In the first place, the settlements had been declared to be quasi-permanent. The Government of India had, it is true, reserved the right of revision, but they had promised to exercise that power "only when the variations from the initial relative standards of revenue and expenditure were, over a substantial term of years, so great as to result in unfairness either to the province itself, or to the Government of India, or in the event of the Government of India being confronted with the alternatives of either imposing general taxation, or seeking assistance from the provinces." The second important principle of the system was that the distribution of revenues between the provincial and central governments was made, except on occasions of grave emergency, with direct reference not to the needs of the central government, but to the outlay which each province might reasonably claim to incur upon the services which it administered. The first step taken in concluding a settlement was to ascertain the needs of the province and assign revenue to meet them; the residue only of the income of the province coming into the Imperial exchequer. The third feature of the system was the method by which the revenue accruing from various sources was distributed. The residue which was available for imperial purposes was taken in the shape of a fixed fractional share in a few of the main heads of revenue, which were known as "divided heads." As, however, the distribution of these heads could never be so adjusted as to yield to the province, when added to the revenue from the purely provincial heads, the exact sum necessary to meet provincial charges, equilibrium was effected by means of fixed cash assignments; a deficiency being remedied by an assignment to provincial revenues from the imperial share of the land revenue, and an excess by the reverse process.

4. In the general principles of this system the Government of India had no desire to make any change. Various alternative methods of financing the Imperial Government had from time to time been suggested, and certain of these are discussed in paragraphs 65 to 68 of the report of the Royal Commission. The Government of India were in entire agreement with the Commission that any radical change of system was undesirable, and fully accepted the grounds on which they rejected the specific alternatives which they considered. It was clearly preferable to abide by the main lines of a system which had gradually been built up to meet the needs of the country, than to look about for an untried scheme of greater abstract perfection. There was, however, one main feature in which the system appeared susceptible of development, and this development seemed to the Government of India to be eminently desirable in the interests of both the imperial and the provincial Governments. The direction in which they desired to advance was that of giving greater permanency to the settlements. From the point of view of the central Government a measure of this kind was rendered vitally important by the existing situation of imperial finances. Simultaneously with the prospect of the loss of a considerable annual revenue from opium, the Government of India were faced by the necessity of providing large and increasing funds for the extension of education, for the improvement of sanitation, and for other kindred purposes. To insure successful conduct of their finance in these circumstances it was essential to remove every avoidable element of uncertainty. They therefore decided to introduce as great a degree of finality as possible into the financial relations of the imperial with the provincial Governments. If provinces could be provided, once and for all, with settlements so framed that local Governments could develop their administration from their own assigned resources and could fairly be warned that they must not, except in cases of unusual calamity, expect assistance from imperial funds; the task before the Government of India would be greatly simplified. At the same time it was considered that, by imparting greater precision to their relations with local Governments they would give the latter a more abiding interest in the husbanding and direction of their own resources; while a sharper definition of the limits of provincial independence in financial matters would make it possible to allow much greater freedom of action within those limits. Before detailing the steps which the Government of India decided to take in order to secure an increase of permanency in the settlements, it will be convenient to discuss the minor points which were specifically referred for the opinion of provincial Governments.

5. The first of these points was the desirability of converting overgrown fixed assignments into shares of growing revenue. As the needs of a province inevitably grow and the province is required to meet them from the expansion of its resources, it is frequently argued that the inclusion of a fixed and inelastic element in those resources hampers a local Government in its task of finding funds to meet the normal growth of its expenditure. The Royal Commission wrote with caution on this subject, but recommended the conversion of unduly large fixed assignments into shares of growing revenue by means of the gradual provincialization of heads of revenue which are now divided, and for which the provincial Governments must always be specially responsible. As suitable subjects for provincialization they suggested the revenue from Excise and Forests. The Government of India were in entire sympathy with the cautious attitude adopted by the Commission in this matter. It is by no means always the case that a fixed assignment hampers a province. The cardinal issue in the success of a settlement is that the normal growth of the assigned revenues should be at least equal to the necessary and carefully regulated growth of provincial expenditure. If this object is achieved, the fact that a part of the assigned revenue is fixed is of little or no importance. It is only when the normal increment of revenue falls short of the legitimate increase in expenditure that the fixed assignment becomes an evil and a danger. On these grounds, the Government of India were unable to accept the suggestion of certain local Governments for frequent and radical action in the matter of commutation. They considered that fixed assignments should be replaced by a share of growing revenue in the following circumstances only:—

- (1) When an assignment is so large as to prevent the increment in revenue from keeping abreast of the legitimate and necessary growth of expenditure; and
- (2) When the financial outlook of the moment justifies the abandonment of the necessary amount of growing revenue in exchange for the reduction of fixed charges.

Such commutation will usually take the shape of the provincialization of heads formerly divided. Except in this connection, however, the Government of India were not inclined to accept the imperialization or provincialization of divided heads as an object in itself. Such heads possess the advantages detailed in paragraph 70 of the Royal Commission's Report, and constitute a factor of some value in the general system of Indian finance.

6. The second point of reference was the question of lump grants from imperial to provincial balances. Such grants have frequently been given to individual provinces, in order either to admit local governments to a share in an exceptional increase of prosperity, or to afford the means of financing a policy which commends itself to the central authority. The principle of making allotments of this kind, which has been described as a "policy of doles", was subjected to considerable criticism before the Royal Commission. The chief charges brought against it are that it increases the opportunities for interference by the Government of India in provincial affairs; that a fair distribution of the grants among the provinces is frequently a matter of extreme difficulty; and that the system often compels local Governments to spend money on objects of less comparative urgency than other needs of their populations. From the point of view of the stability of imperial finances, the policy has the additional disadvantage that it must tend to decrease the provincial sense of financial responsibility, by accustoming local Governments to look for special and spasmodic assistance outside the terms of their settlements. While fully appreciative of these drawbacks attaching to the system, the Government of India were in complete agreement with the Royal Commission that the total abolition of doles is impracticable. Special grants from imperial to provincial revenues are almost inevitable. A line of policy pressed upon the Government of India by the Secretary of State, by the obvious trend of public opinion, or by the competition for efficiency among local Governments must frequently be passed on to the provinces, and to insure its efficient prosecution, it is essential that the latter should be provided with funds additional to their ordinary resources. Such will doubtless be the case with the forward movement in education and sanitation, when special grants will have to be given on conditions to be settled in correspondence with local Governments. Again, it often happens that the Imperial Government secures a surplus which cannot suitably be employed in the reduction of taxation, and it naturally wishes to share its windfall with the provinces. In both these cases, doles are unavoidable. To minimise their disadvantages, the Royal Commission recommended the adoption of three principles :—

- (1) The system should not involve any greater degree of interference by the central with the local Government than at present exists ;
- (2) The grants should be given with due regard to the wishes of the provincial authorities ;
- (3) They should not necessarily be assigned for the same object in every province.

These principles, which received the full support of the local Governments, were readily accepted by the Government of India. The Government of Bombay, which discussed the matter in some detail, made certain further proposals for the regulation of doles. They suggested, as the most satisfactory method of subsidising a province, the remission of imperial taxation which might, if the provincial authorities so desired, be re-imposed as a provincial burden. This scheme will merit further consideration at any time when the remission of taxation becomes a practical possibility, but there is little immediate prospect of any such action. The suggestion that doles, whenever given, should take the shape of a fractional addition to the provincial share of land revenue has been sufficiently met by the decision of the Government of India, already described, in the matter of the commutation of cash assignments. In any case this system, if adopted, could not be of universal application ; as it would clearly be unsuitable to a grant made against a fixed payment, such as the Famine Insurance credit, or to a dole given to a province in which the expansion of revenue already outpaces the normal growth of expenditure. To a third opinion expressed by the Government of Bombay, the Government of India were unable to subscribe. They could not admit that the employment of a grant should, except in the rarest instances, be left to the discretion of the local Government which receives it. While they could readily agree to abstain from critical inquiry into the objects to which a dole is applied, they held that the cases in which it would be necessary to specify the general purposes of the assignment would be the rule rather than the exception. When, for example, considerable sacrifices have been incurred in order to raise money for education, they could not contemplate with equanimity its expenditure upon hospitals or bridges. Similar considerations apply when the Government of India are engaged in distributing a windfall. The disposal of a surplus is akin to a legislative act, being decided after debate in the Imperial Legislative Council ; and it is often an alternative to a remission of taxation, in which case the purposes to which it is proposed to devote the surplus are deliberately accepted as more needful and expedient than the relief of the general taxpayer. In such cases the Government of India incur a responsibility with reference to the disposal of grants made to local Governments of which they could not consent to divest themselves.

7. Before any steps could be taken to impart greater permanency to the provincial contracts, it was clearly desirable to remove any imperfections in the various settlements which might be found to exist. The Government of India were fully alive to the charge often brought against the settlements, that they are of unequal liberality in the different provinces. The assumption underlying the existing condition of quasi-permanency is that the settlements start from equilibrium at the given point of time when the contract is made, and that the inevitable growth of provincial expenditure will be met from the expansion of the revenues which have been assigned to the provinces. It is urged by certain critics that, to make the assumption tenable, it must also be assumed that all provinces received equality of treatment at their settlement, and more particularly that the settlement standards provided for an equal degree of advance in the different administrations. It is perfectly well known, however, that, at the time of concluding the latest contracts, some provinces were more backward than others; it is known that some of the previous settlements had been framed on generous and others upon less liberal lines, that the standards of expenditure were in consequence unequal and that certain provinces have thus been placed at a definite disadvantage for all time. In this way, it is argued that the older provinces and those which were most insistent in their demands when the earlier settlements were framed now find themselves in comfortable circumstances; while the more backward and less demonstrative administrations have to face permanent financial stringency. The Government of India were prepared to admit the extreme difficulty of giving a conclusive reply to these arguments. It is impossible to devise a satisfactory test of equality of treatment, which could be applied with safety to the results of the various settlements. They were not, however, ready to concede the justice of the criticisms. The supposed inequality of treatment, if it exist at all, is historical and inevitable rather than the outcome of administrative partiality; while its very existence is extremely doubtful. Each province has had periodical re-settlements since 1882. During the intervening years, there has been a steady advance in the equipment of every local Government. The pressure has been constant, both from within and from above, in the direction of greater efficiency and increased administrative comfort: while the supervision and control of the central Government have had the same tendency. All these influences have reacted on each successive revision of the provincial settlements, and have inevitably worked towards an equalization of the scale of expenditure in the different provinces. At every periodical review, the poorer local Governments have pressed their grievances; and the haggling of a quarter of a century has established a rough equity which could not now be replaced by theoretical calculations. One province may be behind another in its jails, or a third in its roads, and its subordinate officials may be worse paid than in a fourth; but it probably spends more than its neighbours on police or on education. Taking the administrative equipment as a whole, the Government of India found it impossible to believe that inequality in the settlements had gone far enough to starve one province in its necessities in order to load another with luxuries, and they considered it entirely unnecessary, in seeking a basis for permanency, to make any radical alterations in the existing settlements which have been evolved by the slow process of years.

8. At the same time, it was undoubtedly the fact that imperfections were to be found in certain of the present contracts, which it was undesirable to confirm in perpetuity. Certain of these were due to miscalculations at the time of revision of settlement, or to an unexpected course taken after revision by the revenue of particular provinces. In a number of provinces the fixed assignment had reached a figure which showed signs of becoming excessive. The Government of India accordingly decided to undertake a careful revision of all existing settlements, with a view to the removal of minor defects and the replacement of large cash assignments by shares of growing revenue. With this object, they made a detailed review of the financial position of each province on the lines ordinarily followed in framing a new settlement, checking their conclusions by means of an independent report of the working of each contract obtained from the Accountant General of the province concerned. As a result of this examination, it was found advisable to make variations in the terms of the settlements, before attempting to make them permanent, in order to give the provinces a larger share in the expanding sources of revenue. The exact concessions made have been separately indicated in detail to the various local Governments, but they may for convenience sake, be briefly recapitulated here :—

- (1) (a) Forest revenue and expenditure were made wholly provincial in all the provinces.

- (b) Excise revenue and expenditure were made wholly provincial in Bombay, while in the Central Provinces and the United Provinces, the provincial share of these heads was increased to three-quarters.
 - (c) Land revenue was made half provincial in the Punjab and five-eighths provincial in Burma.
 - (d) The provincial interest of the Punjab in major Irrigation works (direct receipts, working expenses and interest on debt) was raised from three-eighths to one-half.
- (2) The fixed assignments of the various provinces were reduced by the amount which these changes of classification added to the provincial share of growing revenue.

The financial effect of these arrangements was to convert fixed assignments amounting to 350 lakhs of rupees into growing net revenue, and to deprive the Imperial Government in future years of an annual net increment of 8.15 lakhs in its share of divided revenue. [In the foregoing description of the new settlements no allusion is made to Bengal or Eastern Bengal and Assam, because the subsequent re-constitution of these provinces has abrogated the permanent settlements and necessitated the formation of new and temporary arrangements.]

9. Having thus remedied the defects of the existing settlements, the Government of India approached the task of imparting greater permanency to their financial relations with provincial Governments. They realised, at the outset, that complete permanency was not attainable. The possibility of famine constitutes a danger to the settlement contracts against which it is impossible to provide adequate safeguards. The famine insurance scheme is a convenient device for distributing the expenditure on famine in its earlier stages, or on a partial scarcity; but a really widespread calamity would sweep it away and leave the provinces dependent in large measure upon the bounty of the Imperial Government. In a crisis of this kind the Government of India must of necessity step in and supplement the provincial resources, as it has done in the past, and the contract obligations will, for the time being, remain partially in suspense. Subject, however, to provision against famine, the Government of India considered that the settlements, as now revised, might safely be declared to be fixed in perpetuity. They held that the time had come when local Governments might reasonably be informed that certain growing sources of revenue had been placed, once and for all, at their disposal from which to meet the future needs of the province which they administered. It would be for them to husband their resources and lay them out to the best economical advantage. With the introduction of this element of fixity into the financial relations, it would be possible to allow provincial authorities far greater independence within definite limits, and to relax a great measure of the control which the Government of India have hitherto exercised over the provincial bodies.

10. The views of the Government of India on the various points discussed in the preceding paragraphs were communicated to the Secretary of State, and, with his approval, the following rules have been laid down to govern the future relations of provincial and imperial finance:—

- (i) With the exception indicated in rule II, the provincial settlements for Madras, Bombay, the United Provinces, Burma, the Punjab and the Central Provinces will in future be permanent and not subject to revision; and permanent settlements will be framed, as soon as may be found convenient, for Bengal, Bihar and Orissa, and Assam. In case of serious famine in a province, the question of assistance from the revenues of the Government of India will be considered. The Government of India reserve the right to call for assistance from provincial revenues in the event of grave embarrassment in their own finances.

- (ii) When the fixed assignment of a province becomes unduly large and hampers the expansion of its revenue, as compared with the legitimate and necessary growth of expenditure, it will ordinarily be converted, either in whole or in part, into a share of growing reveques, as soon as the state of imperial finances permits.
- (iii) In the event of the grant of special allotment, to local Governments, out of surplus revenues not required for the remission of taxation, the reduction of debt, or other purposes, the Government of India will retain the option of declaring the purposes for which the money is provided, but
 - (a) the grants will not involve greater interference by the central Government than at present exists;
 - (b) they will be allotted with due regard to the wishes of the recipient Governments; and
 - (c) they need not necessarily be devoted to one and the same purpose in every province.
- (iv) A local Government may not budget for a deficit, unless it satisfies the Government of India that the excess expenditure is due to an exceptional and non-recurring cause, and also, if the deficit involves a reduction of the provincial balance below the prescribed minimum, that suitable arrangements will be made for the restoration of the minimum.
- (v) If a local Government exhausts its own balances and receives permission to overdraw upon the general balances, it will be required to take the necessary amount as a short loan from the Government of India. The loan will bear interest and will be repayable in such instalments as the central Government may direct.
- (vi) Future corrections in provincial budgets by the Government of India will be restricted to
 - (a) divided heads, and
 - (b) the proposed totals of revenue and expenditure.

A limit will be fixed by the Government of India for ordinary plus fresh recurring expenditure, and care will be taken to secure its observance. All extraordinary receipts will be excluded from the limit and will be applied to such non-recurring outlay on public works or other objects as the local Governments, assisted (where these exist) by their Councils, may determine. Relief should not, however, be afforded from these receipts towards meeting the ordinary civil works budget of a province in such a manner as indirectly to set free funds for recurring expenditure under another head. Moreover, when a local Government has taken a loan from the Government of India under the provisions mentioned above, extraordinary receipts shall not be regarded as applicable to non-recurring expenditure on public works or other objects until the whole of such loan is repaid. In a year in which there is no object of sufficient urgency and importance to justify the expenditure thereon of such extraordinary receipts, they should be added to provincial balances to serve as a reserve against future emergencies. In framing the budget estimates, the attention of the Government of India should be drawn to the existence of these special resources and to the manner in which it is proposed to dispose of them.

These rules represent, in the opinion of the Government of India, a decided advance in the path of decentralization. They place a greater responsibility on local Governments for the stability of their provincial finances, while at the same time investing them with wide independence. The arrangement aims at securing a clear division of duties and liabilities; and the Government of India trust that it will now be followed, on the part of each local Government by a careful examination of the scale of expenditure which now prevails, particularly in the Roads and Buildings Branch of the Public Works Department. The Government of India have now conducted such an examination into their own finances, with a view to economy and retrenchment; and they think it would be well if local Governments should now do the same, bearing in mind the rigidity of the new arrangements and the grave responsibility for keeping the growth of provincial expenditure at a ratio which shall in no circumstances be greater than the growth of provincial resources.

11. Provincial Taxation.—On the subject of Provincial taxation the Royal Commission wrote with studied caution. They found in existence a restriction upon the powers of local Governments which forbade them to impose additional taxation without the previous sanction of the Government of India, and they did not advise the removal of this restriction. They thought, however, that if, in the future, there should come about a clear separation between imperial and provincial finance, with a more effective control over the latter by Legislative Councils, it might become practicable and necessary to allow local Governments to levy special provincial taxation if they wished to increase their scale of provincial expenditure. They did not propose to relax the present statutory safeguards of legislation, without which no taxation can become effective. The Government of India are once again in general agreement with the Commission. Their attitude towards provincial taxation in the past has never been one of disfavour. It has frequently been employed, and still in some measure exists, as a supplement to the general revenues for purely provincial purposes. The provincial rates and taxes which have recently been remitted owed their abolition, not to their provincial character, but to the fact that they rested almost entirely on the land, which the Government of India, in pursuance of a settled policy, desire to relieve of miscellaneous burdens. The central Government have in the past frequently advised that provincial resources should be supplemented by small and cautious measures of provincial taxation. They have assented to the theoretical considerations that, in a vast country of greatly varying conditions, imperial taxation must of necessity be restricted in its range, as very few taxes are suitable for imposition in every part of the Indian Empire; that the incidence of an Imperial impost must be lighter in some areas than in others; that provincial taxation might not inappropriately balance such inequalities; that a tax which would cause dissatisfaction in one part of the country might arouse no opposition in another; and that experiments in taxation might thus be made with safety on a small scale which would be imprudent or even dangerous if applied to India as a whole.

12. These considerations are however theoretical only. In actual practice definite schemes of provincial taxation have never been pressed with any enthusiasm, and the Government of India can see no strong reason for removing the safeguards which now surround its imposition. They fully recognise that such taxation is a necessary corollary of a fully decentralised system of finance; but pending the development of such a system they consider that no useful purpose would be served by an attempt to define its proper scope or to lay down the criteria which it should satisfy. Financial autonomy for the provinces, if and when it arises, must carry with it the power of taxation. In existing circumstances there is nothing to be gained by varying or diminishing the control, both executive and legislative, which the Government of India now retain. These views have been reported to the Secretary of State, who has expressed his concurrence with them.

13. Provincial Borrowing.—The Royal Commission discussed the advisability of permitting local Governments to raise provincial loans in the open market. The majority of its members considered that the existing embargo on such loans should be maintained, but that local Governments should be granted short term loans from imperial revenues to meet the cost of large non-productive works of manifest utility which they cannot finance from their own resources. With the exception of the Government of Bombay, who were particularly anxious to obtain access to the open market, these views found general acceptance with the local Governments, and the Government of India are strongly of opinion that they should prevail. The question of loans from imperial funds has already been settled by means of the new provisions regarding provincial overdrafts which have been incorporated in the settlement rules. An overdraft on imperial balances will in future be treated as a short term loan, and it is precisely in connection with works of the kind contemplated by the Commission that such overdrafts will in future be sanctioned. The chief argument for the admission of local Governments to the open market lies in the claim that objects of purely provincial interest would succeed in attracting, at reasonable rates, capital which is not touched by the imperial loans. The truth of this argument could be tested by experience alone; though it is theoretically probable that a project which aroused local enthusiasm might tap resources which are not open to the Government of India. The drawbacks attaching to such an experiment are however very much greater than the possible advantages which might accrue from it. It would be extremely difficult to prevent a loan of the kind contemplated from competing with the imperial loans. The local market is narrow, the period of cheap money is confined to a few months of the year; and the loan business is mainly in the hands of a few large banks. On these grounds the Government of India have always been compelled to refuse to local authorities, such as Port Trusts and Municipalities, all access to the market during the months reserved for their own operations. Provincial loans would either have to be similarly held back until the Government of India had completed their own issues, a course which would certainly affect their prospects, or they would be floated simultaneously with the imperial loans, with depressing effect upon the prices of both.

11. A further objection to the flotation of provincial loans lies in the undesirability of increasing the non-productive debt of India. For really productive projects the Government of India are ordinarily prepared to find funds from their capital account, and the effect of allowing local Governments to enter the open market would undoubtedly be the creation of a considerable quantity of largely unproductive debt, which could not but injuriously affect the credit of India. The existence of a provincial public debt would, moreover, afford an inducement for lavish outlay upon public works and might thus lead up to a type of financial embarrassment which the Government of India could not view without grave concern. The experience of other countries has shown that debts of this kind tend to grow in volume until the magnitude of the loan charges either effects a material reduction in the margin available for current expenditure on public works or drives the Government into enhanced taxation. In these circumstances the Government of India are clearly of opinion that the grant of independent borrowing powers to local Governments should be deferred until a more distinct separation has taken place between the finances of the provincial and those of the central authority. The Secretary of State has expressed his general agreement with this view.

15. Borrowing by local bodies.—On the subject of borrowing by local bodies, the Royal Commission reviewed the existing practice with general approval and suggested two minor changes only:—

- (a) Local Governments should have final power to sanction the borrowing in the open market of sums not exceeding 5 lakhs and repayable within 30 years; and
- (b) the provision in section 2 of Act XII of 1897, which requires the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council to every loan under the Act, should be abrogated; general rules governing such loans should be drawn up under section 3 of the Act; and local Governments should then have power to sanction subject to compliance with these rules.

The former recommendation had reference to previous orders which directed that all proposals of local bodies for loans in the open market should be submitted to the Government of India, whose sanction was required in advance to the period of the loan, the date of issue and all other important features of the operation. Effect has already been given to the modifications advised by the Commission by the Notification in the Finance Department No. 6215-A., dated 30th October 1909. The second recommendation alluded to loans raised by the local authorities to meet such temporary emergencies as the occurrence of famine or the outbreak of dangerous epidemic disease. The Government of India have accepted the proposed change, and steps will be taken to carry it out. The rules to be prescribed under section 3 of Act XII of 1897 will be framed as soon as the necessary delegation has been made of the power vested by section 2 in the Governor General in Council.

16. Delegation to heads of departments of power of reappropriation.—In paragraph 96 of their Report the Royal Commission advised that, under certain conditions, the powers of reappropriation enjoyed by local Governments should be delegated by them to their heads of departments. The Government of India have accepted this view and have, with the approval of the Secretary of State, authorised local Governments and the Administrations of the Central Provinces, Baluchistan, the North-West Frontier Province, Ajmer-Merwara and Coorg to delegate to Boards of Revenue Financial Commissioners, and such other officers subordinate to them as have been declared to be heads of departments, the power of making reappropriations in connection with the budget grants of the branches of the administration which they control. It has been laid down that such reappropriations shall be of a routine character only and shall be made from one minor head to another within the same major head, and that the power shall be exercised subject to the following conditions :—

- (1) that savings under salaries and establishment shall not be reappropriated to other classes of expenditure ;
- (2) that savings on non-recurring expenditure under supplies and services, contingencies and other detailed heads shall not be reappropriated in order to provide for additional recurring expenditure under salaries or establishment, or on any other account ; and
- (3) that it will be open to the Government of India and local Governments to require, at any time of financial pressure, that the exercise by heads of departments of their powers of reappropriation shall be suspended.

These orders do not involve the curtailment of any more extended powers that may have already been delegated with the sanction of the Government of India to any authorities subordinate to local Governments and administrations.

17. Relaxation of the limits imposed on the spending powers of local Governments and Administrations.—In conclusion, the Government of India desire to intimate to local Governments that they have had under separate consideration the recommendations regarding the relaxation of the limits imposed on the spending powers of local Governments and Administrations which are contained in paragraphs 119 to 148 of the Royal Commission's Report. They have made extensive proposals for the increase of provincial powers in this connection which have met with the general approval of the Secretary of State ; and they hope soon to be in a position to issue separate orders on the subject.

ORDERED that a copy of the Resolution be communicated to all local Governments, the Honourable the Chief Commissioners, Central Provinces and Assam, the Home, Education, Commerce and Industry, Public Works and the Revenue and Agriculture Departments, the Comptroller and Auditor General, the several Civil Accountants General and the Comptrollers, Central Provinces and Assam.

Ordered also that this Resolution be published in the Gazette of India for general information.

DEPARTMENT OF REVENUE AND AGRICULTURE.

Rainfall summary for the seven days ending at 8 hrs. on Thursday, the 16th May 1912, based on the Indian Daily Weather Reports of the period.

1. A region of unsettled weather appeared in the southwest of the Bay of Bengal on the 10th, and in it there developed a storm which moved north-eastwards across the Bay and entered Bengal on the 15th. The storm had disappeared in southwest Bengal on the 16th, but a new disturbance was forming at the head of the Bay. Previously to the development of the storm, rainfall was chiefly due to local thunder showers which occurred in the extreme north, the north-central and northeast parts of the country, the Peninsula and Burma; but on the 11th rainfall began in Terai, Orissa, and subsequently extended northwards over practically the whole of Burma and north-east India. Heavy rainfall along the Arakan coast from the 13th to the 15th, and some heavy falls occurred also in north-east India and the interior of Burma. Local thunderstorms continued in the extreme south of the Peninsula and occurred at a few places in northern India after the development of the storm.

2. Temperature was markedly above normal in northwest India during the greater part of the week, and towards the end of the week these warm conditions extended over the central parts of the country, and the north of the Peninsula. On the approach of the storm from the southwest of the Bay, temperatures in Burma, northeast India and the United Provinces fell largely below normal.

3. Burma.—Only local thunder showers were recorded until the 11th, but from the 11th to the 14th, rainfall extended over almost the whole of the division, and was very heavy on the Arakan coast. On the 15th precipitation diminished, but continued heavy in parts.

Northeast India, including Orissa.—Local falls of rain occurred, chiefly in Bengal and Assam, until the 14th, after which date the storm from the Bay gave nearly general rainfall in these two areas, and local falls in Bihar and on the Orissa coast. Precipitation diminished on the 15th.

The United Provinces, Central India and the Central Provinces.—A few falls of rain were reported from the United Provinces and Central India.

Northwest India.—Some light precipitation occurred in Kashmir and the North-West Frontier Province, and a fall of hail was recorded at Jaipur on the 10th.

The Peninsula.—Numerous falls of rain occurred, chiefly in the extreme south, in the early part of the week, and occasional light rain was reported during the remainder of the week.

DEPARTMENT OF REVENUE AND AGRICULTURE.

Season and Crop Prospects for the week ending Saturday,
11th May 1912.

Burma.—Light showers fell in about half the number of districts in the Province while the other half received no rain. Reaping of spring rice is concluding and sowing of summer rice is completed. Other agricultural operations are proceeding normally. The condition of cattle and the state of standing crops are satisfactory. The price of unhusked rice is high and rising.

Assam.—The rainfall during the week was general and beneficial to cultivation and growth of crops. Sowing of rice and jute, planting of sugarcane and tea manufacture are in progress. Cattle disease is prevalent in six districts. The average price of rice has risen slightly.

Bengal.—Rain fell during the week all over the Province, except in Jessore, Khulna, Midnapore and Howrah. The fall was moderate in the Rajshahi and Dacca divisions and generally light elsewhere. Sowing of jute and autumn rice is still in progress. More rain is urgently wanted for this operation in Murshidabad, Jessore, Burdwan and Rajshahi. Damage to the mango crop is reported from Malda. The price of rice generally shows a tendency to increase. Cattle disease is reported from Nadia, Jessore, Malda, Dacca and Noakhali.

Bihar and Orissa.—Light rain fell in all the districts of the Province except Patna, Saran, Muzaffarpur, Darbhanga, Cuttack and Sambalpur. Preparation of land for the next season's crops still continues. Threshing of spring crops is approaching completion. Sowing of paddy is in progress. Sugarcane is doing well. The condition of other standing crops and vegetables is reported to be good. The price of common rice has risen in Gaya, Monghyr, the Sonthal Parganas, Sambalpur and Ranchi and has fallen in Darbhanga and Manbhum. Cattle disease is reported from Muzaffarpur, Bhagalpur, Angul, Puri, Sambalpur and Palamau. The supply of fodder and water is sufficient throughout the Province.

United Provinces.—Slight showers have fallen in some parts of the Provinces owing to hot weather storms. Threshing and winnowing are almost finished. Extra crops are flourishing and sugarcane is doing well. Sporadic cattle disease is reported from a few districts but the general condition of agricultural stock is good. The fodder and water supply is sufficient. The general level of prices shows a slight downward tendency.

Punjab.—The week was generally rainless. Harvesting of spring crops continue and the outturn is normal to good. The condition of standing crops is good. Sowings of extra spring and autumn crops are proceeding and are in time. They are generally normal in irrigated tracts and normal to below normal in unirrigated tracts. Cattle are generally healthy but fodder is still scarce. Prices remain high.

North-West Frontier Province.—The week was rainless and the weather hot and cloudy. The condition of standing crops is average on irrigated areas and poor on unirrigated areas. Harvesting of spring crops is in progress and the outturn is generally below average on unirrigated areas. Sowings of extra spring and autumn crops continue. Water began to flow in the Paharpur Canal. Cattle are in good condition. The fodder and water supply is sufficient. Prices are stationary in Bannu and are still high elsewhere.

Jammu.—Slight rain fell during the week. Prices are fluctuating. Wheat sells from 10 to 14 and maize from 12 to 23 seers per rupee. The condition of standing crops is fair. Fodder is sufficient.

Kashmir.—The weather is bright and warm. Slight rain fell on one occasion during the week and was beneficial to the next autumn crops. Zamindars are busy with sowings. Prices are unchanged. There is no disease among cattle. Fodder is average.

Rajputana.—The rainfall during the week was 60 cents in Jaipur and 29 to 51 cents in the Merwara district. Dikaner reports 20 to 32 cents during the previous week. The weather is hot and cloudy in places. Land is being prepared for autumn sowing. Cattle are suffering for want of pasture in parts of the Western States, Mewar and Jaipur Residencies. Pasturage and fodder are scarce in Merwara. Cattle disease prevails in parts of the Mewar Residency. The water supply is deficient in many places in Kotah and is diminishing in Merwara and the Hilly Tracts of Mewar. Prices are generally high and stationary.

Central India.—A very slight shower was received in Barwani in the Bhopawar Agency. The weather is hot and windy. Land is being prepared for autumn crops in the Gwalior, Indore, Malwa and Bhopawar Agencies. The outturn of crops is above normal in Bundelkhand and good elsewhere. Water is scarce in the Malwa and Bhopawar Agencies. Cattle disease is prevalent and fodder insufficient in parts of the Gwalior, Indore and Bhopawar Agencies. Prices have fallen slightly in Gwalior, are normal in Baghelkhand, fluctuating in parts of Indore and steady elsewhere. The report from Bhopal has not been received.

The weekly report on the famine and scarcity is as follows :—Distress continues but is not increasing. There is no wandering or emaciation. The condition of people is good. There is no influx of foreigners. Fodder is scarce. Prices of food grains are high in Kukshi and steady elsewhere. Juar and bajra sell at 11 to 12 seers per rupee. REPORT ON THE PATENT OFFICE.

No. 1289-P., dated Calcutta, the 26th April 1912

From—H. G. GRAVES, Esq., Controller of Patents and Designs,

To—The Secretary to the Government of India, DEPARTMENT OF COMMERCE AND INDUSTRY.

I HAVE the honour to submit, for the information of the Government of India, the Annual Report of the Patent Office during the calendar year 1911.

2. As the Indian Patents and Designs Act, 1911, came into force on the 1st January 1912, and this report of the working of the office is accordingly the last under the Inventions and Designs Act, 1888, it may be of interest to review very briefly the development of Patents and Designs in India. The first Indian Patent law was the Act of 1856, but, as it was not sanctioned by the Home Government, there was no effective law until the Act of 1859 for granting exclusive privileges to inventors was passed. That Act was based on the British Act of 1852 and continued until June 30th, 1888. Act V of 1888 came into force on the following day and in turn has been repealed by the Indian Patents and Designs Act, 1911. Just as the 1888 Act followed the lead given by the British 1883 Act, so the new Act is a sequel to the modifications in the law made by the Patents and Designs Act passed in 1907 in the United Kingdom. The enactment in India was delayed, mainly on account of urgent legislative business in other directions during the cold weather session of 1909-10.

3. The 1888 Act has been in force for 23½ years. During that time 11,679 applications were made for the protection of inventions, and in the words of the Act, an "exclusive privilege" was obtained in 9,113 cases. The development in the numbers has been considerable as will be seen in the detailed statement in appendix C. In 1890 the number of applications was 319. In 1911 the applications numbered 807. This increase was somewhat exceptional as compared with 667 applications of the previous year and in part it was due to the rush at the last moment of applicants from the United Kingdom who desired to obtain certain advantages by applying under the old Act.

4. The registration of designs, which was also effected under the 1888 Act, has a shorter history as it only dates back to the Patterns and Designs Protection Act of 1872. Owing to the high fees, no great advantage was taken of the provisions of the law for safeguarding proprietorship in designs. In fact the applications during the 23½ years of the 1888 Act numbered barely a thousand.

5. The Indian Patents and Designs Act, II of 1911, which will in future regulate the patenting of inventions and the registration of designs, was passed during the year under consideration. The Bill, on 3rd January 1911, was referred to a Select Committee consisting of the Hon'ble Mr. Syed Ali Imam, the Hon'ble Mr. Macpherson, the Hon'ble Mr. Graves, the Hon'ble Sir V. D. Thackersey, the Hon'ble Mr. Graham, the Hon'ble Mr. Mudholkar and the Hon'ble Mr. Robertson. I was nominated as an additional member of Council so as to serve on this Committee as the expert member. In Committee, in deference to opinion in India, a section was introduced under which a patent is liable to revocation if not worked in the country. Certain restrictions were, however, inserted to ensure that a patent should not be revoked unless there was a reasonable prospect of its being worked in India. The Select Committee reported on 23rd January 1911 and their report was presented by the Hon'ble Mr. Robertson in Council on the following day. On 1st March 1911 the report was taken into consideration, the Bill as amended was passed and received the assent of the Governor General.

6. A draft of the rules, which it was proposed to make in exercise of the powers conferred by Sections 57 and 77 (1) of the Act, was published in the Gazette of India, dated 24th June 1911, for the information of all persons likely to be affected. In response to this notice certain objections and suggestions were made and were taken into consideration in September by the Governor General in Council. As the result, a number of modifications were incorporated in the draft and the rules were finally made and published in the Gazette of India, dated 23rd September 1911. The rules were at once reprinted and placed on sale at a price of two annas per copy.

7. The office has been in my charge throughout the year. In September it was moved from 2, Bankshall Street to 1, Council House Street, Calcutta. With the able assistance of the staff the move was effected with the minimum dislocation of business.

8. During the year 807 applications were made for leave to file specifications and 605 specifications were filed. As stated above, the total number of applications under the present Act has been 11,679, and of specifications 9,113. Compared with 1910 the increase in the number of applications has been 140, but there have been 13 fewer specifications filed. The amount received as continuance fees, by payment of which existing privileges are kept in force, has increased by Rs2,650 and the total income of the office is better by Rs3,149-5-0.

9. The range of inventions covered by the applications was as wide as usual and the predominance in the railway and textile industries still persists. Improvements in flying machines find a small echo in India, where 12 applications were made. Other industries which received attention to the extent of a dozen or more applications, which is rather beyond the ordinary amount, are fuel, gas, indiarubber, locks, treating ores, talking machines and pumps.

10. Of the 807 applications made during the year, 53 related to inventions that prima facie did not appear to be novel. In accordance with the practice that is now well established the state of public knowledge was pointed out to the applicant, and he was given an opportunity of amending his application. Including 13 cases pending from the previous year, the result has been that 22 applications were abandoned, 13 were finally refused, and leave was granted in 17 cases, 14 being still pending. Altogether leave was granted on 528 of these 807 applications during the year, 15 were rejected, 21 abandoned and 243 were pending on December 31st. The percentage of those questioned, rejected and abandoned applications is fairly constant from year to year. 341 specifications were filed in respect of applications made during the year, while the balance 264 appertained to the applications of the previous years.

11. Exclusive privileges were kept alive after the fourth year by payment of prescribed fees in 714 cases, or 51 more than in the previous year, whilst 510 or 15 more than in 1910, ceased. Of the 9,113 specifications brought on the register, 2,917 are now in force, an increase of 95 as compared with 2,822 at the end of last year. Two exclusive privileges which were extended beyond the ordinary period of 14 years, are also still in force. The appended table shows the comparative age and number of these privileges for the various years.

12. Eighty-seven applications for the registration of designs were dealt with during the year, an increase of 51 as compared with 1910. Seventy-seven of these designs were registered. One application was abandoned and 9 were refused. The latter included one picture and 5 labels or trade marks which cannot be registered under the Inventions and Designs Acts. The annual number of applications in respect of designs has varied between 171 and 15. The relatively high fee of Rs10 is prohibitive of any marked increase and it is reduced under the new Act.

13. The work of the office has progressed satisfactorily and has been kept up to date during the year. The annual consolidated index of all inventions and designs, for which protection was sought or obtained during 1910, was issued early in the year. Corresponding volumes, entitled "Inventions and Designs," are at this date available for the years 1905 to 1911 at the price of Rs1 each. A consolidated subject-matter index of inventions in the years 1900 to 1908, together with a chronological list of applications, 1900 to 1904, is also on sale at Rs2.

14. Although the Inventions and Designs Act is repealed by the Indian Patents and Designs Act, proceedings on applications, made under the repealed Act, are continued as if the new Act had not been passed. Section 6 of the General Clauses Act (X of 1897) gives the necessary saving for rights, etc., obtained on such current and previous applications. Otherwise all applications made after December 31st, 1911, come under the new Act, which, at the date of this report, appears to be working satisfactorily.

15. The usual tables are appended.

Vithaldas Thackersey, M.L.A. (Bombay.)

sincerely hope, that, if this consummation is reached, it would diminish the pressure upon us for the coinage of fresh rupees and simplify our exchange difficulties. These in their turn are weighty considerations and they are considerations which affect the practical outlook of the business man, who does not delude himself into the idea that the mere opening of the mints to gold would immediately provide a door for the export of superfluous currency in the form of sovereigns when exchange goes against us. I do not myself see any near prospects of that measure of assistance; but I readily admit that the coinage of gold, if it leads to a substantial and growing increase of the active circulation, will carry us some way in that direction, and consequently in the direction of greater security and of greater stability.

"I have now, as I undertook to do, laid before the Council the pros and cons of this important and attractive subject. As I explained, I can at the moment do no more; because the whole question, with the views of the Government of India upon it, awaits the final decision of the Secretary of State.

"If his decision should meet the wishes of my Hon'ble friend, no one will be more gratified than the present Finance Minister."

The Hon'ble Sir Vithaldas Thackersey: "My Lord, I must recognize that the reply of the Hon'ble Finance Member is very satisfactory; and I may say that he has said more in support, he has brought forward more cogent arguments in support, of opening the mints to the free coining of gold, than I was able to do in my opening speech. I am perfectly satisfied with his assurance that he is doing his best to get the sanction of the Secretary of State, and therefore, with Your Lordship's permission, I beg to withdraw my motion for the present."

GOLD STANDARD RESERVE.

The Hon'ble Sir Vithaldas Thackersey then moved the further Resolution:

"That this Council recommends to the Governor General in Council that a substantial portion of the Gold Standard Reserve be held in gold in India."

He said:

"My Lord, this question has been threshed out so often in the past that I will not attempt to weary the Council with any lengthy remarks on this subject. All the Chambers of Commerce have times out of number demanded that our Gold Standard Reserve should be held in gold in India. They have more than once pointed out the danger of either diverting any amount of this to any other purpose or to investing it permanently in gold securities. They have further pointed out that, in case of panic or war, the gold may not be available to us when we badly want it, and in that case it might be difficult, if not absolutely impossible, for India to maintain a Gold Standard. In these days, when the sensitiveness of the money market has become proverbial, it is easily conceivable how great will be the loss that the people of this country would suffer, and to what great extent the prestige of Government would be lessened, if there was the slightest reason to doubt that the gold in the Gold Standard Reserve may not be readily available to maintain the exchange. All the labour of years in creating confidence in the outside world will be lost in a second. And for what purpose is all this risk incurred? My friend the Hon'ble Sir James Meston, who has always proved himself a capable and sound financier, and whose elevation to the Lieutenant-Governorship of the United Provinces is a matter of deep gratification to all of us, presented last year to this Council what he called the other side of the shield. He said that gold was located in London to simplify the duty of the Government of India in maintaining the gold value of the rupee, as when required to support our exchanges it would be immediately available. It had been mentioned, moreover, in the reply from the Government of India to the Bombay Chamber of Commerce in May 1907 that holding liquid gold in India would entail loss of interest which we at present earn by investment in gold securities. I will, therefore, with your Lordship's permission, deal also with this argument. The reply to the first argument is that the location of gold in India will not at all make the duty of the Government of India any more difficult in maintaining the gold value of the rupee. The call on this reserve is made only when it is required for export, and it will be as easy for the Government of India to deliver gold in India to those who want it in exchange for rupees as it is easy for the Secretary of State to deliver gold in London. If gold is required by the Secretary of State when he cannot sell Council Bills, it can be exported almost immediately. As to the second argument about earning interest, I need only repeat what has been so often and so unanimously said by all the Chambers of Commerce in India and by others who can speak with authority on this subject, that Government are taking a very great risk by this procedure. So long as things move smoothly and no storm breaks, this kind of investment may bring us some income; but it must not be forgotten, as the Bombay Chamber of Commerce wrote to Government in 1907, that the Gold Standard Reserve is being maintained for the sake of serious emergencies, and that, should such emergencies arise, it might very easily happen that it will be extremely difficult to realise rapidly the securities in England. Indeed, the state of the money market brought about by the very emergency would probably be considerably aggravated if it entailed the realising of a large quantity of British securities, whereas if the reserve was a metallic one the position could be at once relieved. My Lord, India is not the only country which has to maintain a metallic reserve of gold. The United States Treasury has the largest stock of gold held by any country in the world. On 31st December 1910, it amounted to over 233 millions sterling—over eleven times our Gold Standard Reserve. Does the United States Government invest it in gilt-edged securities? In the same way France and Russia have large Gold Reserves—certainly many times more than our reserve. Why do they not invest them? They rightly realise that their credit and honour and existence stand upon the Gold Reserve and they know that it may be required at any time in an emergency. I wish to speak with great respect of the Secretary of State's advisers. They are eminent and honourable men, but it is only necessary to mention the positions they occupy in the world of London finance to show that, human nature being what it is, they cannot be expected to be wholly free from a certain bias. Lord Inchcape is a Director of the National Provincial Bank of England—a very powerful Bank. Sir Felix Schuster, Baronet, is a Director of the German Bank of London, Limited, and also a Governor of the Union of London and Smith's Bank, Limited. Mr. Lawrence Currie is a managing partner in Glyn, Mills and Currie, Limited—a large and powerful private banking house. All those institutions are on the list of approved bankers and private individuals with whom according to the Hon'ble Finance Member all our cash balance is invested in London. Are the financiers of this Government less alert than the Secretary of State's advisers? But, my Lord, against the advice of these three eminent London financiers, the Secretary of State has before him the unanimous recommendation of independent experts well qualified to give sound advice on this subject who constituted the Indian Currency Committee over which Sir Henry Fowler presided. This recommendation was to the effect that any profit made on the coinage of rupees should be kept in gold as a Special Reserve. The Secretary of State is therefore incurring a very grave responsibility in disregarding independent advice.

"But, my Lord, this does not exhaust our cause for complaint. In addition to our Gold Standard Reserve, the Secretary of State has withdrawn 8½ million pounds of our Paper Currency Reserve and many million pounds more out of our Treasury balances over and above his budget requirements. The cash balances in the hands of the Secretary of State in London in January

GOLD STANDARD RESERVE.

[Sir Vithaldas D. Thackersey.]

1912 amounted to 17½ million pounds sterling, and this year till the 20th instant the Secretary of State has drawn 3½ million pounds in excess of this year's requirements for Home charges, and still we have 10 days to run in this financial year. What is the object in withdrawing such large amounts from India? In reply to the Hon'ble Mr. Armstrong's question in Simla in September last inquiring whether much larger cash balances were now held in the Home Treasury than formerly, and if so, the reasons for this, the Hon'ble Finance Member gave, amongst other explanations, 'the heavy sales of Council Bills and telegraphic transfers in excess of the requirements of the Home Treasury.' My Lord, this explanation explains nothing. It is only a paraphrase of the question. In busy seasons, while India clamours for money, and while the Bank rate of interest on the security of Government paper goes up to 8 per cent. per annum, while the industry and commerce of the country suffer by the high rate of interest and sometimes find difficulty in getting money at all, the Secretary of State keeps millions and millions of our cash invested by him at a nominal rate of interest with the London bankers and financiers. A more unsatisfactory policy it is difficult to conceive. If even a portion of the amount lying in London had been available with our bankers here, the present stringency of the money market would not have arisen and the commerce and industry of the country would greatly have benefited. Apart from the interests of commerce and industry, which must be dear to us, is it to the interest of Government itself and to the credit of India that such a monetary stringency should be allowed to happen when we have the means of relieving it? Is it to India's credit that on the security of its own promissory notes the holders should have to pay in the busy season a high rate of 8 to 9 per cent. per annum, which is more than double the rate paid by Government? How can we expect under such circumstances that Government paper should be more popular? In England, every one, from the Chancellor of the Exchequer down to the humble banker and financier, is seriously concerned about the steps to be taken to make the British Consols more popular. At present that is the principal topic in England. We in India export our available capital to London and starve our banking institutions to the detriment of the popularity of our own paper. If means can be adopted by which we can prevent the enormous rise of the rate of interest in the busy season, I am sure, and that is the opinion of many bankers, that the price of Government paper would stand at a much higher figure than now. Apart from this consideration, we have to bear in mind that this periodical tightness of the money market is a great hindrance to our industrial progress. Violent fluctuations are always to be deprecated. In Great Britain, while the Bank rate varies from 3 per cent. to 5 per cent. in the busy season, a difference of 2 per cent., in India it varies from 3 per cent. to 8 per cent., a difference of 5 per cent. I find from the reply to-day that about 2½ per cent. is the average rate of interest with the London financiers.

"My Lord, this craving for India's money in London is so great and the Secretary of State is so much influenced by the London money market that his Council to-day may be said to be one of the biggest financial houses in London. It is impossible to describe the financial operations of the Secretary of State's Council in better words than those used by Lord Morley himself who, on May 10th last, was the principal guest at the annual dinner of the English Association of Bankers. It is a reported speech. He said (after dinner.) (This is not an after dinner topic, but I may as well speak of it, if you will allow me.) He said:—

'I think that even many of you, experienced men as you are, will be rather astonished at the magnitude of the India Office figures. The cash balance at the present term is £18,750,000—not rupees, but pounds—and of that £8,350,000 is placed on deposit at 2 to 3 months' credit, and nearly £10,000,000 is lent to first class firms on unimpeachable security from three to five weeks' notice. The maturing and re-lending of these sums cause a cash business which amounts to £60,000,000 a year. There are other details with which I will not burden you, but the India Office is responsible in the year 1910-11 for £160,000,000 (240 crores of rupees). There are other details of further management of accumulated funds of Gold Standard Reserve in this country, which amounts to upwards of £17,000,000, and of Paper Currency Reserve, which amounts to £7,500,000. It is obvious, Gentlemen, that the influence of the money market on the movement of these very large sums must be considered, and large temporary and permanent investments of Indian balances of various kinds must affect, to a very considerable degree indeed, the rate of discount and the movement of the prices of securities. I only venture to bring that to your attention as showing how deeply you are all concerned in the prudent, judicious management of the finances of the India Office.

‘ I only bring that before you in order to prevent anybody in India saying “ Ah ! you have these enormous figures, this £160,000,000 but you are dealing with our figures. ” Yes, we are dealing with their figures in a sense, but we are dealing with British capital for the most part. However, that may be, we are dealing with it to the enormous material advantage of the population concerned.’

“ My Lord, the passage which I have quoted shows clearly that the India Office, in addition to its regular duties as a supervising agency, has undertaken the duties also of being a great banking house for financing the London money market. 160 million pounds, as Lord Morley says, is an enormous figure and it is not to be expected that those who control these investments will be easily persuaded to relax their hold on our money and leave it free to return to India. I realise therefore that the Secretary of State may have to face a very strong opposition before he could consent to the proposition which my resolution embodies. But I am confident, knowing as we do now so much about Lord Crewe after his recent visit to India and his desire to do everything in his power to advance Indian interests, that he will stand up for India's right against such opposition.

“ Lord Morley anticipated a natural objection from India that he was dealing with our figures, and went on to reply that he was dealing with British capital. This is surely a novel statement.

“ The whole of our Gold Standard Reserve, amounting to nearly 18 million pounds, which is in England is the accumulation of our profits on the coinage of rupees. We have circulated amongst the people a rupee with an intrinsic value of only annas ten, and the balance of annas six is carried to the Gold Standard Reserve. Is this British capital ? Then, again, we have about 2½ million pounds of our Paper Currency Reserve invested in England in addition to 5½ millions in gold earmarked for the Paper Currency. Is that British capital ? Then, again, the large cash balances of the Secretary of State accumulated by the heavy sales of Council Bills and Telegraphic Transfers in excess of the requirements of the Home Treasury. Is that British capital ? I fail to understand the cogency of this argument. If you say that because India raises loans for railways in England and therefore you should invest all these funds there, I would ask are the loans raised there on business principles and do those who buy our paper do it as a sort of investment for themselves or are they doing it to oblige us ? Do Canada, Australia, South Africa and other British Colonies not raise loans in England ? Do they maintain in England a financial house to finance, out of their own surplus money, the London market, or do they use their money for the development of their own country ? The same argument applies to the loans raised by other foreign countries in the London market.

“ My Lord, if our Gold Standard Reserve is kept in India in gold, we may be able in times of emergency to be of service to the London money market, while under the present policy, in time of emergency we may increase their difficulties by our necessity to withdraw the gold. A big money market like London will not be adversely affected by the gradual withdrawal of gold in normal times, but in times of trouble it may feel the pinch. With our gold in India, London will keep its necessary stock of gold in the usual way, and in times of trouble we can help them with our gold, which will be an extra reserve. So looking from the point of view of England itself, it is an advantage that our gold should remain in India. There is a further advantage if our Gold Reserve is in India. Government have tried to popularise currency notes and meet the wishes of the Commercial communities by making universal currency notes up to the value of Rupees 100. They have not been able to make all currency notes universal because of the difficulty of meeting the demand of coins on presentation. With a large quantity of our gold in India and distributed over all important centres in addition to the Currency Reserve, our power of successfully meeting any demand for coins will be enormously increased. As years pass and people get used more and more to gold coins, it may be possible to make all currency notes universal. It will be an enormous advantage to trade and commerce, and at the same time it will still further popularise paper currency and largely increase its circulation. Those requiring rupees for small business will get them by tendering gold coins just as they get small change and copper by representation of rupees. Time does not permit me to develop up this argument any further, but I hope I have been able to show that it is both to the advantage of India and England that our Gold Standard Reserve should be held in gold in India.

GOLD STANDARD RESERVE.

[22ND MARCH, 1912.] [Sir Vithaldas D. Thackersey; Mr. Gokhale;

The Hon'ble Mr. Gokhale: "My Lord, I wish to express my entire concurrence with my Hon'ble friend in all he has said. He has stated the case with that clearness and practical ability which always distinguish his utterances, and I do not think anything more need be added to what he has said. I heartily support his Resolution."

The Hon'ble Mr. Dadabhoy: "My Lord, I cordially support this Resolution. The Hon'ble Sir Vithaldas has very forcibly and lucidly pointed out the injustice that follows to India from the investment of, at a nominal rate of interest, the bulk of the gold of the Gold Standard Reserve, while money is scarce here and the Bank rate of interest upon demand loans reaches at times the high figure of 9 per cent. It is admitted that liquid capital is what is most needed in this country, and one of the principal reasons for the Government anxiety at the falling exchange 20 years ago was that it retarded the flow of sterling capital here. Now that sterling exchange has steadied and Government holds a large amount of cash in the Gold Standard Reserve, much larger than is necessary to ensure success to the currency measures, the request does not appear extravagant that a substantial part of the Reserve should be held in India. The greater portion of the Reserve now helps to ease the stringency of the London market, and obviously such operations are not required for the support of exchange. Why should not then effect be given to the proposal? The industrial and commercial interests of India are a matter of supreme concern to the Government. When therefore it lies in their power to promote them by relieving the stringency of the Indian money market by timely and temporary advances to the banks out of the superfluity of the Gold Standard Reserve, it is only reasonable to expect that Government will listen to our prayer. The Hon'ble mover has drawn our attention to some of the disagreeable features of the present situation, as also to the heavy odds against which we have to fight in inducing a change of policy in respect of the management of the Reserve. We all sincerely hope and trust Government will resist the adverse and interested influences, and do to India that justice which is her due."

"My Lord, the proposal does not involve any serious departure from that cautious policy which has secured to us a steady exchange. The scheme of which the Reserve is an integral part does not require the maintenance of a bigger reserve in London than £5,000,000. The highest figure suggested by experts was £10,000,000. In 1893, when the closure of the Indian mints to the free coinage of silver initiated a new policy of currency reform, the idea of a Gold Standard Reserve was not entertained by Government. In fact, as has been pointed out by many, we had a gold standard years after. The proposals which were ultimately adopted by Government after the failure of the currency legislation of June 1893 to make the rupee convertible at 1s. 4d., had been first made public in 1876 by Mr. A. M. Lindsay, as pointed out by the Hon'ble Finance Minister this morning. After the slump in the sterling value of the rupee laid on the shoulders of this Government extraordinarily heavy financial liabilities. Mr. Ottomar Haupt of Paris, following the recent precedent of Austria-Hungary, suggested in the Financial Times certain relief measures, the principal feature of which was the closure of the mints."

Then came the expert Committees, but apparently all to no good purpose. In January 1893, however, the Madras Chamber of Commerce submitted to this Government for consideration Mr. Lindsay's scheme, whereby a gold standard could be adopted without a gold currency by the maintenance in London of a small reserve on the strength of which bills could be drawn upon India. This scheme was finally adopted by Government. It will be noted that in the original scheme a large reserve like the one we now have was not contemplated. The author, Mr. Lindsay, followed Ricardo both as regards the general plan and the amount of reserve. In Scotland and Ireland, where similar exchange difficulties had been experienced in the latter half of the eighteenth century and removed by arrangements with the Bank of England for the maintenance of gold funds, the reserve was never large. The Parliamentary Committee of 1804, consisting of Pitt, Fox, Foster and others, inquired into the whole question of the Irish currency, and recommended the creation of a small gold fund in London for the purpose of assuring fixity to exchange. Two members of the Indian Currency Committee, Lords Farrer and Welby, suggested in an Appendix to the Committee's Report the creation of a Gold Standard Reserve. But a large fund was not contemplated. So far as the legitimate functions of the Reserve were concerned, the consensus of expert opinion, no doubt, was that it should be held in London. But this does not militate against Sir Vithaldas's proposal. The Hon'ble mover does not propose that the whole of the Reserve should be transferred to India. His recommendation of transfer relates only to a substantial portion. And to this there could not be any reasonable objection. The present strength of the Reserve is already superfluous. We do not require such a large gold holding in London for the stability of the sterling exchange. The contingency is extremely unlikely that an adverse exchange would force the hands of the Secretary of State to exhaust the whole of a Reserve of five millions pounds sterling, and would compel this Government to send back the gold belonging to the Reserve transferred here from London according to the suggestion of Sir Vithaldas. Moreover, as a matter of fact, a substantial portion of the Reserve is now employed, as the Hon'ble Member has shown, in financing the London Banks. This is a purpose so obviously extraneous to the central object that the removal of that portion to India would not have the slightest influence, either present or prospective, upon sterling exchange. We do not object to Government putting as much spare cash as it can command to the Reserve. Our only grievance is, although built up at our cost, the country is deprived of the use of the Reserve in times of acute tightness."

The Hon'ble Sir Guy Fleetwood Wilson : " I congratulate my Hon'ble friend Sir Vithaldas on this second excursion into the regions of pure finance and on the vigour and lucidity with which he has handled a subject of no small intricacy and difficulty. He has, as I have already said, the advantage of me in the freedom with which he can speak on subjects upon which my position, and the position of the Government of India, in relation to the Secretary of State in Council, compels me to caution and even to silence. He must not therefore misjudge me if I cannot follow him over all the field which he has opened for us in the speech to which we have just listened. It would, for example, be wholly out of place for me to discuss his views regarding the financial advisers of the Secretary of State, and the influence which they exercise on the disposition of our Indian resources. The responsibility of the Secretary of State in Council is one and undivided, and I at any rate cannot discuss his policy as if it were the policy of individuals. I can only undertake to place before the Secretary of State the expert financial opinion which the Hon'ble gentleman represents in India, and to ask that it receives due consideration along with the expert opinion which His Lordship obtains in England.

" Nor, even if I had the same freedom as my Hon'ble friend, would it be possible for me in the time at my disposal to examine with sufficient care the wide variety of topics over which he has ranged. Let me take, for example, the question of our high balances. I am quite at one with Sir Vithaldas in holding that high treasury balances, whether held in England or in India, are in ordinary circumstances wrong and wasteful.

GOLD STANDARD RESERVE.

[22ND MARCH, 1912.] [Sir Guy Fleetwood Wilson.]

"High balances in ordinary circumstances are an indication that we have borrowed more than is actually necessary. But it would require a somewhat detailed analysis to place the Council in a position to judge whether the recent history of our treasury balances justifies this rather severe condemnation. I should have to point out to what extent money has been accumulated in London to meet large payments for the redemption of railway debentures which shortly fall due; I should have to connect our opium windfall with the India Bills which I hope we are now on the eve of withdrawing; and I should no doubt have to add a number of other qualifications before I could answer with confidence the point which my Hon'ble friend has taken. Similarly with his arguments in favour of lending out our balances to banks in India; this is also a question to which there are two sides, and an examination of it would involve a lengthy and probably a somewhat dull dissertation on the metallic basis of credit in our Indian money market. To take only one other instance of the wide range of my friend's speech, I should have to go in some detail into the theory of the convertibility of our currency notes, if I were going to attempt an adequate reply to his suggestion for a wider dispersal of our gold resources as a reserve against our paper currency.

"I must, however, avoid these and other fascinating byc-paths into which the Hon'ble Member invites me to stray. And I must return to the literal phrasing of his motion, namely, that a substantial portion of the Gold Standard Reserve should be held in India. Now, I take it that, if Sir Vithaldas had his own way, he would transfer 10 or 15 millions sterling from London to Calcutta. It would come out in sovereigns, and we should then have to decide whether to keep it in sovereigns or to lend it out, as in London, to the banks and on approved short term securities. My Hon'ble friend has not said definitely which of these two courses he would follow; but from the general tenor of his arguments, I gather that he would not be averse to assisting the industry of India on reasonable terms. He has drawn attention, in the most reasonable and proper manner, to the great fluctuations in the rates of interest in this country, and to the prejudicial effect which these fluctuations must have on trade and business. He believes that a more liberal handling of the Government balances would steady the position; and I may, therefore, for the sake of argument, assume that he would not be unwilling to see our Gold Standard Reserve, or some part of it, lent out on approved security. Now, if this happened, it is quite possible that the market would be materially assisted for the moment; a fillip would be given to business; and for a time the severity of the bank rate might be mitigated. But let us see precisely what this would mean, and what would be the consequence when conditions changed. Our gold would be dissipated; it would have passed not only out of our own hands, but out of the hands of the larger banks, and would have flowed down the infinite number of small channels through which our currency trickles to the millions of producers in the country. So far all has gone well; but a bad year comes—and in India there is a tragic periodicity about bad years—and the whole situation changes; or there is a crisis in international finance, and the markets for our exports are temporarily closed. The occasion would thus present itself for the use of our gold. We should be asked to export it promptly and in large quantities to prevent a wholesale collapse of exchange. But where should we turn for it in response to this demand? We should have to realise our securities; we should have to call it in from the banks. The sovereign would already be, as it always is when the balance of trade is against us, at a premium; it would have practically disappeared from circulation; and large quantities would be obtainable only with the greatest difficulty. By calling in our stock, we should at once raise the premium on gold; we should increase alarm and we should precipitate a panic. The very people on whom we were foreclosing would be those who could worst afford to meet our claims. Exchange would go down with a rush, and commercial disaster might follow. I can imagine no more calamitous position than to have our Gold Standard Reserve, or any substantial part of it, out of our own hands in this country at a time of real difficulty.

GOLD STANDARD RESERVE.

"But let us take the other alternative. Let us assume that we are able to resist the desire of the market for our gold, and to maintain it in fluid form. We should then have large quantities of sovereigns shut up in the vaults of Fort William, dormant and inaccessible. In this condition they would remain until required for export in support of exchange. Now, what would happen when they are so required? Presumably, the demands for bills on London would be greater than the supply, and our import merchants would come to us and buy our sovereigns, in order to send them to London in the absence of bills at a reasonable price. They would obtain sovereigns from us; they would then have to arrange for freight; they would have to insure the consignments; and they would have to bear the burden of interest in the interval between the purchase of the gold and its delivery to their creditors in Europe. They would thus pay all expenses of freight, insurance and interest, besides the risk of loss or delay in transit. Would your import merchant prefer this process to the alternative process of coming to our Comptroller General and buying a telegraphic transfer on London, which could be cashed with absolute security by his creditor next day?

"I think there is little doubt which of these two alternatives the ordinary business man would prefer. It would almost certainly be the latter; and the latter is precisely what the Government of India offer to the mercantile public under existing arrangements, while the former is what my friend Sir Vithaldas would substitute for it. It seems to me that there is no real comparison between the inconvenience on the one hand of having gold locked up here, six thousand miles from the point where it is wanted and where it can be effectively employed, and the convenience on the other hand of holding a large quantity of gold or securities which presumably closely approach gold in their stability, which we are in a position to sell by cable the moment that it is wanted and at the place where it is going to be used.

"Sir Vithaldas has supported his arguments by a number of subsidiary considerations in favour of moving our gold from London to India. He points out, for example, that other great countries keep large reserves of liquid gold in their strongholds. I am not quite clear of the extent to which he is thinking of gold which is stored by Government to provide for the encashment of convertible notes, and I think it will be found that, in the countries which he mentions, a considerable proportion of their holdings is necessitated by the size of their paper currency. He also urges that our gold would be useless to us in London in the event of war or panic. If by panic he means an acute financial crisis, I can only repeat what I have said before in another connection, that the Secretary of State has deliberately accepted full responsibility for making the reserve available when required for the purpose for which it was created. In the event of war, I do not see how our gold would be in any degree more useful in India than in London. If the trouble were in this country, we should have all the anxiety and expense of protecting it. If the war were in Europe, it might be perfectly impossible to ship gold from India to the European markets, and it would remain useless in our hands. Finally, Sir Vithaldas has alluded to the feeling that the gold reserve is our own money and that, as a matter of national pride, it should be in our own country as a visible possession. I know that such a sentiment exists, and I am far from despising sentiment even in financial matters; but I cannot seriously think that it should be weighed for a moment against the practical convenience and value of holding our gold in the place where it can best serve the interests of India. It is for this reason that I much regret that I am unable to accept the Hon'ble Member's motion."

The Hon'ble Sir Vithaldas D. Thackersey : "My Lord, I very much regret that Government are not willing to accept my Resolution. I shall not long detain the Council in reply to the several arguments advanced by the Hon'ble Finance Member, because the impression left on my mind at the end of his speech was, that the arguments he advanced against the proposition were so weak that I need not go into the details of them. I only therefore touch two or three points in his speech. He said that the policy that was followed in London was the policy of the Secretary of State in Council and not of individual members. I did not at all say in my speech that it was not so. The policy, of course, is the Secretary of State's policy; but what I pointed out was that the Secretary of State was advised by people who had also other than India's interests to guard. The statement* which the Hon'ble Member has placed before us in reply to my Hon'ble friend Mr. Armstrong's question clearly confirms my contention. It shows that over 10½ million pounds sterling have been lent to approvers, not necessarily joint stock banks, and that about 3¼ millions have been deposited with approved banks. On 3 out of the 6 approved banks as mentioned in the statement the Secretary of State's advisers sit as Directors or as Governors. I leave it to the Council to judge whether a man can act in two positions very justifiably. If we put the managers of the Bank of Bombay and the Bank of Bengal and the Bank of Madras on Your Lordship's Council, I am quite sure they will give strong reasons why our money should be brought here, and they will point out to the Hon'ble the Finance Member excellent securities on which those funds can be lent. I have not the slightest doubt that our money in England is being lent on good securities; but I say that we can lend money also on good securities in India with great advantage to ourselves. I will just read a few lines, from a report published in the Times of India, of an incident during an instructive discussion of Indian commerce following a well supported dinner of the London Chamber of Commerce at the Trocadero in February last, which shows how things move :

'Soon after we had a somewhat amusing reminder that, in monetary matters at least, the sense of reciprocal obligation to India is not so strong as it might be on the part of those who represent city banking interests on the India Council. Giving as a reason for the inadequacy of the flow of British capital into India, the existence even now of the old prejudices having their origin in the instability of the rupee, Sir Felix Schuster, member of the Secretary of State's Council, said that the duty of Government was to support the policy their predecessors laid down by building up their currency reserves in times of prosperity, so that exchange might stand severe tests such as that through which it passed two or three years ago. Someone (I think it was Mr. G. W. R. Forrest) called out, "yes, build up the gold reserve in India." The shaft went home, and Sir Felix, thrown off his habitual guard, made a remark he would much rather have left unsaid, as was clear from the incompleteness of his sentence: "Not only in India," he retorted, "but on our side as well; we can do with it here, and I sometimes wonder" (he left the sentence incomplete).'

"My Lord, we say we can do with it here to the greater advantage of India.

"Then the second point in the Hon'ble Member's speech was that if we brought all our gold to India, when the balance of trade went against us, we should have to export gold, and that would be a great inconvenience to merchants. I admit the cogency of the argument so far, but, during the last 11 or 12 years, how many times have we had to send gold to England? It was only in one year, in 1908, and every other year we have been accumulating our gold standard reserve. Only once in 11 or 12 years if there is any occasion for merchants to export gold, that cannot be called any great inconvenience compared with the great benefit which India would derive with a gold reserve here. Then he said that merchants would prefer telegraphic transfers instead of exporting gold. I did not propose that we should export gold always. In the usual way the Secretary of State would draw on India his Council Bills, and the money necessary to be sent out to England for home charges would be drawn in the usual way, and for that purpose you have not to export gold. It is only when the balance of trade goes against us that the occasion will arise, and that is very rarely, say once in 15 or 20 years. Again we are told that the Secretary of State has taken full responsibility for the present policy. Well, that does not satisfy us. Whoever may take the full responsibility, the everyday loss is ours, and we are not quite satisfied by simply an assertion that those who manage our currency and our reserve, assure us that in time of war or emergency our gold will be made available. We say we want it here, it is our gold, and it ought to remain here. I have already pointed out in my speech that all civilized countries in the world have gold reserves, and I will give you a few figures: United States treasury 233 million pounds, Russia 130 million pounds, France 131 million pounds, Australia 55 million pounds, Bank of England 31 million pounds, and so on. The real reason is that the gold reserve in the London Bank is so low that they cannot afford to send our gold here. We must recognise this; it is no use arguing against facts. The London gold reserve is only 31 million pounds, and the London financiers fear that they might be inconvenienced. My personal opinion is that they won't feel the pinch, if we withdraw our gold gradually. At the same time they will feel the pinch more if we have to withdraw our gold in times of emergency, and it is for England's sake also that our gold should be here. At least twice or thrice, the Bank of England had to go to France for gold. Well, I think it would increase the prestige of Great Britain to come to India for gold rather than to go to France or any other foreign country for gold in times of emergency. My Lord, although Government may not be able to accept this proposition as a whole, I hope the Government of India will take seriously into consideration the position in which the industries are placed in India in the busy season owing to the rise in the rate of interest. I have already said that the Bank rate goes up to 8 or 9 per cent. I will read to you a paragraph from the speech of the Hon'ble Sir James Begbie, who is the senior banker in India, and whose excellent work has been recognised by Government only the other day by honouring him. He said :

' You also know that as regularly as one season succeeds another, Bank rate rises from the minimum in the monsoon months to its maximum in the winter and spring months, and that the maximum may be anything from seven to nine per cent., nine per cent. being the highest point for a good many years past. It is inevitable under conditions in India that this regular waxing and waning of Bank rate should occur, but is it inevitable that the movement should be so extreme and especially that the rate should be so constantly forced to such high levels? I think not. The greatest factor in forcing up the rate is the great volume of money that is taken off the market by Government and locked away in the Treasury vaults. That money is released in bulk only through payments for Council bills, that is, after the public have either voluntarily sold their produce for export or been obliged to part with it under the pressure of a high Bank rate as frequently happens.'

" I hope the Government of India will seriously consider this position, and devise some policy by which the Bank rate may not go so high. Even our high cash balance in India might be utilized for the purpose, but I think the rate of interest in India ought not to rise above $5\frac{1}{2}$ or 6 per cent.

" My Lord, I think the question is of such great importance that I hope the Council will accept my Resolution."

INDIAN COMPANIES BILL.

The Hon'ble Mr. Clark: "Sir, I move for leave to introduce a Bill to consolidate and amend the law relating to trading companies and other associations.

"Government, Sir, hold that the time is now ripe for a further revision and consolidation of company legislation in this country. The existing law on the subject in India is contained in the Indian Companies Act of 1882, which was modelled on the English law in force in 1877. Since 1882, the Indian law has been added to by four amending Acts dealing with matters of relatively minor importance, while the substantial additions which have been made to the English law by a long series of Acts passed between 1879 and 1908 have not, with the exception of the matters contained in the four amending measures to which I have just referred, found a place in the Indian law. In England, since 1882, there have been no less than thirteen amending Acts, culminating in 1907 with a comprehensive amending Act based on the recommendations of a strong Committee among the members of which were some of the most eminent company lawyers of the day. This Act was followed by the Companies Consolidation Act of 1908, which consolidated the English law into a convenient code. The differences which now consequently exist between the Indian and the English law, in themselves form strong ground for legislation. Ever since we have had any company legislation in India, the advantages of having our company law as similar as possible to the English law has been recognised by the Indian Legislature. The Indian Act of 1857 was a reproduction of the English Joint Stock Companies Act of 19 and 20 Victoria. The Indian Act of 1866 copied the English Act of 1862; and the Indian Act of 1882 (the present Act) followed, as I have already said, the additions made in the English law up to 1877. The advantages of such assimilation are evident. The English law has been studied and commented on comprehensively, and in adopting it, we also inherit the wisdom of the many learned persons who have devoted their time to its exposition; and when it is necessary to carry a case up to the Privy Council, it is manifestly convenient that the law which is to be argued in English should be substantially the same as the English law. Assimilation of the law also tends to produce a feeling of greater security in the breast of the British investor whose capital we wish to attract to this country. As the Board of Trade pointed out in a Memorandum on the Company Laws of the Empire laid before the Imperial Conference of 1907, assimilation "would tend to increase the confidence of the home investor in companies registered in India and in the Colonies, and the result might well be a greater willingness on the part of capital from home to flow into Indian and Colonial undertakings and enterprises.

"Since 1882, there has been a great increase in the number of joint stock companies in India. In 1885-86, there were only 757 companies at work with a paid up capital of 21 crores. In 1910-11, there were 2,251 companies with a paid up capital of 64 crores; in other words, the number of companies and their paid up capital has trebled since the legislation of 1882 came into force. I think it will be generally recognised that with this great increase in business, with the evidence before us of the frequent amendments in company legislation which it has been found necessary to make in England, Government cannot be held to have been premature in having taken up the amendment of the company law of India.

[Mr. Clark.]

"From what I have said, Hon'ble Members will have anticipated that the Bill follows very closely the provisions of the English Act of 1908. We have not only adopted its principles but have aimed at reproducing as far as possible its language and arrangement. We have, however, preserved the provisions of the Indian Act in certain instances where the law of this country can claim to be more advanced than its elder sister, and we have added two entirely new provisions of some importance to which I shall presently refer.

"The Government of India took up the matter in 1909 and a circular letter was addressed to all Local Governments and Administrations asking for their opinions as to the suitability of the provisions of the English Act for adoption in India. The proposal to legislate has met with practically unanimous support from the authorities consulted. Such criticisms as have been made have been mostly in the direction of suggesting that the English law does not go far enough and that Government should take greater powers of control. A somewhat different point of view has been put forward by the Bengal Chamber of Commerce, and it is one which deserves careful consideration. The Committee of the Bengal Chamber suggest that it is questionable whether such an elaborate procedure as is prescribed by the Act of 1908 is necessary or desirable in India, and they thought that in the Indian Bill it should be possible to omit some of the details prescribed in the English Act. The Committee, however, preferred not to make any definite proposals as to matters which might be omitted until they had seen the actual Bill. The Government of India recognise the importance of the point, but it has seemed better to leave the question over until they have received the detailed suggestions of the Chamber after they have had the opportunity of fully examining the Bill.

"I now turn to the other class of criticism, namely, that the English law does not go far enough in the direction of State control. Suggestions of very varying scope have been made to us, some of which go so far as almost to require Government to undertake that a company should pay satisfactory dividends to its shareholders. As I said in connection with the Assurance measures which have just passed through this Council, I fully recognise that in India the State must be prepared to accept heavier responsibilities than in western countries, but I hope I shall carry with me the approval of Council when I say that in such legislation as this, the ideal to be aimed at is the minimum of State interference compatible with the due protection of the investor. We have included two, and only two, provisions working in this direction which do not appear in the British Act. Two may seem a small number, but they are both provisions of some considerable importance.

"Clause 109 of the English Act provides that the Board of Trade may appoint one or more competent inspectors to investigate the affairs of any company on the application of a certain proportion of the shareholders. In the Indian Bill we propose to go further, and to provide also that where the Registrar, on perusal of any document which the company is required to submit to him, considers that any further information or explanation is necessary, and where, after calling on the company to submit such information, he either does not receive it or is of opinion that an unsatisfactory state of affairs is disclosed, he shall report the circumstances of the case in writing to the Local Government, and it shall be open to the Local Government to appoint an inspector. By making this provision for an inspector to be appointed without any action being taken on the part of the shareholders, we hope to some extent to guard against abuses creeping in through apathy and lack of initiative on the part of the shareholders, who in India cannot be accepted to be so alive to their own interests as in an European country.

"The other matter is in connection with auditors. In sections 112 and 113 of the English Act, the appointment, remuneration, powers and duties of auditors are fully provided for, but nothing is said as to the qualifications of the men who are to act as auditors. In India the question of their qualifications is one of supreme importance. The Bombay Chamber of Commerce referred to it in their letter on the subject of this legislation, and I had the further advantage of discussing it with their Committee, as the Hon'ble Sir Vithaldas Thackersey will remember, when I was last in Bombay. What we propose is, in adopting the English provisions, also to provide in the Bill that no person, other than a person holding a certificate from a Local Government entitling him in that behalf, shall be appointed auditor of a company. In this country it would clearly be going too far to lay down that no one should act as an auditor who is not a Chartered or Incorporated Accountant. Such a provision would mean an undue restriction on business. But we hope by requiring such certification by a Local Government to establish a standard which will at least facilitate the elimination of the incompetent by the refusal or the cancellation of the certificate. I am also to say that the Government have under consideration a scheme for starting schools of accountancy for the training of auditors at suitable centres under the control of Local Governments and for the establishment of examinations in connection with the proposed Government certificate. My Hon'ble Friend the Member for Education is interesting himself in this matter, and we hope that a scheme on these lines will not only produce in time a sufficiency of thoroughly qualified accountants to meet the increasing demands for such work in India, but will also result in opening up a lucrative field of employment for Indians who should be well adapted for the work but at present enjoy few facilities to become qualified.

"These are the only two matters in which Government as at present advised propose to go further under this head than the English law, but I ought to point out that by the mere adoption of that law as it stands, we are greatly improving the present safeguards, especially in the direction of affording shareholders closer control over companies in the earlier stages of their formation. I will briefly mention the more important of these provisions. The first is the 'statutory meeting' which every company limited by shares and registered after the commencement of the Act is required to hold within a period of six months from the date on which it is entitled to commence business. At least ten days before this meeting is held, the Directors have to forward to every member of the company a report called the 'statutory report', which must be certified to by not less than two Directors of the company and must contain certain specified items of information regarding the position and constitution of the company. These provisions thus compel the Directors to let the shareholders know the exact financial position in the early stages of the company's history. The provisions in regard to the appointment and qualifications of Directors have been made much more stringent, and clauses dealing with the prospectus of a company require much fuller information to be given than heretofore including among other items the names of Directors and their interest in the company, the estimated amount of preliminary expenses, the amount paid or intended to be paid to the promoter, and the minimum subscription on which Directors may proceed to allotment. Other clauses prescribe restrictions on proceeding to allotment and on the commencement of business. I have already referred to the subject of auditors, whose appointment, remuneration, powers, duties and liabilities are now very strictly prescribed, and I may also mention another provision by which all companies situated outside British India, but operating therein, are required to make certain information available and to have a recognised agent in India to accept service of process or any notice which may have to be served on the company.

"While, generally speaking, we have followed the English law with an almost slavish exactitude, there are one or two points on which it has been necessary to depart from it. The most important of these is in regard to the winding up of companies by order of the Court. We have decided to retain in the main the procedure of the existing Indian law in place of the provisions introduced into the British law by the Companies Winding-up Act of 1890. In the United Kingdom, important functions are exercised by the Board of Trade, by Official Receivers and by Committees of Inspection; but Government consider that it would be premature to attempt to create a corresponding machinery in this country. They therefore have left the discretion in the matter of winding-up in the hands of the Court. They have also retained the provisions of the existing Indian law in respect of the annual balance-sheet which can fairly claim to be more complete than the provisions of the English law. The other matters on which modifications have been made in the English law are of minor importance.

"I am afraid, Sir that I am taking up a very large amount of the time of Council, but there are two matters of considerable importance with which we have not attempted to deal in the Bill, and I think I ought to say a few words about their omission. The first of these is the question of Managing Agents, a problem peculiar to this country. The activities of these very useful persons, and their relations to the companies whose affairs they manage, have from time to time been open to attack, and it has been suggested that this Bill should more strictly regulate and define their position. Government have not seen their way to take action on this difficult matter which brings us up against the law of contract; but when I say that, I do not wish to suggest for a moment that we are shutting the door against legislation, if practicable suggestions are made to us before this Bill becomes law. I should like, however, to place one consideration before Council. A Managing Agent either is a Director or is not a Director of the company he manages. In the former case, which I believe is the commonest, he will come under the provisions of the Bill for Directors, and the definition of 'Director' in the Bill makes it clear that, whatever the title chosen for the governing body, the rules which apply to Directors apply also to persons who stand in the position of Directors. In the first case, therefore, he will be subject to the safeguards and penalties prescribed in the case of Directors. In the latter case, where the Managing Agent is not a Director, his relationship with the company is governed by contract and the Bill makes it necessary that every material contract should be disclosed in the prospectus. At any rate, therefore, full publicity is secured as to the nature of the relationship.

"The other even more thorny question with which we have not seen our way to deal is that of Banks or of businesses which with varying degree of accuracy prefer to call themselves Banks. This is not a specially Indian problem; the recent failure of the Charing Cross Bank in England, and the appalling abuse of the depositors' confidence which it disclosed, will be fresh in the memory of Council. The evil which wants a remedy is that poor and uneducated people are attracted by the word 'Bank,' thinking that it necessarily implies security and stability, and unscrupulous persons accordingly apply the term to any speculative business in order to attract investors and depositors. But how is the use of the term to be restricted and how is banking business to be defined for the purpose? Government will be very willing to consider any suggestions, but I must confess that the more I think of it the more difficult the problem appears of how to define a banking business, how to control it when you have defined it, and how to avoid interfering with the legitimate business of firms carrying on partly banking and partly other operations. I understand that informed opinion in the United Kingdom, where the question was stirred up again by the Charing Cross Bank smash, is against attempting to legislate, and we may well hesitate to rush in where more experienced legislators fear to tread.

"This, Sir, in more senses than one is a big measure. The Bill deals with big interest, and in the mere matter of bulk runs to 323 clauses and 31 pages of Schedules. It may well be that in such a mass of material those interested will find subjects for criticism and objection. I can only say that Government have no desire to hurry this legislation through; that every scope will be given for criticism; and that all opinions will be duly weighed; and I shall hope later on to have the advantage of personal discussion upon it in the different commercial centres of India. No legislation can prevent fraud or altogether indemnify the investor from the dangers of an incurable optimism : all you can hope for is to make the path of dishonesty more stony and the vagaries of ignorance less liable to disaster. I should be sorry if the impression were created that Government is undertaking this legislation owing to there being any widespread canker in Indian commercial circles ; though bad cases have occurred from time to time, here as in other countries, there is no ground for such a supposition. But we ought to have the best Act we can and I am sure that, as in other recent commercial legislation, I can count on the assistance of the important Chambers of Commerce and of all those interested in commercial law, in helping us to get it."

The Hon'ble Sir Vithaldas Thackersey : " Mr. Vice-President, I heartily congratulate Government on introducing this Bill in this Council. I have no opportunity of going through the several sections referred to by the Hon'ble Member, and therefore I am not prepared at present to go into the details of the Bill ; but on the principle of the Bill, I think commercial communities are at one that this Bill is not brought forward a day too soon."

The Hon'ble Mr. Mudholkar : " Sir, I had an opportunity of expressing my views in regard to the proposed legislation a year or so ago. On that occasion I expressed my concurrence in the proposal that the amendment of the Indian Companies Act should be undertaken. I have studied the English law and I consider that the new provisions introduced into the English Companies Consolidated Act are very desirable, and should be brought into our code also. There are of course several matters in regard to which slight alterations may have to be made, necessitated by the difference in the circumstances of the two countries. But there is no doubt that the English Companies Act of 1908 provides more safeguards than the old law, and that such safeguards are required in India also. It is not necessary to refer to these things specifically on this occasion. We shall have to go into these matters when the time comes. But with regard to the necessity for legislation on the lines which Government propose, I agree with the Hon'ble Member. The Conference which I have the honour to represent, the Indian Industrial Conference in which Indians and Europeans join on more occasions than one, dealt with the subject and expressed its view that the time has come for assimilating the Indian law to the improved English law. With these general observations, I heartily congratulate the Government and the Hon'ble Member on the steps which they propose taking in the matter."

The Hon'ble Sir Cecil Graham : " Sir, I should like to join other Hon'ble Members in congratulating the Government and the Hon'ble Member in charge, for having brought this Bill in. The whole of the commercial community, I think, are at one in wishing for this legislation ; but as the Hon'ble Member has pointed out, the Chambers of Commerce preferred to wait and defer expressing their opinion on the details until the actual Bill was before them. However, the Hon'ble Member has promised us plenty of time to go thoroughly into the details and see how far the English Act will fall in line with the conditions governing commerce and business in India. There is only one thing I should like to ask the Hon'ble Member, and that is if he has any information he can give us as to how the English Act has worked in England so far."

The Hon'ble Mr Clark : " Sir, I am very much obliged to Hon'ble Members for the cordial reception they have given to this Bill."

" As regards the question which the Hon'ble Sir Cecil Graham has raised, we are expecting to receive a report from the Board of Trade in London on the subject of the English Act as applied to India, and I imagine that in that report they will inform us as to whether any of the provisions of the Act of 1908 have been found not to work well. We had to introduce the Bill before receiving the report so as to avoid any risk of not getting it introduced this session."

The motion was put and agreed to.

The Hon'ble Mr. Clark introduced the Bill.

The Hon'ble Mr. Clark moved that the Bill together with the Statement of Objects and Reasons relating thereto be published in the Gazette of India in English and in the local official Gazettes in English and in such other languages as the Local Governments think fit.

The motion was put and agreed to.

The Council adjourned to Monday, the 25th March 1912.

Chirag Din assisted in working a steam-fire engine, which was brought within some 20 yards of the burning cells in the magazine, and under cover of the water, thus supplied, an adjoining cell containing 19,000 pounds of gunpowder was cleared. Had the powder in this cell exploded, the main magazine, situated at a distance of only 100 feet, and in which were stored about 135 tons of gunpowder, would undoubtedly also have exploded, and life and property over a wide area would have been destroyed. In spite of the expectation that this magazine might explode at any moment, Chirag Din remained with the pumping engine, and helped to work it until the work was completed.

No. 921—36.

RESOLUTION—By the Government of India, Department of Education.

The Government of India have had for some time under their consideration the question of the improvement and strengthening of the sanitary services in India. The Plague Commission in 1901 strongly urged the necessity for the improvement in certain directions of the organisation of the Sanitary Department in India, with the object of dealing more effectively with outbreaks of plague and other epidemics and with the general sanitation of India. In 1905 a scheme was formulated by the Royal College of Physicians for the creation of a medical and sanitary organisation in India, and the inadequacy of the sanitary services, as then constituted, was again emphasised.

In 1907 the Government of India addressed all local Governments inviting them to consider certain proposals for reform. The views of local Governments have been considered in detail, and a scheme has now been formulated which has received the sanction of the Secretary of State. The object of this Resolution is to indicate for general information the lines on which it is proposed that reorganisation should proceed.

2. The administrative machinery of the Sanitary Department is already in most respects fairly complete and efficient. The improvements that the Government of India desire to effect are in the direction of further decentralisation of control ; of widening the field of recruitment by throwing open the higher posts to fully qualified Indians of proved aptitude ; of strengthening the staff in some provinces in which at present it is admittedly inadequate.

3. Hitherto the appointment of Sanitary Commissioner in all provinces, with the exception of Madras and Bombay, has rested with the Imperial Government. The Government of India have now authorised all local Governments to select their Sanitary Commissioners from officers serving in the Provincial Sanitary Department, provided that no officer of less than fifteen years' service be appointed without their previous sanction. They will also retain the selection in their own hands when no suitable officer is available in the province, or when the local Government desires to appoint an officer serving in another province. The Government of India further do not consider it desirable that there should be any limitation to the tenure of the office of Provincial Sanitary Commissioners and the existing orders on the subject contained in the Home Department Resolution No. 4-340-51, dated the 7th June 1888, are cancelled.

4. It has become evident that the existing number of Deputy Sanitary Commissioners in more than one province is inadequate in view of the exacting nature of the duties which they have to perform, and the unwieldy size of their charges. The area served by these officers ranges from 129,241 square miles in Madras to 24,597 square miles in Bombay, and the population from 36½ millions in Madras to 3½ millions in Bombay. The Government of India have now decided to create eight additional appointments of this class, two each in the three provinces of Madras, Bengal and the United Provinces and two which were originally proposed for Eastern Bengal and Assam. The allotment of these posts, with those sanctioned for Bengal, will require readjustment in view of the recent administrative changes.

The appointments of Deputy Sanitary Commissioners will no longer be reserved for officers of the Indian Medical Service and Indians possessing the necessary qualifications will be eligible for these posts. The selection of candidates for Deputy Sanitary Commissionerships, whether officers of the Indian Medical Service or not will remain with local Governments subject to the following conditions :—

- (1) that the candidate holds a British diploma in public health and a registrable medical qualification ;
- (2) that no officer is appointed who is not an accepted candidate for the Sanitary Department ; and
- (3) that the Government of India is asked for an officer when the local Government has no candidate available who is qualified and on its accepted list of candidates.

5. The Government of India consider that the terms to be offered to Deputy Sanitary Commissioners not belonging to the Indian Medical Service should be non-pensionable, but that the scale of pay should consequently be fixed at rather more than two-thirds of the pay of Indian Medical Service officers in the department. The scale which they have determined is as follows :—

Years of service.					Rs.
16 and over	900

For approved service of over 20 years, pay of Rs. 1,000 will be given up to 25 years which will ordinarily be the limit of service. Officers appointed on this scale will be eligible for leave under the Indian Service Leave Rules. First appointments will be made on probation for a period of not less than two years, and no officer will receive any increment of pay during the probationary period of his service ; but in the case of men who have rendered approved service as municipal officers of health, the period of probation may be dispensed with at the discretion of local Governments and the full rate of pay (vis. Rs. 600) allowed. All Deputy Sanitary Commissioners will be debarred from private practice.

6. Another part of the administrative machinery which has attained a position of varying usefulness in different provinces is the Sanitary Board. These Boards are beneficial in emphasising the importance of the subject of sanitation, in correlating sanitary schemes with administrative exigencies, and in securing direct discussion between sanitary experts and those who can appreciate and represent the attitude of the general population. The constitution of these Boards should, the Government of India consider, be determined by the local Government with reference to the functions with which they are to be entrusted. If the Board is purely an advisory body, it should contain the smallest number of persons sufficient to ensure that projects submitted to it will be examined adequately from the points of view of public health, of engineering and of finance and general administration. If the board has specific powers of sanction, and is, within certain limits, practically to represent the local Government in matters of sanitation, it will appropriately be larger; but it cannot, in the Government of India's opinion, be desirable that a large body of officials without power to sanction schemes should be interposed between the local authorities and the provincial Government.

7. The weakness of the executive establishment of the service, and the inadequacy of the staff of trained officers of health, is a defect which has been prominently brought to the notice of the Government of India, the remedy for which is a necessary preliminary to any substantial improvement of sanitation. The Presidency towns and a few of the larger cities have such officers; but as a rule the Civil Surgeon is the only health officer of the towns in a district. It is difficult for him to give sufficient attention to the sanitary requirements of the head-quarters town; it is impossible for him to make more than an occasional inspection of other towns. The scheme now sanctioned provides for the appointment of health officers of the first class for larger municipalities and of the second class for the smaller towns in accordance with detailed proposals received from the local Governments. A health officer of the first class will be required to have a registrable medical qualification and a British diploma in public health. The necessity for a British diploma will however be only temporary as the Government of India trust that it may be possible to remove the second restriction so soon as arrangements can be made in India which will enable Indians trained in this country to become health officers of the first class. For health officers of the second class the main qualifications will be a good general education, supplemented by a course of training in public health approved by the local Government. A salary of Rs. 300-20-500 is considered suitable for officers of the first class (with higher pay in exceptional cases) and of Rs. 150-10-300 for officers of the second class. The Government of India leave it to local Governments to determine in the case of both classes whether a provincial service should be constituted or whether the appointments should be local, but they consider that grants-in-aid by local Governments should be made only on conditions which will ensure that qualified men are appointed, and that they will have reasonable security of tenure. They also consider that the necessary power should be vested in local Governments to require a municipality to appoint a health officer and to veto the appointment of an unfit person.

In order to assist local Governments to establish this trained service, the Government of India have offered to grant an annual subsidy to those Governments which cannot find the money from provincial funds, to the extent of the entire cost of the additional Deputy Sanitary Commissioners (calculated at the rates proposed for men not belonging to the Indian Medical Service) plus half the cost of the municipal health officers in the towns in which local Governments consider they should be appointed. It is hoped that the balance can then be found by the municipalities and local Governments concerned.

8. The subordinate supervising staff of the conservancy establishment also calls for improvement. In most towns there is an official whose functions resemble those performed by an inspector of nuisances in England. It is however exceptional to find in this position a man who has any technical knowledge of his work. The Government of India think it desirable that a service of trained sanitary inspectors should be organised in municipalities, based on such standard of population, income or area as commends itself to the local Governments.

They have recommended to the notice of other provinces the system in force in Madras whereby every municipality is required to employ at least one trained inspector, a second inspector if the population exceeds 30,000 and three inspectors if the population exceeds 50,000; but they leave it to local Governments to determine the preliminary qualifications to be required from candidates, the course of training they must undergo, and the rates of pay to be given. They trust that local Governments will be able to give assistance to such municipal bodies as require it in the organisation of this subordinate staff.

9. The Government of India are confident that the schemes now sanctioned will mark a substantial advance towards the organisation of a trained sanitary staff capable of further expansion in the future, and which will prove an efficient agency for extending a knowledge of elementary hygiene among the people.

AUDIT, ETC.

MISCELLANEOUS.

No. 72-A.

RESOLUTION—By the Government of India, Finance Department.

In 1908 the attention of the Government of India was drawn by an application received from the Comptroller, Post Office, for an increase in establishment, to the work and requirements of the Postal Audit Department. They observed that there had been a continued growth of expenditure in this branch of the service, and so serious a view did they take of the situation that they thought it desirable to appoint a Departmental Committee to examine possible methods of simplifying procedure and reducing work in order to check the steadily rising expenditure which had been observed in this section of the accounts establishment. To this Committee Messrs. K. L. Datta of the Finance Department and W. Chard, Assistant Director General of the Post Office, were appointed, and, in Resolution No. 436-Px., dated the 22nd January 1909, the scope of their enquiries was defined by the statement of various matters which they were to examine with the object of reducing work and establishments so far as this might be done without prejudice to efficiency. The results of the investigations of the Committee are embodied in their report, dated the 1st October 1909, which suggested numerous improvements in the various branches of work performed in the Postal Audit Department. It has taken some little time to give effect to the detailed proposals which were then made; but with the exception of certain recommendations relating to savings banks, which are now unnecessary in view of further reforms which have since then been sanctioned in that particular section, the work is now complete and the result is undoubtedly satisfactory. The establishment roll is now 253 less than the sanctioned scale when the Committee undertook its enquiries, and the expenditure on establishment is Rs. 76,000 per annum less. Nor is this a full statement of the savings effected, for the work of the Department has gone on increasing; several new duties have been assigned to it, as for example by the institution of the General Provident Fund, and in the ordinary course the Government would no doubt have been called on to make additions to the establishment. The Committee, therefore is to be congratulated on the result of its labours.

2. One matter dealt with in the report of the Committee, which still remains for decision, is of peculiar importance as it affects the general organisation of the Department. Up till the year 1899 the whole of the account and audit work of the Post Office in India was performed in one office in Calcutta. In 1900, however, at the instance of Mr. Badshah, Comptroller of the Post Office, a scheme of decentralisation was introduced, which was gradually advanced till at the time the Committee undertook their investigations, there were four postal accounts offices in addition to the central, or, as it is now, the Accountant General's office. The position then was putting aside miscellaneous work, such as Postal Life Insurance, etc., which was dealt with in the Accountant General's office, that the Calcutta office dealt generally with the Bengal, Eastern Bengal and Assam and Burma circles; the Delhi office with the Punjab (including North-West Frontier Province) and United Provinces circles; Nagpur with the Bombay and Central Provinces circles; and Madras with the Madras circle; but the Savings Banks accounts of the Bengal and Burma group went to the Central office, and the Postal audit work of Madras was done in the Nagpur Office. To this principle of decentralisation the Committee took exception. They considered that it had resulted in unnecessary expenditure, and was administratively undesirable, and they thought that economy and efficiency would both be secured by a re-concentration of the establishment in Calcutta.

3. The Government of India have given to this important question the careful attention which it deserves, and find themselves unable in this particular matter to accept the recommendations of the Committee. With regard to economy in working, the Committee appear to have placed a wrong interpretation on the figures with which they had to deal. On the one hand, they have debited to the account of the decentralisation principle the whole increase of expenditure which occurred after decentralisation was carried out, but it is not shown that this increase was not due to any cause other than the normal growth of work in the Department. Similarly, they have taken to the credit of the centralisation proposed by them the saving which they estimated would be the result of their recommendations; but this saving was in large measure due to reductions of work which are not affected by the location of the accounts offices, and the diminution in the number of gazetted officers, which they connected with their proposed reduction in the number of offices, was inconsistent with the requirements of the case. Indeed, if their proposals were sanctioned, a single officer would be in charge of 345 men in Calcutta and another in charge of 270 men in Delhi, and it is certain that under these conditions no proper supervision of the work of the subordinate staff would be possible. The Government of India are satisfied that centralisation is not essential to economy. And from the administrative point of view they consider that it would be extremely ill advised. The arguments, in brief, which have been advanced against the present system are first, that with offices scattered over India the Accountant General is out of touch with his subordinates, that he cannot exercise effective control over them, and that they lose the moral effect of his personal presence; secondly, that decentralisation necessarily means more work, that references between separate offices are increased, exchange accounts are multiplied, there is an addition to the number of accounts to be compiled, and the communication of decisions and rulings to a number of local offices adds to the volume of correspondence. The Government of India do not, however, attach much importance to the increase of work which is here alleged. It is not necessarily more difficult to compile half-a-dozen small accounts than one large one; nor would the rendition of returns and the circulation of orders be avoided if all the offices were collected in one centre, or even if they were brought together in one building under a single officer, for they would probably still be considered necessary for the control of any very large establishment. The argument which appeals to the need of supervision is not effective; it proves, not that all offices should be collected at headquarters but that the head of the department should systematically visit all his offices. For these reasons, the Government of India are unable to accept the arguments which have been put forward in favour of centralisation, and, on the broadest grounds, they are opposed to it. They consider it essential, for the due development of both interests, that audit should be in touch with the administration and that there should be a parallelism therefore in the organisation of the two departments. But this indispensable condition would be rendered impossible by the proposals of the Committee. According to those proposals the whole of the audit staff of the department, practically, would be brought together in a single centre. To that centre the accounts of the whole of India would be collected; in due course they would be examined, objections would be raised and communicated. But between the audit and executive officers there would never be any opportunity of exchange of views, of explanations or of mutual assistance. The whole scheme rests on a purely mechanical conception of the functions of audit, and it cannot be accepted.

4. The Government of India pronounce unhesitatingly, therefore, in favour of the principle which underlies the present organisation of the Department, the principle, namely of decentralisation, and they have only to consider how far the details of the existing distribution of work need modification. The main point they think—and this it will be seen is a corollary from the general principles which they accept—is that each audit office should be self-contained, that is to say, it should do all the audit work for the postal circles with which it is concerned. To give full effect to this view, it is necessary to make two modifications in the existing arrangements as described in paragraph 2, and to transfer, first, the Savings Banks work now done in the Accountant General's central office to the offices dealing with the circles concerned, and, secondly, the Money Order work of the Bombay and Central circles from Delhi to Nagpur. It is considered desirable also to transfer the work of the Burma circle from Calcutta to Madras. These, however, are the only changes which the Government of India think it is necessary to make in the general framework of the Postal Accounts Department, and the Accountant General should now proceed on these lines under the direction of the Comptroller General with the further reforms which are contemplated in its constitution and personnel.

FIELD OPERATIONS.

ABOR.

No. 480.—The Right Hon'ble the Governor-General in Council has much pleasure in directing the publication of the following letter from the Chief of the General Staff, dated the 13th May 1912, together with extracts from the despatch therein referred to from Major-General H. Bower, C.B., describing the recent operations against the Abors.

The Governor-General in Council concurs with His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief in his opinion that, in spite of great physical difficulties, the main objects of the expedition have been accomplished, and that the operations were conducted by Major-General Bower with ability and care.

No. 3141-108, dated Simla, the 13th May 1912.

From—LIEUTENANT-GENERAL SIR PERCY LAKE, K.C.M.G., C.B., Chief of the General Staff,

To—The Secretary to the Government of India, Army Department.

I am directed to forward herewith for the information of Government, a despatch No. 1199-A, dated 11th April 1912, from Major-General H. Bower, C.B., describing the operations against the Abors, 1911-12.

2. I am to say that the Commander-in-Chief is of opinion the results show that although it proved impossible to explore the valley of the Dihong, where it breaks through the main mountain range on the confines of Tibet, and the inclemency of the weather seriously interfered with Survey operations, nevertheless in spite of great physical difficulties the main objects of the expedition have been accomplished. It will be seen that the principal persons implicated in the murder of Mr. Williamson have been punished; that a considerable amount of exploration and Survey work has been carried out, which when compiled, will add materially to our knowledge of this part of the Assam border; while the completion of the mule track and the visits of the small exploring parties to different remote places in these hills will tend to improve our future relations with many sections of the Abor tribe. Further the absence of any untoward incident and the display of force must have increased the knowledge and respect of this tribe of the paramount power which should bear good fruit in years to come.

3. The conduct of the expedition by Major-General H. Bower, C.B., has been marked by ability and carefulness, while the energy and good feeling displayed by all ranks and the lack of disease due to good sanitary arrangements merit great praise.

4. His Excellency endorses the recommendation made by General Bower as regards the officers, non-commissioned officers and men mentioned in the despatch and brings their good service strongly to the notice of Government.

No. 1199-A., dated Kobo, the 11th April 1912.

To — The Chief of the General Staff, Army Headquarters, Simla.

Orders for the demobilisation of the Abor Expeditionary Force having been received, I have the honour to report as follows for the information of His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief :—

32. Previous to the advance of the force information pointed to the great probability that we would not only be opposed by the Minyong but that several other tribes would coalesce with those responsible for the massacre in opposing our advance and from information obtained afterwards it appears that very many villages assisted in the preparation of stockades and stone shoots. It was soon however apparent that the tribes who promised their support to the Minyong had done so under the belief that the punitive force would be on the small and insufficient scale that has been such a marked feature of former expeditions against the Abors. As soon as our strength became manifest the coalition fell to pieces and the guilty villages were left to fight out their own quarrel with us alone. This materially reduced the active opposition.

33. On the other hand the physical difficulties of the country presented even a greater obstacle to rapid advance than had been anticipated. The Abor paths were quite unfit for use by laden carriers and as an example of the difficulties encountered I may mention that a small exploration party leaving camp soon after daylight only completed a march of $1\frac{1}{2}$ miles by 4 P.M. Many other cases showing the difficulty of rapid movement could be quoted, and the necessity for searching out and destroying stone shoots, of which an incredible number had been prepared, also involved delay.

34. As the result of the operations the culpable villages have been punished, six men who took part in the massacre of Mr. Williamson's party have been captured, tried, five found guilty and sentenced. The rifles taken have been restored, and our capability to punish evildoers, which hitherto has not been credited, has been brought home to the tribesmen. Practically the whole Abor country has been visited and excellent relations established. The domination exercised by the Kebang-Rotung group of villages has been broken, the villages in the interior can now trade with India which they express a great desire to do. The part of the north Lakhimpur Districts lying to the north of the Brahmaputra can be recolonised there being now nothing to fear from Abor raids.

35. A good road fit for mules has been constructed from Kobo to Yambung and Abor paths improved as far as Shimong and Riga and between Mishing and Kalek.

36. The absence of maps, native information being often misleading was a difficulty. In spite of the fact that the weather could hardly have been less favourable than it was for surveying, the following results were obtained :

(a) An accurate series of triangulation, emanating from the Assam Longitudinal series of the Great Trigonometrical Survey, has been carried over the outlying ranges to the latitude of Kebang, terminating in the base Sadup h. s. Namkam h. s. This will prove of the greatest assistance to future surveyors or explorers.

(b) From this series and an extension of reconnaissance triangulation to the latitude of Simong several large snowy peaks have been fixed on what appears to be the main Himalayan divide, including one very fine peak over 25,000' high. Many more snow peaks have also been fixed on the watershed between the Dihang and Subansiri rivers, which seems to be a very prominent spur of the

- main divide. It has only been possible to obtain a mere approximation of the topography of these snowy ranges, but the geodetic results are in themselves of great value.

- (c) About 3,500 square miles have been more or less rigorously mapped on scale 4 miles = 1 inch, including the whole of the Yamne and Shimang Valleys, a portion of the Siyom River, and the whole of the Dihang Valley as far north as Singging. Although I venture to think it is now possible for very small parties to travel about the country it was found necessary in the first instance that exploring parties showed strength. In addition to reasons of safety a considerable number of men were required to clear hill tops.

- 37 Campaigning in a country, where the difficulties of transport are so great, necessarily involved considerable hardships on the men and great extremes were experienced from

Conduct of troops (summary). tropical heat to bivouacing in snow. In one place this was lying 9 feet deep. The continuous bad weather experienced during part of the operations was a greater hardship than it would be in a campaign on which tents could be carried. The work was hard, unremitting, and continued watchfulness was required against an enemy ever ready to take advantage of an opportunity. Difficulties of exploration were accentuated by the impossibility of columns living on the country. The Abors grow only sufficient rice for their own consumption and are most unwilling to part with it. Unhusked rice was obtained occasionally and considerable labour was required to husk it. I cannot speak too highly of the conduct of all ranks under trying circumstances and trust that the operations will meet with the approval of His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief.

38. My recommendations and casualty return are attached.

I have the honour to bring to favourable notice the names of the following Officers, Non-commissioned Officers and Men.

Staff.

39. Major C. A. R. Hutchinson, 41st Dogras, General Staff Officer, 2nd Grade. I am greatly indebted to this officer for much valuable assistance. He has shown himself a hardworking and capable staff officer.

Captain L. S. H. Smithers, 17th Infantry (The Loyal Regiment), was acting Brigade-Major, Assam Brigade, at the time preparations were being made and a great deal of General Staff work devolved on him. During the expedition he has often been of considerable assistance in other capacities than that of orderly officer. He is well fitted for staff employment.

Captain W. B. Hore, 120th Rajputana Infantry, Intelligence Officer, has an exceptionally good knowledge of the Abor-Miri language and was of the greatest assistance.

Captain H. S. Becher carried out the duties of Provost Marshal efficiently.

I am much indebted to Mr. A. Bentinck, I.C.S., Assistant Political Officer, for useful advice and assistance. He has an extensive knowledge of the tribes on this frontier and conducted under difficult circumstances several exploration parties showing tact in his dealings with the villages. His services are well worthy of commendation.

Line of Communications.

40. Colonel D. C. Macintyre, Indian Army, Base Commandant and Inspector, Line of Communications, has performed his duties to my complete satisfaction. He conducted missions to the Pangri and Padam countries, being in both political and military charge. Largely owing to his tact in dealing with savage people these missions were most successful and resulted in the establishment of excellent relations and a large increase to our geographical knowledge.

Corps and Departments.

41. Assam Valley Light Horse dismounted detachment.—The members of this detachment showed a most soldierlike spirit in volunteering, in many cases at great personal inconvenience and pecuniary loss to accompany the expedition. They underwent considerable hardship in a most cheerful spirit and played an important part in the taking of the Kekar Monying position. Captain C. L. Lovell commanded the detachment in an efficient manner.

42. No. 1 Company (K. G. O.) Sappers and Miners—The work done by this company is above all praise, and it is to the skill and energy displayed by all ranks that the success of the expedition is largely due. During six months of arduous work this energy has never flagged.

Major E. C. Tylden-Pattenson is an officer of exceptional ability and his advancement would be to the good of the service.

No. 3165 Acting Sergeant Major J. F. Eltham.

Jemadar Sultan.

No. 12 Havildar Diwan Ali.

43. 1st Battalion, 2nd (K. E. O.) Gurkha Rifles.—This corps well maintained its reputation for efficiency both on the Ledum Column and guarding the Line of Communications. An excellent spirit pervades the regiment.

Colonel J. Fisher commanded the Ledum Column and acted for some time as Officer Commanding Defences, Line of Communications. He performed both duties to my satisfaction.

Major A. B. Lindsay is a very capable officer with great enterprise. He acted as staff officer with the Ledum Column and accompanied the Pangl and Padam missions as intelligence officer and brought back very useful reports. He has all the qualities that go to make a good staff officer and his advancement would be to the good of the service.

Lieutenant H. F. F. Marsh.

Subadar-Major Dalman Ale, I.O.M.

No. 2912 Havildar Siri Lal Thapa.

No. 3280 Rifleman Budhiman Gurung.

No. 4144 Rifleman Deosur Thapa, has been the subject of a separate communication.

44. 2nd Sikh Pioneers.—This corps has done much useful work on the Line of Communications.

Lieutenant Colonel H. Peterson, D.S.O., is an officer of sound judgment and has commanded his regiment and carried out the duties of Officer Commanding Defences, Line of Communications, to my satisfaction.

The good work done by the following was noticeable :—

Major E. H. S. Cullen, M.V.O.

Captain the Honourable M. de Courcy.

Subadar Sundar Singh.

No. 2969 Havildar Budhe Singh.

45. 1st Battalion, 8th Gurkha Rifles.—On this corps devolved most of the fighting and the very hard work involved in escorting exploration parties. I cannot speak too highly of the manner in which it carried out its different duties. A better corps for jungle warfare it would be hard to find.

Lieutenant-Colonel F. Murray, D.S.O., commanded to my complete satisfaction and carried out various important detached duties in a most capable manner. His services are well worthy of recognition. He was invalided as a result of the hardships involved in campaigning in such a difficult country.

Major J. A. Wilson commanded when Lieutenant-Colonel Murray was invalided and carried out his duties to my satisfaction. He has shown energy and enterprise throughout and has commanded detached bodies on several occasions.

Captain J. F. S. D. Coleridge is a most reliable officer of sound judgment and has done excellently in military charge of exploration parties.

Captain A. L. Molesworth has done well in command of exploration parties.

Lieutenant M. A. C. Kennedy is a good officer and distinguished himself at the taking of the Egar stockade.

Subadar-Major Nawalsing Rana Bahadur, I O.M.

Jemadar Makansing Gurung.

Jemadar Narbahadur Gurung.

No. 2446 Havildar Bhairab Sahi.

No. 3729 Lance-Naik Chitrabir Rana.

No. 3202 Rifleman Kalia Pun.

46. Signal unit from No. 31 (Divisional Signal) Company.—Had great difficulties to contend with in the nature of the country and the long periods during which visual signalling was impossible. In spite of these difficulties its work was of the greatest assistance to me. Lieutenant J. H. Knight is a most enthusiastic signaller and I could always feel that if it was at all possible, he would maintain communication with any detached parties.

No. 1560 Lance-Naik Dharm Singh.

No. 1716 Lance-Naik Dost Mahammad.

47. Supply and Transport Corps—The questions of Supply and Transport to a great extent govern operations and in a trackless country there is a great deal to contend with. I attribute the states of efficiency maintained by the force largely to the excellent personnel of the Supply and Transport Corps.

Major E. G. Vaughan, Assistant Director, Supply and Transport, is an officer who always keeps in view the comfort and efficiency of the troops, while being careful of the financial interest of the State.

Major H. H. M. Brooke did good service at the base.

Captain W. B. Dunlop has done good work with the Advanced Supply Columns.

The five Naga Carrier Corps well justified their enlistment, better men for the duties they were called upon to perform it would be difficult to find, they were taxed to the utmost of their physical powers, but were always cheery, there never was any trouble with them and on several occasions, they showed themselves quite willing to engage the Abors.

These satisfactory results I largely attribute to the tact and firmness with which they were treated by the Corps Commandants. Where all did well it may appear invidious to select any for special mention, but perhaps I may be permitted to mention Captain G. W. Bond and Captain C. W. Hext, whose work came more immediately under my notice.

Lieutenant A. B. H. Webb, 5th Gurkha Rifles, under great difficulties did excellent work in charge of the Boat transport between Kobo and Pasighat.

Captain C. E. Edward-Collins, Commandant, 26th Mule Corps.

Hony. Lieutenant J. Foy.

Conductor W. C. Hayman.

Conductor H. Wright.

Conductor J. Ballen, 25th Mule Corps.

48. Indian Medical Service.—To the efficient carrying out of sanitary and other medical duties, the comparatively good health and absence of epidemic disease is largely due.

Major J. Davidson, Assistant Director, Medical Service, has done well in that capacity.

Captain C. W. F. Melville is a very good officer and well worthy of advancement. He acted as Staff Surgeon and also accompanied exploration parties.

Captain J. S. O'Neill.

No. 978 First Class Sub-Assistant Surgeon Mahadeo Parshad.

Second Class Senior Sub-Assistant Surgeon Niranjan Das.

49. Lakhimpur Military Police.—On this corps ever since the massacre of Mr. Williamson's party has devolved the duty of keeping the North Lakhimpur District free from Abor raids. The difficulties and hardships involved in carrying out this duty during the rainy season can only be realised by those having knowledge of the country and climate. The battalion also did good work in the operations near Mishing.

Captain Sir George Duff-Sutherland-Dunbar, 31st Punjabis, has commanded to my satisfaction, and his services have also been brought to notice by Colonel Fisher, Commanding the Ledum Column.

The untimely death of Captain A. M. Hutchins as the direct result of continuous hardships during a long period is much to be regretted. He was a capable and gallant officer.

Surgeon Captain J. M. Falkiner, Assam Valley Light Horse, served as a Volunteer Medical Officer with the Ledum Column and Lakhimpur Military Police. He has served throughout without remuneration and I consider his services worthy of commendation.

The good work done by the following was noticeable:—

Captain J. Masters.

Jemadar Jangbir Lama.

No. 1120 Havildar Dal Bahadur Thapa.

50. The survey party under Captain O. H. B. Trenchard, R.E., did good work.

Lieutenant G. F. T. Oakes.

Surveyor Sher Jang.

Surveyor Hamid Gul.

51. The Ordnance Base Depot under Conductor F. I. Williams was most useful and met all requirements.

52. The Telegraph Department under Mr. G. E. O. deSmidt did very useful work.

Sub-Conductor W. Davies.

No. 6266 Private W. Rouse, 2nd Connaught Rangers.

53. The postal arrangements were satisfactory.

54. Corps of Military Staff clerks.—No. 9584 Sergeant A. Park.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

DEPARTMENT OF REVENUE AND AGRICULTURE.

Rainfall summary for the seven days ending at 8 hrs. on Thursday, the 23rd May 1912, based on the Indian Daily Weather Reports of the period.

1. The principal feature of the weather of the week was the appearance, unusually late in the season, of a depression of the cold weather type. It showed itself over the extreme north of India on the 17th and was the cause of moderately heavy rain and snow in Kashmir and light thundershowers, in some cases accompanied by hail, in the Punjab. The disturbance disappeared on the 22nd. Weather was wet throughout the week in Lower Burma, and rainfall extended on the 20th into Upper Burma owing to the formation of a small storm off the Chittagong coast. Rainfall occurred on most days in Assam and Bengal, and spread into Bihar and Chota Nagpur towards the end of the week. A few thundershowers were also reported from the United Provinces and the south of the Peninsula, but almost over the whole of the rest of India weather was even drier than usual.

2. The high temperatures which had characterized the weather in the plains of north-west and central India during the previous week began to disappear on the 19th, under the influence of the cold weather disturbance referred to above, and by the 22nd temperature had fallen below normal.

3. Burma.—Rainfall was of daily occurrence in Lower Burma, and was fairly general in Upper Burma on the last three days of the week.

Northeast India, including Orissa.—Rainfall occurred chiefly in Assam and the east of Bengal, and extended into Chota Nagpur and Bihar on the 21st.

The United Provinces, Central India and the Central Provinces.—There was no rain in the Central Provinces, and from the United Provinces and Central India only a few thundershowers were reported.

Northwest India.—Kashmir and the Punjab were the only parts of the division that recorded precipitation; and in the latter area rainfall was confined chiefly to the hill districts.

The Peninsula.—Except for a few falls in the south dry weather prevailed during the week.

4. The chief daily falls of rain were as follows:—

- May 16th. Moulmein 7·90", Tavoy 3·63", Diamond Island 3·17", Cox's Bazar 1·85" and Salem 1·39".

DEPARTMENT OF REVENUE AND AGRICULTURE.

Season and Crop Prospects for the week ending Saturday,
18th May 1912.

Burma.—The rainfall during the week was general but light in parts of the dry zone. Reaping of spring rice has almost been completed. Ploughing for cotton, sesamum and autumn rice has begun in Upper Burma and is proceeding normally. Standing crops are in good condition. Cattle are healthy. The price of unhusked rice has risen considerably at Rangoon and is abnormal.

Assam.—Sufficient rain fell throughout the Province except in some hill districts where more rain would be advantageous. Sowing of jute is nearing completion and that of early rice continues. Ploughing for winter rice, transplanting of sugarcane and tea manufacture are in progress. Cattle disease prevails in seven districts. The average price of rice has fallen by two per cent.

Bengal.—The seasonable character of the weather during the past week has improved the prospects of agriculture generally and has enabled cultivators to get on with the work of weeding their fields. The rainfall in April was excessive in the eastern districts of the Province but the deleterious effects of this have now been to a large extent counteracted. The price of rice still shows a slight tendency to rise. Cattle disease is reported from Nadia, Jessore, Malda, Dacca, Mymensingh and Noakhali.

Bihar and Orissa.—Rain fell in Manbhum, Ranchi and in all the districts of the Tirhut and Patna divisions, and in parts of the Patna, Shahabad and Balasore districts. The fall was moderate in Champaran and parts of Muzaffarpur and Purnea but was generally light in the remaining districts. Preparation of lands continues but more rain is urgently wanted in Angul and Singhbhum. Sowing of paddy and jute continues. Sugarcane and vegetables are doing well. The price of common rice has risen in Muzaffarpur, Darbhanga, Balasore, Angul, Puri and Hazaribagh and has fallen in Monghyr, the Sonthal Parganas and Ranchi. Cattle disease is reported from Gaya, Muzaffarpur, Bhagalpur, Angul, Puri and Sambalpur. The supply of fodder and water is sufficient in all the districts of the Province.

United Provinces. Hot weather storms have given local showers chiefly in the sub-montane districts. Threshing and winnowing are practically finished. Extra crops are flourishing and sugarcane is doing well. Sowing of cotton in irrigated tracts has commenced. Sporadic cattle disease is reported from several districts but the general condition of agricultural stock is good. The fodder and water supply is sufficient. The general level of prices is constant except for a rise in Bundelkhand.

Punjab.—The week was generally rainless and hot with high winds. Harvesting has been somewhat delayed by winds. The outturn is normal to good. The condition of standing extra spring and autumn crops is good. Further sowings of crops are in progress. The sown area is normal in irrigated tracts but is somewhat restricted in unirrigated tracts. Cattle are generally healthy but fodder is still scarce. Prices remain high.

North-West Frontier Province.—The week was rainless. The weather is hot and occasionally cloudy. The condition of standing crops has undergone no change. Harvesting of spring crops continues and the outturn is average but is generally below normal on unirrigated areas. Sowings of extra spring and autumn crops are in progress. Cattle are in good condition. Fodder and water are sufficient. Prices are stationary.

Jammu.—Rainfall nil. Prices are fluctuating. Wheat sells from 10 to 15 and maize from 12 to 24 seers per rupee. The condition of standing crops is fair. Fodder is sufficient.

Kashmir.—It rained on three occasions during the week. Zamindars are engaged in sowing operations. Prices are unchanged. Rivers rose to flood level on account of the recent heavy rains but no damage was done. The Jammu-Kashmir road is much damaged by hill torrents. Fodder is average.

Rajputana.—The weather is hot and generally clear. Land is being prepared for autumn sowings. Cattle are suffering for want of pasturage in parts of the western States, Mewar and Jaipur Residencies. Pasturage and fodder are also scarce in Merwara. Cattle disease prevails in parts of the Mewar Residency. The water supply is deficient in many places in Kotah and is diminishing in Merwara and the Hilly Tracts of Mewar. Prices are generally high and stationary. The numbers on relief were:—Merwara, on gratuitous relief 70. In the Dungarpur State there were 1,336 on works and 19 in receipt of gratuitous relief.

Central India.—Slight showers fell in Dhar in the Bhopawar Agency. The weather is seasonable. Land is being prepared for autumn crops in the Gwalior, Indore, Malwa and Bhopawar Agencies. The outturn of crops is above normal in Bundelkhand and good elsewhere. Water is scarce in the Malwa and Bhopawar Agencies. Cattle disease is prevalent in parts of the Gwalior, Indore, Bhopal and Bhopawar Agencies. Fodder is insufficient in parts of the Gwalior, Indore and Bhopawar Agencies. Prices have fallen slightly in Gwalior, are normal in Bhopal and Baghelkhand, are fluctuating in Bhopawar and steady elsewhere.

The weekly report on famine and scarcity is as follows:—Distress continues but is not increasing. There is no wandering or emaciation. The condition of people on relief works is good. There is no influx of foreigners and no disinclination to resort to works. Fodder is scarce. Prices of food grains vary from 11 to 13 seers per rupee. The number on relief works was:—Dhar 3,267, Jhabua 1,184, Ali Rajpur 1,944 and Jobat 827. On takavi works in Jhabua 659. On gratuitous relief in Dhar 168 and Ali Rajpur 56.

Central Provinces.—The weather continues to be very hot and accompanied with high winds. Threshing and winnowing of spring crops still continue in places. Ploughing of land for sowing of the next autumn crops and construction of field embankments are in progress. Cattle are in fair condition. Scarcity of water is reported in Berar. Fodder is dear. The price of gram rose in Hoshangabad by 3 seers per rupee.

Feudatory States.—Preparation of land and manuring of fields are in progress everywhere. Prices.—Gram in Sirguja and rice in Jashpur fell by 3 and 4 seers per rupee, respectively.

Bombay.—Slight rain fell during the week in parts of the Konkan and the Karnatak. Preparation of lands for autumn cultivation is progressing generally. The fodder supply is generally inadequate. Agricultural stock is deteriorating in parts of Sind and Gujarat and is deficient in parts of the Deccan. The water-supply both for irrigation and drinking purposes is deficient in parts of the Presidency Proper. Prices are high and generally stationary.

The weekly report on the famine and scarcity is as follows.—Distress continues throughout the Panch Mahals and parts of Kathiawar. There is no wandering. People on relief works are in good condition and relief measures are adequate. The public health is generally good. People find employment in digging temporary wells. Suspension of land revenue is being granted and takavi is being freely advanced. Grain stocks are sufficient. Bajri sells from 8 to 10 and maize from 10 to 10½ seers per rupee. The numbers on relief for the week ending 18th May 1912 were:—Panch Mahals, on works 37,638, on gratuitous relief 38,913, total 76,551. Kathiawar, on works 8,097. On gratuitous relief in Ahmedabad, Kaira, West Khandesh, Nasik, Ahmednagar, Poona, Sholapur, Bijapur and Belgaum 19,216. DEPARTMENT OF REVENUE AND AGRICULTURE.

Rainfall summary for the seven days ending at 8 hrs. on Thursday, the 30th May 1912, based on the Indian Daily Weather Reports of the period.

1. At the beginning of the week a feeble advance of the monsoon was in progress over the Arabian Sea, but it was not until the 27th that the west coast districts had rainfall of any importance. Rainfall continued on the west coast for the next two days and extended into the interior of the Peninsula on the 28th.

The distribution of pressure over the rest of the country was abnormal throughout the week, and although some rain fell in Burma and northeast India it was more or less local and below the average.

A feeble disturbance gave some rain and snow in Kashmir, and a few duststorms and thunderstorms accompanied by light rain occurred in the plains of northwest and central India.

2. Temperature conditions during the week were fairly normal.

3. Burma.—Fairly general rain fell on the 28th; but on the remaining days only a few falls occurred.

Northeast India, including Orissa.—Weather was practically dry in the province of Bihar and Orissa, while in Assam rainfall was fairly general on only four days and in Bengal on two.

The United Provinces, Central India and the Central Provinces.—Except for a few scattered falls weather was dry throughout the week.

Northwest India.—Fairly general rain fell in Kashmir on three days, but over the rest of the division only a few light falls occurred.

The Peninsula.—Rainfall was confined almost entirely to the west coast districts, except on the 28th when it also occurred in the Bombay Deccan, Hyderabad, Mysore and the Madras Deccan.

4. The chief daily falls of rain were as follows :—

May 23rd. Tavoy 1.56", Dhubri 2.17", Mymensingh 2.25", Bogra 0.98", Bareilly 1.00" and Calicut 0.97".

" 24th. Rangoon 1.20", Sibsaigar 1.52" and Dhubri 1.12".

" 26th. Naya Dumka 0.98", Jagdalpur 1.97" and Mercara 0.91".

" 28th. Mymensingh 1.64", Jalpaiguri 1.68", Burdwan 1.72", Ratnagiri 1.17", Bangalore 0.64" and Mangalore 0.99".

" 29th. Mandalay 1.22", Dinajpur 1.71", Burdwan 1.19", Goa 1.63", Marmagao 1.50", Cochin 1.11" and Trivandrum 1.45".

5. The week's rainfall was above the average in Kashmir, the Konkan and Hyderabad North. It was most largely in defect in the Bay Islands, Burma, Orissa and Malabar.

The rainfall of the period from the 3rd May to date was in defect throughout the Indian region, except in Central India East and Kashmir, where it was in excess, and in Burma, Assam, Bengal, Bihar, United Provinces East and the west coast, where it was approximately normal. The deficiency amounted to 10½" in the Bay Islands, 2½" in Orissa and 1½" in Mysore.

Season and Crop Prospects for the week ending Saturday,
25th May 1912.

Burma.—The rainfall during the week was general; it was light in the dry zone and moderate elsewhere. Ploughing for the winter rice crop has begun in Lower Burma. In Upper Burma, ploughing for autumn rice and upland crops is proceeding normally. The standing summer rice crop is in good condition. The health of cattle is satisfactory. The price of unhusked rice remains abnormal and tends to rise.

Assam.—The weather is seasonable and generally favourable for cultivation and growth of crops. Sowing of jute and harvesting of spring rice are almost over. Sowing of early rice, ploughing for and sowing of winter rice, transplanting of sugarcane and tea manufacture continue. Cattle disease prevails in five districts. The average price of common rice has fallen slightly.

Bengal.—During the week light to moderate showers of rain fell almost throughout the Province and the weather though hot continued to be seasonable. Sowing of jute is nearing completion and that of autumn rice still continues. Owing to favourable conditions, weeding operations are in full swing. The price of common rice shows a slight tendency to rise. Cattle disease is reported from Malda, Jessore, Nadia, Dacca, Mymensingh and Noakhali.

Bihar and Orissa.—The rainfall during the week was general over the Province. There were good showers in Muzaffarpur, Darbhanga, Monghyr, Bhagalpur, Purnea, the Sonthal Parganas and Balasore. The fall was generally light in the remaining districts. Preparation of land continues. Sowing of paddy and jute is going on. Standing crops are doing well. The price of common rice has risen in Saran, Balasore, Sambalpur, Ranchi and Maubhum and has fallen in Gaya, Monghyr and Puri. Cattle disease is reported from Muzaffarpur, Bhagalpur, Angul, Puri, Sambalpur and Hazaribagh. The supply of fodder and water is sufficient throughout the Province.

United Provinces.—There have been considerable falls of rain, particularly in the central and eastern sub-montane tracts where the average fall exceeds 1 inch. Extra crops are flourishing and sugarcane has been benefited by the rain. Sowing of cotton in irrigated tracts and of rice and fodder crops in places have commenced. Sporadic cattle disease is reported from several districts but the general condition of agricultural stock is good. The fodder and water supply is sufficient. The general level of prices is unchanged.

Punjab.—The week was generally rainless and hot. Harvesting of wheat continues. The outturn is normal to good. The condition of standing extra spring crops is good. Sowings of autumn crops are proceeding. The sown area is normal in irrigated tracts but is somewhat restricted in unirrigated tracts. Cattle are generally healthy but fodder is still scarce. Prices remain high.

North-West Frontier Province.—Slight rain fell during the week in places. The weather is hot and cloudy. Standing crops are average on irrigated areas and below average on unirrigated lands. Harvesting of spring crops is proceeding and the outturn is average except on unirrigated areas where it is below normal. Autumn crops are being sown. Sowings of extra spring crops are finished. The condition of cattle is good. The fodder and water supply is sufficient. Prices are stationary but still high in Dera Ismail Khan.

Jammu.—Rainfall nil. Prices are fluctuating. Wheat sells from 9 to 16 and maize from 16 to 28 seers per rupee. The condition of standing crops is fair. Fodder is sufficient.

Kashmir.—It rained on three occasions during the week. Zamindars are busy with sowing of paddy. Prices are unchanged. Fodder is good. There is no disease among cattle. Some loss of cattle has been caused by the recent rains.

Rajputana.—Local showers were received in a few places. The weather is hot. Land is being prepared for autumn sowings. Cattle are suffering for want of pasturage in parts of the western States, Mewar and Jaipur Residencies. Pasturage and fodder are also scarce in Merwara. Cattle disease prevails in parts of the Mewar Residency and the Haraoti Agency. The water supply is deficient in many places in Kotah and is diminishing in Merwara and the Hilly Tracts of Mewar. The numbers on relief were:—Merwara, on gratuitous 85. In the Dungarpur State there were 1,154 on works and 69 in receipt of gratuitous relief.

Central India.—Slight and partial rainfall was received in Bhopal and in Bagar in the Malwa Agency. The weather is close and cloudy. Land is being prepared for autumn crops in the Gwalior, Indore, Malwa and Bhopawar Agencies. The outturn of crops is above normal in Bundelkhand and good elsewhere. Water is scarce in the Malwa and Bhopawar Agencies. Cattle disease is prevalent in parts of the Gwalior, Indore, Bhopal and Bhopawar Agencies. Fodder is insufficient in parts of the Gwalior, Indore and Bhopawar Agencies. Prices have fallen in Gwalior, are normal in Bhopal and Baghelkhand, are fluctuating in Bhopawar and parts of Indore and steady elsewhere.

Feudatory States.—Agriculturists are busy in ploughing land for the next season's crops. Prices are almost stationary except in Chhuikhadan where kodon fell by $2\frac{1}{2}$ seers per rupee.

Bombay.—Slight rain fell during the week in parts of the Karnatak. Preparation of lands for autumn cultivation is progressing generally. The fodder supply is generally inadequate. Agricultural stock is deteriorating in parts of Sind and Gujarat and is deficient in parts of the Deccan. The water-supply both for irrigation and drinking purposes is deficient in parts of the Presidency Proper. Prices are high and generally stationary.

Whereas for the purposes of the construction of a godown and for the purposes subsidiary thereto, such purposes not to include the stocking or depositing of coal, the companies have applied to the Government of Eastern Bengal and Assam for the acquisition under the provisions of the Land Acquisition Act, 1894, of the piece or parcel of land containing 2 bighas, 1 katta, 8 chhataks or thereabout, situated in the district of Sylhet, subdivision Habiganj, pargana Bajusunaita, village Baban Gochma and Bhimsena Nadir Charbharat and more particularly described in the schedule hereto and delineated in the plan hereunto annexed.

And whereas the said Government of Eastern Bengal and Assam, being satisfied by an enquiry held under section 40 of the said Act, that the proposed acquisition is needed for the aforesaid purposes and that the said work is likely to prove useful to the public, has consented to acquire, on behalf of the companies, the piece or parcel of land hereinbefore described.

And whereas the Government of Eastern Bengal and Assam has required the companies under the provisions of section 41 of the abovementioned Act to enter into the agreement with the Secretary of State hereinafter contained. Now this indenture witnesseth that it is hereby agreed and declared as follows :—

WHEREAS the raising or keeping of a standing army within the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland in time of peace, unless it be with the consent of Parliament, is against law :

And whereas it is adjudged necessary by His Majesty and this present Parliament that a body of forces should be continued for the safety of the United Kingdom and the defence of the possessions of His Majesty's Crown, and that the whole number of such forces should consist of one hundred and eighty-six thousand six hundred including those to be employed at the depôts in the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland for the training of recruits for service at home and abroad, but exclusive of the numbers actually serving within His Majesty's Indian possessions :

And whereas it is also judged necessary for the safety of the United Kingdom, and the defence of the possessions of this realm, that a body of Royal Marine forces should be employed in His Majesty's fleet and naval service, under the direction of the Lord High Admiral of the United Kingdom, or the Commissioners for executing the office of Lord High Admiral aforesaid :

And whereas the said marine forces may frequently be quartered or be on shore, or sent to do duty or be on board transport, ships or vessels, merchant ships or vessels, or other ships or vessels, or they may be under other circumstances in which they will not be subject to the laws relating to the government of His Majesty's forces by sea :

And whereas no man can be fore judged of life or limb, or subjected in time of peace to any kind of punishment within this realm, by martial law, or in any other manner than by the judgment of his peers and according to the known and established laws of this realm ; yet, nevertheless, it being requisite, for the retaining all the before-mentioned forces, and other persons subject to military law, in their duty, that an exact discipline be observed, and that persons belonging to the said forces who mutiny or stir up sedition, or desert His Majesty's service, or are guilty of crimes and offences to the prejudice of good order and military discipline, be brought to a more exemplary and speedy punishment than the usual forms of the law will allow :

(2) If before the commencement of this Act any law of India or a colony has been made or passed applying this Act in whole or in part to any force raised in India or the colony, such law shall have effect as if this section had been in force at the time when such law was made or passed.

RESOLUTION—By the Government of India, Department of Commerce and Industry.

In the Resolution of the Government of India in the Department of Commerce and Industry, No. 913-918-115, dated the 2nd February 1910, the Superior Establishment of the Indian Telegraph Department was reorganised, a scheme of administration by circles being introduced on the lines recommended by the Telegraph Committee of 1906. The scheme included the substitution of time scales of pay for the graded system of promotion formerly in force and the introduction of a distinction between the Imperial and the Provincial Services in respect of promotion to the rank of Superintendent by the reservation for the latter service of twelve out of the thirty-four divisional charges sanctioned in that Resolution. The reservation of divisions for the Provincial Service involved the abolition of the system previously in force by which officers of that service received promotion pari passu with officers of the Imperial Service. It was hoped that the improvement in the rates of pay would have induced the officers of the Provincial Service to accept the new conditions, but this hope has not been fulfilled. Memorials were received from the officers themselves, from which it was clear that they attached great importance to the continuance of the previous system of equality of promotion with officers of the Imperial Service; and it was further represented that the scale of pay fixed for them, although an improvement on the rates obtaining under the old graded system of promotion, was disproportionate to the improved scale fixed for the Imperial Service and was inadequate. In view of these representations and with the desire to satisfy the reasonable requests of the memorialists the Governor General in Council formulated a revised scheme, which has now received the approval of His Majesty's Secretary of State for India.

2. The Governor General in Council is pleased to announce that in future the reservation of divisions for the Provincial Service of the Telegraph Department will be abolished, and officers of both the Imperial and Provincial Services will, provided they are fully qualified, be equally eligible for promotion to the rank of Superintendent on the occurrence of permanent vacancies in divisional charges. Further, with effect from the 1st April 1911, the following rates of pay have been sanctioned for the officers of the Provincial Service:—

						Rs.
2nd	ditto	275
3rd	ditto	300
4th	ditto	325
5th	ditto	350
6th	ditto	375
7th	ditto	400
8th	ditto	425

					Rs.
10th	year of service	500
11th	ditto	535
12th	ditto	570
13th	ditto	605
14th	ditto	640
15th	ditto	675
16th	ditto	710
17th	ditto	745
18th	ditto	780
19th	ditto	815
20th	ditto	850

After completing five years' service on Rs. 850, a special increment may be granted to deserving officers who may not be promoted to administrative rank. The pay of officers rising to administrative rank will remain as at present.

3. It will be seen that there will be a rise in the rate of increment after the ninth year of service, while the maximum of the scale (omitting consideration of the special increment) will be reached in the 20th year, the conditions of service in both these respects being assimilated to those applying to Imperial officers. In order to secure uniformity of treatment in other respects, it is necessary to make certain further alterations with regard to—

- (i) the maximum of pay and allowances admissible to an Assistant Superintendent officiating in charge of a division;
- (ii) the maximum pay of an officer who is not declared fit to hold charge of a division; and
- (iii) the maximum pay of an Assistant Superintendent who, though declared fit to hold charge of a division, is not actually holding such charge, or a charge which is recognised as of equal importance.

These alterations are explained in the following paragraph.

4. (1) Under the present system an Assistant Superintendent officiating in charge of a division draws an acting allowance of Rs. 100 a month, subject to a maximum salary of Rs. 700 in the Imperial Service (in the case of an officer of less than 8 years' service) and Rs. 650 a month in the Provincial Service. It has now been decided that the pay of the eleventh year shall be the maximum of pay and allowances admissible to an Assistant Superintendent (Imperial or Provincial) with less than 10 years' service, when officiating in charge of a division. That is to say, an Assistant Superintendent officiating in divisional charge, whose pay under the time scale is less than Rs. 800 in the case of the Imperial Service or Rs. 535 in the case of the Provincial Service, will draw an officiating allowance of Rs. 100, subject to a maximum of Rs. 800 in the former and Rs. 55 in the latter, and provided further that the sum of pay plus acting allowance shall in no case exceed the pay of any permanent Superintendent of the Imperial or Provincial Service, as the case may be.

(2) The existing rules permit an officer not declared fit to hold divisional charge to proceed to Rs. 660 (the pay of the eighth year of service) in the Imperial, and Rs. 600 (the pay of the fifteenth year) in the Provincial Service. For the future an officer who is found unfit for divisional charge will not go beyond the point after which the increments in both services rise, i.e., the pay of the ninth year, Rs. 700 in the Imperial and Rs. 450 in the Provincial Service.

(3) In the case of an Assistant Superintendent qualified for, but not actually holding charge of, a division, or a charge which is recognised as of equal importance, the maximum pay will henceforth be that of the eleventh year for both services, i.e., Rs. 800 in the Imperial and Rs. 535 in the Provincial Service.

5. These revised rates of pay are introduced with retrospective effect from the 1st April 1911; but if in any case any officer has between the 1st April 1911 and the date of this Resolution drawn, in accordance with the terms of the Resolution of 2nd February 1910, a higher total salary than would be admissible under the terms now sanctioned, no refund will be required. Further, any officers who did not elect the revised rates of pay introduced in the Resolution of the 2nd February 1910, or who elected from a later date, are given the option of electing those rates from the 19th December 1909 to the 31st March 1911, but no option is allowed to Provincial Service officers to elect or decline the revised terms now published.

ORDERED—That this Resolution be published in the Gazette of India for general information, and that it be communicated to the Home, Finance and Public Works Departments of the Government of India, to the Director General, Posts and Telegraphs, and to the Accountant General, Post Office and Telegraphs.

(a) For the week ending 31st May 1912.

L. C. PORTER,

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

DEPARTMENT OF REVENUE AND AGRICULTURE.

Rainfall summary for the seven days ending at 8 hrs. on Thursday, the 6th June 1912, based on the Indian Daily Weather Reports of the period.

1. The feeble advance of monsoon winds referred to last week exhausted itself at sea without giving much rain in the Peninsula, and it was succeeded by another advance on the 2nd which was affecting the Malabar coast up to the close of the week. Rainfall due to this second advance was however not heavy and was confined to southern India. The advance was associated with an area of low pressure such as usually accompanies advances of the monsoon, and the light character of the rainfall and its failure to extend northwards were probably due to the rain current of the monsoon being at a considerable distance from the coast. In northeast India rainfall was local and persistent, while in Burma it occurred chiefly on the last three days of the week. Over the rest of India weather was unusually dry.

2. Temperature conditions were fairly normal except in the area including the Central Provinces, Hyderabad and the Bombay Deccan, where unusually high day temperatures were recorded during the second half of the week.

3. Burma.—Very little rain fell on the 30th and 31st May, but on the 1st June rainfall increased in Lower Burma and during the rest of the week was fairly general over the whole province.

Northeast India, including Orissa.—Rain fell more or less continuously in Assam and North Bengal, and some heavy amounts were registered on the 3rd, 4th and 5th June, but over the rest of the division rainfall was local.

The United Provinces, Central India and the Central Provinces.—Weather was dry.

Northwest India.—Sonamarg, Udaipur and Rajkot were the only stations that reported falls of rain exceeding a tenth of an inch.

The Peninsula.—Rainfall was confined almost entirely to south Madras and occurred chiefly on the 3rd and 4th June. A few falls were reported from Mysore, the Madras Deccan, the Bombay Deccan and Hyderabad.

4. The chief daily falls of rain were as follows:—

May 30th. Victoria Point 2·28", Bhāmo 1·15", Mymensingh 2·07", Dinajpur 3·60" and Purnea 1·44".

June 1st. Gauhati 1·43", Cuttack 1·50", Bangalore 1·45" and Cochin 2·06".

" 2nd. Mandalay 2·92", Monywa 1·30", Sibsagar 1·31" and Dinajpur 1·87".

" 3rd. Yamethin 0·99", Mandalay 1·40", Maymyo 0·95", Dhubri 2·00", Mymensingh 3·81", Bogra 3·45", Jalpaiguri 1·27", Purnea 1·67", Mangalore 1·35", Cochin 2·30", Trivandrum 1·57", Trichinopoly 2·70" and Nellore 0·91".

" 5th. Rangoon 1·81", Kyaukpau 3·54", Akyab 2·28", Myitkyina 0·87", Silchar 2·10", Cherrapunji 4·42", Narayanganj 1·09", Mymensingh 3·73", Bogra 1·99", Dinajpur 3·40", Balasore 0·85", Chaibasa 0·39", Mangalore 1·02" and Calicut 2·09".

5. The week's rainfall was above the average in Bengal, Bihar, Mysore and Madras Southeast, and practically normal in Upper Burma, Assam, Orissa and the Madras Deccan. Of the remaining divisions, the deficiency was largest in the Bay Islands, Lower Burma, the Konkan and Malabar.

The rainfall for the period from 3rd May to 6th June exceeded the normal by more than 20 per cent only in Kashmir and Central India East. It was nearly normal in Burma, Assam, Bengal, Bihar, Mysore and Madras Southeast. Of the divisions in which it was in defect, the deficiency measured in inches was largest in the Bay Islands (14") the Konkan (4") and Malabar (3").

Permanent stretch in hydraulic test not to exceed 10 per cent of the elastic stretch.

One cylinder in 50 to be subjected to a statical bending test, and to stand crushing nearly flat between two rounded knife edges without cracking.

(b) Lap-welded or seamless steel.—Greatest working pressure, 120 atmospheres, or 1,800 lbs. per square inch.

Stress due to working pressure not to exceed $7\frac{1}{2}$ tons per square inch in lap-welded, or 8 tons per square inch in seamless cylinders.

Carbon in steel not to exceed 0.25 per cent, or iron to be less than 99 per cent.

Tenacity of steel not to be less than 26 or more than 33 tons per square inch. Ultimate elongation not less than 1.2 inches in 8 inches. Test bar to be cut from finished annealed cylinder.

Proof pressure in hydraulic test, after annealing, 224 atmospheres, or 3,360 lbs. per square inch.

Permanent stretch shown by water jacket not to exceed 10 per cent of elastic stretch.

One cylinder in 50 to be subjected to a statical bending test and to stand crushing nearly flat between rounded knife edges without cracking.

Regulations applicable to all cylinders.

Cylinders to be marked with a rotation number, a manufacturer's or owner's mark, an annealing mark with date, a test mark with date. The marks to be permanent and easily visible.

Testing to be repeated at least every two years, and annealing at least every four years.

Cylinders not to be refilled till they have been emptied.

If cylinders are sent out unpacked, the valve fittings should be protected by a steel cap.

A minimum weight to be fixed for each size of cylinder in accordance with its required thickness. Cylinders of less weight to be rejected.

II.—CYLINDERS FOR CARBONIC ACID.

Greatest working pressure to be reckoned as 120 atmospheres.

Cylinders to be of lap-welded wrought iron, lap-welded steel or seamless steel. Stresses, tests, and conditions as to repetition of tests to be the same as for oxygen cylinders.

The marking to be the same with the addition of the weight of the cylinder empty, and the greatest permissible weight of carbonic acid it may contain.

No cylinder to contain more than $\frac{2}{3}$ lb. of carbonic acid per pound of water capacity, if for this country (i.e., England), or $\frac{2}{3}$ lb. per pound of water capacity, if for the tropics.

If cylinders are sent out unpacked, the valve fittings should be protected by a steel cap.

A notice should be affixed to the cylinder that it contains carbonic acid, and that it should be kept cool and not exposed to the sun or the heat of a stove.

Greatest working stress 7 tons per square inch for steel, and 6 tons per square inch for wrought iron.

In other respects the material, tests, and rule for repetition of tests to be the same as for oxygen cylinders.

The marking to be similar to that for oxygen cylinders, but the weight of cylinder empty and the greatest permissible weight of ammonia it may contain to be added.

Ammonia cylinders should not contain more than 0.5 lbs. per pound of water capacity.

If cylinders are sent out unpacked, the valve fittings should be protected by a steel cap.

A notice should be affixed to the cylinder that it contains ammonia, and that it should be kept cool and not exposed to the sun or the heat of a stove.

(a) For the week ending 7th June 1912.

L. C. PORTER,

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

DEPARTMENT OF REVENUE AND AGRICULTURE.

Rainfall summary for the seven days ending at 8 hrs. on Thursday, the 13th June 1912, based on the Indian Daily Weather Reports of the period.

1. The monsoon in the Arabian Sea gave rain throughout the week on the west coast, but although moderate to heavy rain extended as far north as Ratnagiri very little occurred inland. Weather was unsettled in northwest India where numerous duststorms and thunderstorms caused light falls of rain, and the prevalence of easterly winds in the Gangetic plain occasioned local rainfall in the United Provinces. In northeast India rainfall has been practically confined to the northern districts and in Burma to the south of the province.

2. Temperature was unusually high up to the 9th in northwest India, but a very rapid fall then occurred owing to rainfall in the Punjab, and for the rest of the week temperature was in more or less large defect. In the Deccan and the south of the Central Provinces temperature was persistently high throughout the period, particularly during the day time.

3. Burma.—Rainfall was of daily occurrence in Lower Burma, but in Upper Burma there were only occasional showers.

Northeast India, including Orissa.—Rainfall occurred chiefly during the first half of the week, and weather was practically dry on the 10th, 11th and 12th.

The United Provinces, Central India and the Central Provinces.—Scattered falls of rain were recorded in the United Provinces almost every day. A few showers were reported from Central India East and the Central Provinces, chiefly from the eastern districts.

Northwest India.—Duststorms and thunderstorms gave several falls of rain in Kashmir and the Punjab on the 9th, 10th and 11th, in the North-West Frontier Province on the 11th, and in Rajputana on the 10th.

The Peninsula.—Rainfall was almost restricted to the west coast as far north as Ratnagiri, and only a few falls occurred in the interior of the Peninsula, chiefly in the Bombay Deccan.

4. The chief daily falls of rain were as follows:—

- June 6th. Mergui 2·32", Toungoo 2·77", Akyab 3·15", Monywa 1·11", Silchar 1·15", Chittagong 1·74", Mymensingh 1·11", Jalpaiguri 1·03", Calcutta 1·09", Darbhanga 1·13", Mangalore 2·59", Mercara 1·76" and Cochin 2·61".

5. The week's rainfall has exceeded the normal in the United Provinces, the Punjab, the North-West Frontier Province, Rajputana West and Malabar. It was in defect by more than an inch in Assam, Bengal, Berar, the Konkan, the Bombay Deccan and Hyderabad South.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

MEMORANDUM ON THE METEOROLOGICAL CONDITIONS PREVAILING BEFORE THE ADVANCE OF THE SOUTHWEST MONSOON OF 1912.

Monsoon rainfall in India is affected by previous conditions over various parts of the earth. The recent data of those which appear to be of importance are:—

THE ARGENTINE REPUBLIC.

2. At Buenos Aires monthly pressure was in defect by '02" in March, in excess by '03" in April, and in defect by '02" in May.

CHILI.

3. At Santiago monthly pressure was in excess in March and April by '01", and in May by '02".

THE PACIFIC OCEAN.

4. At Honolulu pressure during May averaged '05" in excess.

AUSTRALIA.

5. Pressure was in excess in April by '07" and in May by '05".

THE INDIAN OCEAN.

6. (a) Mauritius.—In May the barometer stood about '05" below its normal height: the deficit occurred chiefly during the second and third weeks, and was due in part to the action of a cyclonic storm. The air movement was stronger than usual and nearly normal in direction. Rainfall was much above the average.

(b) Zanzibar.—The pressure conditions in May were normal in character. Winds were decidedly weaker than the average and were more westerly than usual throughout, except during the third week when their direction was variable.

Rainfall was in defect by 5 per cent during April and 65 per cent during May.

(c) Seychelles.—During May pressure differed but little from the normal. Variable winds, lighter than usual, prevailed during nearly the whole month, and, as commonly occurs under these conditions, the rainfall was above the average.

(d) Logs of vessels.—According to the available information the northward extensions of the southeast trades over the west equatorial belt was greatly retarded. The steamship Surada which crossed this region from south to north between the meridians of 61° and 66° E. in the beginning of the second week in May experienced light irregular airs and calms to the north of latitude 12° S; whereas in years of ordinary conditions the southern trades reach the equator by the middle of May.

No marine information for the west equatorial regions is forthcoming for the second half of May, but the wind records of Seychelles suggest that the northward progress of the trades was taking place unusually slowly.

In the Arabian Sea two advances of monsoon winds have occurred, but their influence has been confined entirely to the southern portion of the sea. In the central and western parts of the sea where normally monsoon conditions appear in the fourth week of May light unsteady winds and quiet weather still prevail.

In the Bay of Bengal there were two advances of monsoon winds in May, but both proved to be very feeble and short-lived.

AFRICA. •

7. Nyasaland.—The recent conditions of pressure, temperature and rainfall have only differed slightly from the average.

German East Africa.—Rainfall in April and May has been very deficient.

Uganda Protectorate.—Rainfall in April was in slight excess and in May in slight defect.

Northeast Africa.—The floods of the Nile are mainly due to rainfall in Abyssinia, and the variations of this are fairly closely related with those of the monsoon in northwest India. On the 14th May the river gauges were still falling gradually, and there were no signs of flood water reaching the Blue Nile at Roseires. The Bahr el Jebel had been lower than ever before been recorded, but was rising slowly. Temperature in Egypt was considerably lower than usual and pressure in excess from the 5th to the 14th May.

On the 2nd June temperature in Egypt was still low and pressure high. The gauge at Roseires was reading 20 inches below normal, the first rise there having occurred 20 days later than usual.

SNOWFALL.

8. (a) According to the very limited information available the past winter was very severe and prolonged over a portion of Central Asia. In Transcaspiia and Russian Turkistan snowfall is reported to have occurred as late as the end of April.

(b) In the Persian area the winter commenced in November, earlier than usual. Conditions were more unsettled than usual in December and January, but during the three succeeding months the weather was on the whole drier than usual. Little or no information is available for May, but it is almost certain that no abnormal precipitation occurred in that month.

(c) In Baluchistan precipitation was much heavier than usual in November, January and April, and about normal or in defect in other months.

(d) In Afghanistan conditions have been nearly normal.

(e) In the hill districts of the North-West Frontier Province, according to the available information, the snowfall was above the average in October, November and January, and probably also in April and the earlier part of May, equal to the normal in December, and lighter than usual in February and March.

(f) In Kashmir the snowfall was in excess in November and May, and about normal or in defect in December, March and April. On the higher hills near Kargil snow lay five feet deep in the beginning of June.

(g) In the Punjab Himalayas the snowfall was probably on the whole less than usual; it was above the average only in October and November. The unsettled weather of April and May appears to have retarded to some extent the melting, and the snow-covering at the present time is probably in some places thicker than usual.

(h) In the Kumaon hills the winter began abnormally early, and in November snow is reported to have fallen as low as 4,900 feet in the hills north of Chakrata. The fall was very light in December and rather heavy in January. During the following three months the quantity received was apparently by no means excessive and the aggregate fall of the whole period October to May was probably not very different from the normal.

(i) The snowfall in the Assam Himalayas was, as far as can be judged from the few reports received, heavier than that of the two preceding winters, and probably in excess.

On the whole it appears that the winter began unusually early, but was not severe, the snowfall during December, February and March having been below the normal. Depressions of the winter type were more in evidence than usual in April and May, but it is almost certain that no widespread fall of snow occurred in those months.

The accumulations existing at the present time appear however to be on the whole somewhat in excess, owing chiefly to the abnormal thickness of the unmelted residue of last year's heavy snowfall.

INDIA.

9. The average temperature during May in the Punjab, which tends to be low in years of excessive snowfall, has been normal. But there have at times been dry northerly winds over the western half of the Deccan, such as are usually associated with heavy snowfall. The rainfall of May has been decidedly less than usual in most parts of the country.

INFERENCES FROM THE DATA.

10. (a) With reference to the general pressure conditions it is favourable for Indian monsoon rainfall when pressure is low in the Indian Ocean and Australia, and high in the Argentine Republic and Chili, at which last two areas pressure tends to vary in the direction opposed to the variations in the Indian Ocean. In the present year the mean of the South American data is very slightly favourable, though there are indications of instability; and the same appears to hold for the pressure data of Mauritius and Australia.

(b) Of rainfall conditions it is favourable that April and May rainfall should be deficient at Zanzibar and in the adjacent German East Africa, and these conditions are well marked this year.

(c) Excess of snowfall is usually associated with weakness and lateness of the monsoon, especially in north-west India; but happily the excess, though existent, is not strongly marked.

(d) The evidence from ships' logs as to the delay in the northward extension of the monsoon and its present weakness is strongly corroborated by the data from Africa: it suggests that during the earlier portion of the monsoon period the rains will be less abundant than usual.

Further it may be mentioned that when the rainfall of India as a whole is affected the result is generally shown to a more conspicuous extent in north-west India.

(e) There is so large an uncertainty in our present methods of forecasting that it is only when the indications regarding the total monsoon rainfall are strongly favourable or strongly unfavourable that reliance can be placed on them. In the present year the indications are not strongly marked, nor does it appear that any of the data other than those from which inferences have been drawn are so exceptional as to suggest any very abnormal features in the monsoon of this year.

SUMMARY.

1. It appears likely that monsoon rainfall, which is already overdue on the Konkan coast, will be materially later than usual in establishing itself over the country.

2. The rainfall of the first half of the period is likely to be less abundant and less steady than usual, particularly in north-west India.

3. There appears to be no reason for anticipating that the total monsoon rainfall of India as a whole will be in large excess or large defect.

4. An unusual amount of irregularity in the distribution of rainfall appears likely.

DEPARTMENT OF REVENUE AND AGRICULTURE.

Rainfall summary for the seven days ending at 8 hrs. on Thursday, the 20th June 1912, based on the Indian Daily Weather Reports of the period.

1. As during the preceding week, the Arabian Sea monsoon gave rain mainly on the west coast of the Peninsula. Beyond a few scattered thundershowers no rainfall of importance occurred in the interior of the Peninsula and the Central Provinces. In north-west India weather was practically dry, except in Gujarat where nearly general rain fell towards the end of the week owing to the northward extension of the monsoon.

Rainfall was of daily occurrence in Burma and some large amounts were reported from the coast districts; but in northeast India only occasional rainfall occurred, chiefly in Assam and the east of Bengal. The rest of northeast India, the United Provinces and Central India were practically rainless throughout the week.

2. Temperature was unusually high in Rajputana, Central India, the Central Provinces and the Deccan, and during the second part of the week in the Punjab and the United Provinces.

3. Burma.—Rainfall was nearly general over the whole province up to the 16th, but after that it decreased considerably in Upper Burma.

Northeast India, including Orissa.—Rainfall was very unsteady and occurred chiefly in Assam and Bengal.

The United Provinces, Central India and the Central Provinces.—Only a few scattered falls of rain were reported.

Northwest India.—Gujarat is the only area where rainfall of any importance occurred.

The Peninsula.—Owing to the failure of the monsoon to extend inland rainfall was restricted almost entirely to the west coast, only a few showers occurring in other parts of the Peninsula.

4. The chief daily falls of rain were as follows :—

- June 13th. Port Blair 4'44", Victoria Point 2'81", Tavoy 4'45", Moulmein 3'67", Akyab 6'25", Yamethin 1'13", Monywa 1'20", Chittagong 1'43", Mangalore 1'58" and Trivandrum 1'48".
- " 14th. Tavoy 2'95", Kyaukpau 7'52", Minbu 2'45", Maymyo 1'28", Cox's Bazar 1'16", Mangalore 3'22" and Calicut 2'61".
- " 15th. Slipper Island 2'80", Mergui 3'63", Moulmein 5'10", Bassein 3'68", Monywa 2'40", Cox's Bazar 2'00", Karwar 1'21" and Cochin 2'05".
- " 16th. Slipper Island 4'80", Tavoy 4'24", Akyab 2'06", Bhamo 1'72", Silchar 1'02", Darjiling 1'57", Ratnagiri 2'38", Karwar 3'40" and Cochin 1'56".
- " 17th. Slipper Island 3'90", Victoria Point 3'20", Mergui 2'46", Akyab 2'78", Rajkot 1'20", Ratnagiri 3'86", Mercara 1'87" and Cochin 1'37".
- " 18th. Tavoy 2'90", Moulmein 4'71", Silchar 3'13", Darjiling 1'19", Cox's Bazar 2'40", Jessore 3'12", Sambalpur 1'61", Dwarka 0'60", Veraval 3'56", Ahmadabad 1'53", Bombay 1'29", Goa 3'86", Marmagao 3'83" and Cochin 2'18".
- " 19th. Moulmein 2'05", Diamond Island 1'70", Myitkyina 1'37", Tezpur 1'25", Cox's Bazar 3'82", Saugor Island 2'51", Ranchi 1'73", Mukteswar 2'44", Rajkot 0'75", Veraval 7'80", Bombay 3'37", Goa 3'51", Belgaum 0'97", Calicut 8'20", Cochin 5'58", Cuddalore 1'55" and Madras 1'41".

5. The week's rainfall has exceeded the normal in Burma, Gujarat, Malabar and Madras Southeast, and has been practically normal in the Bay Islands, the Konkan and Hyderabad North.

The rainfall of the period from the 3rd of May to date differs from the normal by less than 20 per cent in Burma, Assam, Bengal, Kashmir, Rajputana West, Malabar, Mysore and Madras Southeast. It is 37 per cent in excess in Gujarat, mainly owing to very heavy rain reported from Veraval on the last two days of the week; and is in defect over the rest of the country. The largest deficiencies expressed in inches occur in the Bay Islands (11") and the Konkan (7").
